EXTRACT

FROM THE

TOTHE

FORMER EDITION of 1712.

gave Occasion to this Collection of Texts; yet I have therein avoided all mention of him, or Resection upon his Opposition to the Eternal Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, that I might confine myself to the direct Proof thereof from the Holy Scriptures: It seems necessary, that something should be written in a Plain Method, suited to the Capacities of the meanest Christians, wherein the Proof of this fundamental Doctrine of the Christian Religion, may be clearly laid down from those holy Writings only, which, blessed be God, in this Protestant Land, the People have been long acquainted with, and used to reverence.

I have collected such a Number of Texts, (when a few of them would have sufficiently proved this fundamental Article) not only that we might admire the Fulness and Persection of the Holy Scriptures, in affording such abundant Evidence for the confirming one Christian Doctrine; but that I might prevent the Cavils of the Adversaries, which they might be prepared to make against single Testimonies: I have not therefore entered into any large Dissertation on those Scriptures, which the Arians have controverted; but I persuade myself, that the Reader will find a full Answer to their Objections against any particular Place of Scripture, by some other Scripture cited in the same Paragraph; that their Attempt to evade the Force of one Text, will be prevented by joining with it another Text, which is not capable of the same Evasion.

This is one Way of comparing spiritual Things with spiritual: The Scripture is the best Interpreter of Scripture; one Text being admirably useful for the explaining, illustrating, and confirming another. No Language, Argument or Expression, enters and affects the Mind of Man, with the same Force and Essicacy, as the naked Scripture doth; this instructs the ignorant and illiterate, and convinceth the wise and learned too. I have avoided all merely human Authorities, curious Criticisms, or new Translations; so as not to cite several Texts, which are not doubtful or insufficient for the confirming this sacred Truth, but are less clear and evident to a plain English Reader, for whose Sake I write.

There are Differences among Christians in leffer Matters, which the Apostle calls doubtful Difputations; the Duty, with respect to these, is that no one should rashly judge or despise another: A full Agreement therein seems not possible, the Things themselves being more darkly revealed; and it may not be altogether necessary, that there may be room for the Exercise of Moderation, and Forbearance of one another in Love; but as to these first Principles of Christianity, we are to contend earnestly for the Faith. And as the Doctrine of Faith is to be held fast, so the Grace of Faith (I mean, Faith in Jesus Christ) is by all Means to be owned and avouched as one of the Terms of Salvation.

Our Christian Conversation must be the Life of Faith, and the Christian Worship must all tend to the Glory of our Great Redeemer. The Lord's Day, the Lord's Supper, and other Ordinances bear his Name, as being instituted for his Honour and Praise: If any deny the Eternal Deity of our Saviour, they exclude themselves from all Christian Assemblies, and blasheme our solemn Worship as an idolatrous Service. It must be gross Hypocrify and Prevarication in such to be present, so much as occasionally, at the Liturgy (for Instance) of the Church of England, where all the Officer, either suppose the Divinity of our Saviour, or plainly declare it.

The Reason why the Prayers are, many of them, in short Collects, is, that there should be frequent Mention made of the Merits of Jesus Christ, which we must bear in our Minds throughout all our Addresses to the Divine Majesty. In offering up our Petitions, through the Mediation and Satisfaction of Christ, his Godhead is supposed, "who with the Father, and the Holy "Ghost, liveth and reigneth ever one God,

"World without End; who made (by his one Oblation of Himself once offered) a full, per" fect, and sufficient Sacrifice, Oblation, and Sa" tisfaction for the Sins of the whole World."

"Now, (as a late Writer well observes) the "Wrong done to the Majesty of Heaven was

" fuch, that the whole Creation confuming in " an universal Flame, had been an unproportion-" able Sacrifice; it were manifeftly more ho-" nourable and worthy of God, not to have ex-" acted any Satisfaction at all, than to have ac-" cepted, under the Name of a Sacrifice, such " as were unproportionable, and beneath the va-" lue of what was to be remitted and conferred; " what is less than God, is infinitely less; bring 46 the Honour and Majesty of the Deity to any "Thing less than an equal Value, and you bring it to nothing. This had been to make the Ma-" jesty of Heaven cheap, and depreciate the Dig-" nity of the Divine Government, instead of " rendering it angust and great: But the Sacrifice " of Christ, God-Man, could be defective in no-" thing; was both suitable and equal to the Exi-" gency of the Cale; for the Sacrifice of Him " that was Man, was suitable to the Offence of Man; and of Him who was God, was equal to

" the Wrong done to God."

In other Places of the Liturgy, this glorious Truth is fully declared : There we have the Creeds made on purpose against the Heresy that Mr. Whifton hath revived, and one, that he fets himfelf to oppose and blaspheme. Addresses are frequently therein made to the Lord Jesus, as to the most High God; "O Lord God, Lamb of God, Son of " the Father, that takest away the Sins of the " World, have Mercy upon us." The Litany expresly means Him, as appears by the Conclufion of both Parts of it; "By thine Agony and " bloody Sweat, by thy Cross and Passion, &c. "Good Lord deliver us;" and again, "Son of 46 God, we befeech Thee to hear us." And for the praising Part, we add, " Thou only art Holy; 16 Thou only art the Lord; Thou only, O Chrift,

" with the Holy Ghoff; art most High in the "Glory of God the Father." In other Places, the Addresses are made to the Trinity in Unity, in an Acknowledgment of " every Person by "Himself to be God and Lord; O Holy, Bless-"ed, and Glorious Trinity, Three Persons and " ()ne God, have Mercy upon us miserable Sin-" ners." And again, " It is very meet, right, " and our bounden Duty, that we should at all "Times, and in all Places, give Thanks unto "Thee, O Lord, Almighty and Everlasting God, " who art one God, one Lord; not one only Per-" fon, but Three Persons in one Substance: For "that which we believe of the Glory of the Fa-" the Holy Ghost, without any Difference or "Inequality: Therefore with Angels and Arch-"angels, and with all the Company of Heaven, "we laud and magnify thy glorious Name, ever-more praising Thee, and saying, Holy, Holy, "Holy, &c." And whatever Praises are given to God in the Pfalms and Hymns, we own to belong to all the Three glorious Persons, by adding to the End of every Pfalm, and almost every praising Song, these Words, "Glory be to the Father, " and to the Son, and to the Holy Ghoft, &c."

A Lmighty and Everlasting God, who hast given unto us thy Servants Grace, by the Confession of a true Faith, to acknowledge the Glory of the Eternal Trinity, and in the Power of the Divine Majesty to worship the Unity; we beseech Thee that thou wouldest keep us stedfast in this Faith, and evermore defend us from all Adversities, who livest and reignest one God, World without End. Amen.

ANDTHE

been given to the Church of God, by several Writings published by William Whiston, and particularly by a Book lately dedicated by him to the Convocation of this Province, wherein that rash and insolent Writer declares, with the utmost Assurance, that the Arian Doctrine concerning the Trinity and Incarnation, is the Doctrine of our Blessed Saviour, His Apostles, and the first Christians; and very uncharitably infinuates,

"That all who have confidered these Matters, want nothing but the Honesty or the " Courage, to own themselves of the same

" We have thought ourselves obliged,

" in Maintenance of our most holy Faith,

" and for the Vindication of our own Sin" cerity, for checking (if possible) the Pre" sumption of this Author, and for pre" serving others from being seduced by " him, to compare the dangerous Asser" tions he has advanced with the Holy " Scriptures, the two first General Councils, " and Liturgy and Articles of the Church of " England, in order to give our Judgment upon
" them."

After which follows the Censure of the Convocation, in these Words:

"We do declare, That the abovemen"tioned Passages, cited out of the Books
"of William Whiston, do contain Assertions "false and heretical, injurious to our Sa"viour and the Holy Spirit, repugnant to the Holy Scriptures, and contraviant to the Decrees of the two first General Councils, and to the Liturgy and Articles of our Church."

"And we do earnestly beseech all Christian People, by the Mercies of Christ, to take heed how they give ear to these false Doctrines, as they tender the Homour and Glory of our Saviour, and the Holy Spirit, the Preservation of the Purity of the Gospel, and the Peace of the Church."

HOLY SCRIPTURE, &c.

THERE is nothing in Religion that we can be more fully assured of, than that there is but one God, Deut. 6. 4. "Hear O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord." I Cor. 8. 4. "There is none other God but one:" Yet is it One of the Principles of the Christian Religion, that we are to be baptized into the Name of Three glorious Persons, Matt. 28. 19. "Go ye "therefore and teach all Nations, baptizing them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." It must needs then follow, that these Three Persons are One God, I John 5. "For there are Three that bear Record in "Heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy "Ghost, and these Three are one."

2. Our Saviour Jesus Christ is the Second of these Three, called the Word, John 1. 1. "In the "Beginning was the Word; being the Bright"ness of his [Father's] Glory, and the express

" Image of his Person," Heb. 1. 3.

3. He

3. He is most frequently called the Son of God; for this, we have the Witness of St. John the Baptist, John 1. 34. " I saw and bare Record, "that this is the Son of God." Of Nathanael, John 1. 49. " Rabbi, thou art the Son of God;" of Martha, John 11. 27. "I believe that thou " art the Christ, the Son of God;" of St. Peter, Matt. 16. 16. "Thou art Chrift, the Son of the "living God;" of the Eunuch, Acts 8. 37. " I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." And we may here take up the Apostle's Words, I John 5. 9. " If we receive the Witness of "Men, the Witness of God is greater; for this is "the Witness of God, which he hath tef-" tified of his Son;" which Witness was twice by a Voice from Heaven, namely, at our Lord's Baptism, Matt. 3. 17. and in the same Words at his Transfiguration, Matt. 17. 5. " This is my " beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, hear " ye him."

He is called the Son of the Father, 2 John 3. namely, by Nature and eternal Generation, and to diffinguish Him from those that are called Sons by Creation, Job 38. 7. Luke 3. 38. or by Grace and Adoption, 1 John 3. 1. The efore he is called his own proper Son, Rom. 8. 3. " God fending "his own Son," and ver. 32. "He spared not " his own Son:" His begotten Son, Pfal. 2. 7. "Thou art my Son, this Day have I begotten "Thee;" compared with Heb. 1. 4, 5. "Being so made fo much better than the Angels, as he " hath by Inheritance obtained a more excellent Name than they; for unto which of the Angels " faid he at any Time, Thou art my Son, this Day have I begotten Thee?" Therefore his only begotten Son, John 1. 14. " We faw his "Glory, the Glory as of the only begotten of " the Father;" and ver. 18. " The only begot-

es ten

"ten Son which is in the Bosom of the Father." He is God of God; Thus speaking of his Father, He faith, John 7 29. "I know Him, for I am "from Him," or of Him, namely, begotten of Him, and He hath fent me; as He faith again, John 6. 46. " Not that any Man hath feen the " Father, fave He that is of God, He hath feen " the Father." So the Holy Ghoft is of the Father and of the Son, namely, proceeding from them both: and He is therefore called, The Spirit of the Son, Gal. 4. 6. as He is elsewhere called, The Spirit of the Father, Matt. 10. 20.

It was a known Thing among the Jews, that the Meffiah was to be the Son of God, which gave Occasion for the Question, Mark 14. 61, 62. "The High Priest asked Him, and said unto "Him, art thou the Christ, the Son of the "Bleffed? And He faid, I am." And they had no doubt but that He, who claimed thus to be the Son of God, did thereby claim the Deity, and make himself God; therefore, John 10. 36. " they " said, He blasphemed, because He said, I am the "Son of God:" Now we find their Words were these, ver. 33. " For a good Work, we " stone Thee not, but for Blasphemy; and be-"cause that thou, being a Man, makest thy-" felf God," namely, by his faying, that he was the Son of God.

4. This Word, or Son of God, being very God, as will be fully proved in what follows, and as is faid, John 1. 1. "The Word was with God, "and the Word was God;" He must by Consequence be One with the Father, for the most High faith, Ifa. 45. 21. "There is no God else "besides me;" none made or formed, who can be fo in any proper Sense, Ifa. 43. 10. " Before " me there was no God formed, neither shall

" there

"there be any after me;" therefore our Lord faith, John x. 30. " I and my Father are one;" and again, John 14. 9, 10. ". He that hath feen " me, hath feen the Father, - Believest thou " not, that I am in my Father, and my Father " in me?" And so He is faid to be equal with the Father, Phil. 2. 6. "Who, being in the Form " of God, thought it no Robbery to be equal with God." Hence the Father owns him for his Fellow, or Equal, Zech. 13. 8. " Awake, 66 O Sword, against my Shepherd, and against " the Man that is my Fellow, faith the Lord of " Hofts;" which are Words that He would never have spoken concerning the Highest of mere Creatures, of whom He faith, Ifa. 40. 25. "To " whom will ye liken me, or shall I be equal?

" faith the Holy One."

It is most plain, that the Jews did so understand our Lord's Words, as that He claimed fuch an Equality with his Father, John 5. 18. " The " Jews fought the more to kill Him, because He on not only had broken the Sabbath, but faid " alfo, that God was his Father, making Himself 46 Equal with God." Every holy and humble One amongst mere Creatures, would have abhorred fuch an Imputation, (as we find the Apostles did when the ignorant Multitude fancied them to be Gods, Acts 14. 14, 15. But our Lord was fo far from denying the Inference that the Yews made, that He continued to speak at that, and at other Times, all the Things that might induce them to believe, that he owned that Equality, John 5. 17. " My Father worketh hitherto, and "I work;" ver. 19. " Whatever Things the "Father doth, these also doth the Son likewise;" ver. 23. " That all Men should honour the Son, 46 even as they honour the Father;" ver. 26. ee For

"For as the Father hath Life in Himself, so hath He given to the Son to have Life in Him"felf." These, and other like Words, were spoken at the very Time, when he knew, that they understood Him, that He made Himself equal with the Father.

5. It is indeed true, that our Lord Jefus Christ was also Man, and owns Himself so to be, John 10. 40. "Ye feek to kill me, a Man that hath " told you the Truth." He had not only an Human Body, but a reasonable Soul or Spirit, "He " grew in Wisdom and Stature," Luke 2. 52. there were some Things which, as Man, He did not know, Mark 13. 32. He submitted his human Will to his Father's, Matt. 26. 39. He committed his Spirit into his Father's Hands, Luke 23. 26. With Respect to this his Human Nature, He faith, " My Father is greater than I," John 14. 28. This Human Nature, miraculously conceived by the Power of the Holy Ghoft, in the Womb of the Virgin Mary, was united to the Person of the Son of God, Luke 1. 35. " The Angel faid unto her, "The Holy Ghost shall come upon Thee, and "the Power of the Highest shall overshadow "Thee, therefore also that Holy Thing, which is shall be born of Thee, shall be called the Son " of God:" That Holy Thing being affumed into " personal Union with the Word, or Son of God, John 1. 14. "The Word was made Flesh, and "dwelt among us." It feems therefore a Prophecy, when Solomon cried out with Admiration (upon the Occasion of the Temple, which was a Type of Christ) 2 Chron. 6. 18. " But will God "in very Deed, dwell with Men on the Earth !" So I Tim. 3. 16. "Without Controversy, great " is the Mystery of Godliness, God was manifest "in the Flesh;" fo that, " in the Fulness of " Time. B 3

"Time, God sent forth his Son, made of a "Woman," Gal. 4. 4. And from thenceforth he was both God and Man, in two Natures, and one Person; He was immanuel, as the Prophet calls Him, Isa. 7. 14. which is explained, Matt. 1. 23. "Behold, a Virgin shall be with Child, and shall bring forth a Son, and they shall call his Name Immanuel, which, being intermeted, is, God with us." These two Natures are distinctly mentioned, Rom. 1. 3, 4. That He made of the seed of David, according to the Flesh," that is, his human Nature; and declared with Power by his Resurrection from the Dead, to be the Son of God, according to the Spirit of Holiness, that is, his divine Nature.

When therefore in some Places of Scripture, there may be Things spoken of Christ, which, with respect to his Manhood, may seem to argue fomething infirm or ignoble in him; yet in the fame Places, there is still fomething added to shew his Dignity; He is called the Son of Man, but then it is faid, the "Son of Man hath Power " on Earth to forgive Sins," Matt. q. 6. And the "Son of Man shall come in his own Glory, " and in his Father's, and of the holy Angels," Luke 9. 26. He is faid to " become Poor," but fo, as that " we by his Poverty are made Richs" 2 Cor. 8. 9. He was " made in the Likeness of " finful Flesh," but it was that " for Sin, He " might condemn Sin in the Flesh," Rom. 8. 3. He was " made under the Law," Gal. 4. 4. but it was that "He might redeem them that were "under the Law," ver. 5. and deliver them from the Curse thereof. He was crucified, but so as that " Christ crucified is the Power of God, and "the Wisdom of God," I Cor. 1. 24. He died, but so as that " by Death He destroyed him ce that

"that had the Power of Death, that is the "Devil," Heb. 2. 14. So that although He veiled his Glory in our Flesh, yet was He still the fame glorious and most High God.

6. From the holy Scriptures it doth most plainly appear, that our Lord Jesus Christ had a Being before He was conceived by the Holy Ghoft, and born of the Virgin Mary; for "He came down "from Heaven," John 3. 13. "He came from "above," ver. 31. " He is the Lord from Hea-"ven," I Cor. 15. 47. " He came forth from "the Father, and came into the World," John 16. 27, 28. " He took Part [or, was Partaker] " of Flesh and Blood," Heb. 2. 14. " He took "on Him the Seed of Abraham," ver. 16. " He "was Rich, and for our fake became Poor," 2 Cor. 8. 9. All this shews that it was one Nature that is faid to come down and to take our Flesh; and another Nature that was taken by Him; and the Assumer must be before that which was assumed and taken.

In particular, He was before John the Baptist, John 1. 30. "John seeth Jesus coming unto him, "and saith, This is He of whom I said, after me "cometh a Man that is preferred before me, for "He was before me." Our Lord, as He was Man, was six Months younger than John the Baptist, or thereabouts: The Annunciation of the Virgin by the Angel Gabriel, being in the sixth Month, Luke 1. 26. namely, after that Elizabeth had conceived, as is said, ver. 36. And when, notwithstanding this, it is said, that our Lord was before the Baptist, it cannot be understood of a Priority of Dignity; for He proves that he was preferred before him, by this his Pre-existence; for, or because, saith he, He was before me.

B 4 Again,

Again, He was before Abraham, as our Lord affirms concerning Himself so plainly, as that the enraged Fews took up Stones to stone Him for his Words, John 8. 58. "Jesus saith unto them, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, before Abraham was, I am," His not saying, I was, but I am, brings to mind the glorious Name of God, Exod. 3. 14. "And God said unto Moses, I AM "THAT I AM, thus shalt thou say to the "Children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto

" you."

Moreover, He was "before the Worlds," Coloff. 1. 17. "And he was before all Things," &c. And from these Things also it doth appear, that He, of whom we are speaking, is truly a Person, having Life, Understanding, Will, and Power of Acting. He "hath Life in Himself," John 5. 26. He hath Understanding and Knowledge; for, Matt. 11. 27. "No Man knows "the Father, but the Son:" As a Person, He willeth; for John 5. 21. "He quickens "whom He will:" And he worketh; for, John 5. 19. "Whatsoever the Father doeth, that "the Son doeth likewise.

It therefore further appears from these holy Writings, that this Being, which our Lord had before his being conceived in the Womb of the Virgin, was truly Divine; and so that He is very God, the most High God, blessed for ever. Whatsoever is appropriated to the most high God, belongs to Him, in Equality with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, John 16. 15. "All Things "that the Father hath, are mine:" The same Sublime Titles, Essential Attributs, Glorious Works, and Divine Warship, being ascribed to Him, which belong to the Father Almighty.

I. The incommunicable Names and Titles by which the most High God is made known are frequently given in the holy Scripture to our Lord Jesus Christ. This will appear, by comparing the Old and New Testament together, and by distinct Testimonies out of each of them.

1. If we compare the Old Testament with the New, we find that what is spoken of Jehovah the Lord in the one, is frequently said to belong to our Lord Jesus Christ in the other: Now Care is taken, Psal. 83. 18. "That Men may know that "He, whose Name alone is Jehovah, is the most " High over all the Earth."

It was the LORD Jehovah, that spake by his Spirit in Noah, to the old World, Gen. 6. 3. "And the LORD said, My Spirit shall not al"ways strive with Man." Now we are told, that this was meant of Christ, 1 Pet. 3. 18—20. "Who being put to Death in the Flesh, was "quickened by the Spirit, by which also He went [or, had gone] and preached to the Spirits [that "are now] in Prison; [but] which sometimes "were disobedient, when once the Long-suffering "of God waited in the Days of Noah."

In like Manner, it was the LORD Jehovah, that they tempted in the Wilderness, Numb. 14. 21—29. "They spake against God," &c. Numb. 21. 5, 6. "And the Lord sent fiery Serpents amongst them: and they bit the People, and

" much People of Ifrael died."

Now the Apostle tells us, that it was Christ, whom they tempted; and therefore He warns the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 10. 9. "Neither let us tempt "Christ, as some of them also tempted, and were "destroyed of Serpents."

Such Passages we often meet with in the Evangelical Prophet Isaiah, which the New Testament B 5 expressly expresly refers to our Lord Jesus Christ. The Prophet faith, Ifa. 6. 1, 2. " I faw the LORD " fitting on a Throne-about it stood the Seraph-"im-and they cried one to another, Holy, "Holy, Holy, is the Lord of Hosts, the whole " Earth is full of his Glory." This was, when the Prophet was fent to tell the People, ver. 9, 10. "Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and fee " ye indeed, but perceive not; make the Heart " of this People fat, and make their Ears heavy," &c. Now the Evangelist St. John observing, that when Jefus had done fo many Miracles, yet " they believed not on Him," John 12. 37. faith, ver. 39, 40. that it was the fulfilling of that fad Prophecy, mentioned before, and which there he repeats, and then adds, ver. 41. "Thefe "Things faid Isaias, when he saw his Glory, " and spake of Him," namely, that glorious Vision which the Prophet faw, of the LORD on his Throne, and which is here called, the Glory of Chrift.

2. We may have Reason to sear, that they, who deny the Deity of Girist, may be as much concerned, as the Jews themselves, in another Prophecy, Isa. 8. 13, 14. "The Lord of Hosss "Himself shall be for a Stone of Stumbling, and "for a Rock of Offence." That Christ is this Lord of Hosss, and that the Prophecy is applied to Men's stumbling at Him, we have not only the sad Experience of our Times, but the Testimony of two Apostles, of St. Paul, Rom. 9. 32, 33. and of St. Peter, 1 Pet. 2. 7, 8.

3. When the Miracles our Lord wrought here on Earth, were prophefied of, it is thus expressed, "Ver. 4—6. "Your God will come with "Vengeance, even God with a Recompence, He "will come and save you: Then the Eyes of the Blind"

"Blind shall be opened, and the Ears of the Deaf shall be unstopped; then shall the lame Man leap as an Hart, and the Tongue of the Dumb shall sing." Compare this with Matt. 11. 3—5. where the Question was, "Art thou He that shall come, or look we for another?" Our Lord answers to this Question, by appealing to the Works that were to be done by "their God that was to come with a Recompence;" and bids them tell John, who sent the Question, "what they had seen and heard; the Blind receive their Sight, the Lame walk, the Lepers are cleansed, the Deaf hear;" therefore Jesus Christ was God, "their God that was to come and fave them."

Again, in Isa. 40. 3. We read of " the Voice of one crying in the Wilderness, Prepare ye the "Way of the Lord; make straight in the Defart "a high Way for our God." Now that this Voice was meant of St. John the Baptist, we have his express Testimony, John 1. 20-23. "He con-" fessed and denied not, I am not the Christ: "Then said they unto him, who art thou? And "he faid, I am the Voice of one crying, Make " straight the Way of the Lord, as faith the " Prophet Esaias." And that Jesus Christ was that Lord God before whom he was fent, to prepare his Way, is plain from the whole History; and particularly from the Baptist's Answer at another Time, when he was told, how all Men run in to Christ, unto whom he had borne Witness, John 3. 26. her ver. 28. refers them to what he had told them before, saying, "Ye yourselves bear "me Witness, that I said, I am not the Christ, "but that I am fent before Him," namely, to prepare, or make straight his Way; for that was it, which he had told them, in the Place mentioned before, where he had faid, I am not the Christ. 4. The: B 6

4. The Great Jehovah often appropriates to Himself the Name of a Saviour, Isa. 43. 11. "I, "even I, am the Lord, and besides me there is "no Saviour." So, Isa. 45. 22. "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the Ends of the Earth, for I am God, and there is none else." Now this doth exactly agree with what St. Peter saith of our Lord Jesus Christ, Acts 4. 12. "Neither is there Salvation in any other; for there is none other Name given under Heaven among Men, whereby we must be saved." And the other Apostle saith of Christ, Heb. 5. 9. "He is be-"come the Author of eternal Salvation."

5. Such another Appropriation of Titles to Himself the Lord Jehovah makes, Isa. 44. 6. "Thus saith the Lord, the King of Israel, his "Redeemer, the Lord of Hosts; I am the First, "and I am the Last, and besides me there is no "God." This Title the Lord Jesus claims, Rev. 22. 12, 13. "Behold, I come quickly, and my Re-"ward is with me, to give to every Man according as his Work shall be; I am Alpha and Omega, "the Beginning and the End, the First and the

" Laft."

We have the Lord's remarkable Oath in Isa. 45. 23. "I have sworn by myself, and the Word is gone out of my Mouth in Righteous" ness, and shall not return, that unto me every Knee shall bow, and every Tongue shall swear." Now twice in the New Testament are these Words applied to our Lord Jesus Christ, Rom. 14. 10, 11. "We shall all stand before the Judgment-seat of Christ. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every Knee shall bow to me, and every Tongue shall confess to God;" and Phil. 2. 10. "at the Name of Jesus every Knee shall bow, &c."

6. In Ifa. 54. 5. it is faid, " Thy Maker is "thy Husband, the Lord of Hosts is his Name; " and thy Redeemer the Holy One of Ifrael, the "God of the whole Earth shall He be called;" which Espousal is also mentioned by another Prophet, Hof. 2. 19, 20. "I will betroth Thee " unto me for ever,-I will betroth thee unto "me in Faithfulness, and thou shalt know the "Lord." Now the Apostle tells us, that this Espousal is to the Lord Jesus Christ, whom he calls the one and the only Husband of his Church, and by consequence the " Maker of it, the Lord of " Hofts, the Redeemer, the Holy One of Ifrael, " and God of the whole Earth." 2 Cor. 11. 2. " I have espoused you to one Husband, that I may "present you as a Chaste Virgin to Christ;" of Him the Baptist speaks, when he faith, John 3. 29. "He that hath the Bride, is the Bridegroom." And in Rev. 21. 9. The Church is called, " The Bride, the Lamb's Wife."

After the Lord had faid, Joel 2. 27 .- " I am the "LORD your God, and none elfe,"-it follows, ver. 28. "I will pour out my Spirit upon all "Flesh, and your Sons and your Daughters shall " prophely, &c." This pouring out of the Spirit was on the Day of Pentecoft, Acts 2. 16, 17. and it was the Lord Jesus Christ that poured or shed it forth, ver. 32, 33. "This Jesus hath God " raised up,-therefore being by the Right Hand " of God exalted, and having received of the " Father the Promise of the Holy Ghost, He hath " shed forth this that you now see and hear," and this was the making good the Testimony that his Forerunner gave of Him, Matt. 3. 11. "He that cometh after me, is mightier than I, " whose Shoes I am not worthy to bear, He shall " baptize you with the Holy Ghoft, and with " Fire."

"Fire." And because it is most evident, that the pouring out of the Spirit, is the work of God alone, we may see another Text, Zech. 12. 10. "I "will pour upon the House of David, and upon the Inhabitants of Ferusalem, the Spirit of Grace and Supplication;" now that these are the Words of our Blessed Saviour, appears by what immediately follows, "and they shall look upon me, whom they have pierced;" which Words are expressly said to belong to Christ, John 19, 37. And again, another Scripture saith; They shall look on Him, whom they pierced."

Having compared thus the Two Testaments together; we come to the distinct Testimonies of the Deity of Christ, from the Names and Titles ascribed to Him in each of those Parts of Holy Scripture.

In the Old Testament, we find Him appearing to the Patriarchs, under the Name of the Angel of the Lord, [the Angel of the Covenant] fufficiently. distinguished from all created Angels. Thus he appeared to Jacob, Gen. 32. 24.—" There "wrestled a Man with him." Jacob had this conflict, not only corporally, but spiritually, namely, with Prayers and Tears, ver. 26.—"I will not tele thee go, except thou bless me;" as the Prophet explains it, Hof. 12. 4. "He had Power " over the Angel and prevailed, he wept, and made, "Supplication unto him." Now that this was not a created Angel, appears from what the same Prophet faith, ver. 3. "By his Strength he had Power with God;" and so the History shews us, that he prevailed to get the Bleffing; Gen. 32. 29. and the Place got the Name of Peniel, [the Face of God,] for faith he, ver. 30. "I have "feen God Face to Face;" and he got the Name of Ifrael, ver. 28. as " a Prince that had Power 46 with

"with God;" and to him afterwards he prays, as unto the only God, from whom this Deliverance came, Gen. 48. 16. and all that in every Age prevail with God for his Blessing, are called from

Thus also our Lord appeared to Moses, Exod. 3. 2. "And the Angel of the Lord appeared unto "Him in a flame of Fire, out of the midst of the "Bush." Now that this Angel of the Lord was. very God, we may understand from the Worship, which He required by the Sign thereof, used in those Days, ver. 5 .- " Put off thy Shoes from " off thy Feet, &c." and from the proclaiming his Name, ver. 6. "He faid, I am the God of "tny Father, the God of Abraham, the God of " Isaac, and the God of Jacob;" upon which it also follows, that " Moses hid his Face, for he "was afraid to look upon God;" and afterwards the Loving-kindness of God is expressed by the "Good-will of Him that dwelt in the Bush," Deut. 33. 16. If fuch Things are spoken of created Angels, how is our Lord faid to have " obtained "a more excellent Name than they?" Heb.

And most evidently doth it appear, that the Angel of the Lord, that led the P. ople of Israel through the Wilderness, was not a meer Creature, but our Lord himself, of whom it is said, Isa. 63.9.—"The Angel of his Presence saved them." He is emphatically called, the Presence of the Lord, Exod. 33. 14, 15. "And he said, My Presence fhall go with thee, and I will give thee rest. "And he said unto Him, If thy Presence go not with me, carry us not hence." And the manner of speaking concerning Him, shews plainly who He was, Exod. 23. 20, 21. "Behold, I send my Angel before thee, to keep thee in the Way, "and

"and to bring thee unto the Place which I have prepared; beware of Him, and obey his Voice; provoke Him not, for He will not pardon your Transgressions; for my Name is in Him." These are Words far too high to be spoken of any created Angel: And how, notwithstanding this Caution, they did provoke our Lord Christ, and were punished, was noted before, from I Cor.

Agreeable hereunto are those Places, where mention is made of the Great Jehovah, as a Person distinct from God the Father; as when it is said, Gen. 19. 24. "The Lord rained upon Sodom and Gomorrah, Fire and Brimstone from the Lord out of Heaven;" And Zech. 3. 2. "The Lord said unto Satan, The Lord rebuke thee,"—so the Lord saith, Hos. 1. 7. "I will save them by the Lord their God." And again, Zech. 10. 12. "I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they shall walk up and down in his Name, saith the Lord." He that strengtheneth them is Jehovah, and He by and in whom he strengtheneth them is Jehovah.

Other Testimonies from the glorious Names of God, are yet more express. The Apostle himself quotes several of them out of the Book of Psalms, Heb. 1. 8. "Unto the Son he saith, thy Throne, O God, &c." which is taken out of Psal. 45. 6. And again, Heb. 1. 10. "Thou Lord in the Beginning, &c." which Words are quoted from Psal. 102. 24, 25. "I said, O my God, &c." This is illustriously set down in Isa. 9. 6. "Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given, —and his Name shall be called Wonderful, "Counsellor, The mighty God, &c." To which we may add from another Prophet, Jer.

23. 6. "In his Days Judah shall be saved, &c."
"and his name shall be called the LORD our "Righteousness." Which is the same with what sollows upon the Lord's Oath, (which was mentioned before, that every Knee should bow to Him,) Isa. 45. 24, 25. "In the LORD I have Righ"teousness and Strength,—in the LORD shall all

" the Seed of Ifrael be justified."

7. In the New Testament, we have yet more abundant Evidence from thefe glorious Titles: The Lord Jesus Christ is not only distinguished from Man, Gal. 1. 1. " Paul an Apostle, not " of Men, neither by Man, but by Jesus Chrift," -but is expressly affirmed to be God. There we find Him called the True God, 1 John 5. 20 .-"We are in Him that is true, even in his Son " Jesus Christ. This is the True God, and eternal "Life." When therefore God the Father is called "the only True God," John 17. 3. and "One God the Father," 1 Cor. 8. 6. it is meant to exclude all false Gods, and heathen pretended Deities, of which the Apostle there faith, ver. 5. "There were God's many, and Lord's many; " but to us there is but one God the Father, and "one Lord Jesus Chrift." So that one God the Father no more excludes the Son, who is of the fame Nature and Essence with the Father, from being God the True God; than the other Words, one Lord Jesus Christ, do exclude the Father from being Lord, whenas the "Lord our God is one " Lord."

8. Again He is called the Great God, Tit. 2. 13. "Looking for the bleffed Hope, and the glorious "appearing of the Great God, and our Saviour "Jefus Christ."

9. So also He is called God over all, Rom. 9. 5. "Whose are the Fathers, and of whom, as con"cerning the Flesh, Christ came, who is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen." Of him it is said, I Tim. 3. 16. "That God was manifest in the Flesh;" which is the same with what the other Apostle saith, I John 1. 2. "The Life was mani-"fested, namely,—that eternal Life, which was "with the Father:" In the same place, ver. 5. it is said, "God is Light, and in Him is no Dark-"ness at all;" which is the Title that our Lord claims, John 8. 12. "I am the Light of the World;" and it is thus expressed concerning Him, John 1. 9. "This is the true Light that "lightens every Man that comes into the "World."

The Godhead is in the same manner affirmed of the Father, and of the Son, in Coloff. 2. 1. where the Apostle speaks of the Acknowledgment of the Mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ; implying, that both the Father and Christ are that God, whose Mystery is to be acknowledged: So in 2 John ver. 9. " Whoso transgresseth, and " abideth not in the Doctrine of Chrift, hath " not God; He that abideth in the Doctrine of "Christ, He hath both the Father and the Son;" where the Father and the Son, in the latter Part of the Verse, are the same with God in the former Part. The Glory of the Son of God, is the same with the Glory of the most High God, as he himfelf tells us, when speaking of the Sickness of Lazarus, He faith, John 11. 4. " It was-for " the Glory of God, that the Son of God might " be glorified thereby."

Plain is the Account that St. Paul gives us, Col. 2. 9. That "in Him dwelleth all the Ful"nefs of the Godhead bodily," that is, not symbolically, as in the Ark, and in the Temple; but really and effentially the whole Divine Nature resided in Him.

Him. And because what was done by Him in our Nature, was done by Him, who was God, as well as Man, therefore we find it written thus, Acts 20. 28.—Feed the Church of God, which "He hath purchased with his own Blood." And I John 3. 16. "Hereby perceive we the Love of God, because he laid down his Life for us." Thus "we pray you in Christ's stead," is made the same, as "though God did beseech you by us," 2 Cor. 5. 20. To which we may add, the noble Confession of that Disciple, which at first had doubted, but was afterwards fully convinced, John 20. 28. "Thomas answered and said unto Him, My Lord and my God."

II. The incommunicable Attributes and Perfections which belong to the most High God, are frequently in the holy Scriptures ascribed to our bleffed Saviour Jesus Christ.

There are some Attributes of God, which are commonly said to be Communicable, because they may in some Analogy and Resemblance be sound in meer Creatures; as to be Wise, Holy, Merciful, and True. These are indeed glorious Persections of God, as we may see, when He proclaims his Name, Exod. 34. 6, 7. yet because meer Creatures have some Conformity to God therein, we shall not largely treat of them here; although even these [called Communicable] Attributes are ascribed to our Lord Jesus Christ in quite a different Manner than they are ascribed to any such Creatures, of whatsoever Rank or Degree.

I. Thus our Lord is said, not only to be Wise, but Wisdom itself, particularly throughout the whole 8th Chapter of the Proverbs; agreeably to which He speaks of Himself, Luke 11. 49. "Therefore said the Wisdom of God, I will send

" then

"them Prophets and Apostles, &c." and indeed St. Paul saith, Col. 2. 3. that "in Him are hid sall the Treasures of Wisdom and Knowledge;" and in Jude, ver. 25. the Doxology is, "To the only wise God, our Saviour, be Glory, "&c."

2. So He is not only called Holy, but emphatically the Holy One, Acts 13. 35. "Thou shalt not suffer thy Holy One to see Corruption;" and the most Holy, Dan. 9. 24. "Seventy Weeks are determined,—to anoint the most Holy." To him the Seraphim sing Thrice Holy, Isa. 6. 3. "and one cried unto another, and said, Holy, "Holy, Holy, is the Lord of Hosts;" infomuch that Holy is his Name, Rev. 3. 7. "these Things

" faith He that is Holy-."

And though He once refused the Title of Good Master, when it was given Him, only in Compliment, by one who did not own his Deity, and said, Matt. 19. 17. "There is none good but one, that is God;" yet he elsewhere calls Himfelf the good Shepherd, John 10. 11. "I am the good Shepherd," which is the same, or as high a Title, as good Master; and in Him there is the unsearchable Riches of Grace, Eph. 3. 8. The unsearchable Riches of Grace, Eph. 3. 8. The Love of Christ passeth Knowledge, ver. 19. from whose sulpside we receive Grace for Grace," John 1. 16. And He is said by St. Paul, to have shewed [to Him] all Long-suffering, for a Pattern to them that should hereafter believe," Tim. 1. 16.

3. Again. He is not only True, but Truth it-felf. The Apostle saith, I John 5. 20.—" we are "in Him that is True, even in his Son Jesus "Christ,"—and He saith of Himself, John 14. 6. "I am—the Truth." This also is his Name.

Name, Rev. 3. 7. "Things faith He-hat is

But we shall consider the incommunicable Attributes of God more largely, of which there are not the least Footsteps or Resemblance to be found in the Creatures: These do all belong to our Lord Jefus Chrift.

4. Eternity and Immutability do belong to the most High God alone; He only is " from ever-" lasting to everlasting," Pfalm 90. 2. This transcerdent Attribute is ascribed to our Lord Jesus Christ by the Prophets, even at the Time that they speak of his being born into the World. Mic. 5. 2. " Thou Bethlehem Ephrata, though " thou be little amongst the Thousands of Judab, " yet out of thee shall He come forth unto me, " who is to be Ruler in Ifrael; whose Goings forth " have been of Old from Everlasting:" So the other Prophet calls the Child that was to be born, not only " the Mighty God, but the Everlasting " Father," Ifa. q. 6. He is the true Melchizedeck, of whom the other was a faint Type, "without " beginning of Days, or End of Life," Heb. 7. 3. To this we may refer the glorious Words spoken by Wisdom, Prov. 8. 22-30. " The Lord " possessed me in the Beginning of his Way, be-" fore His Works of Old; I was fet up from ever-" lafting, from the Beginning ere ever the World "was; when there were no depths I was brought " forth - When He appointed the Foundations " of the Earth; then was I by Him, as one brought " up with Him, &c." This Infinity of Effence is denoted by his Name Jehovah, and is thus expressed by our Lord Himself, Rev. 1. 8. " I "am Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the Ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which "was, and which is to come, the Almighty." The

The same He saith, ver. 11, 17. And again, He glories in this Title, Rev. 2. 8 .- " These "Things faith the First and the Last, that was " dead, and is alive." And more largely, Rev. 22. 13. "I am Alpha and Omega, &c." Upon this Account it is faid, that He was in the Beginning, John 1. 1. "In the Beginning was the Word," co-eternal with the Father, for "the Word was with God;" And we may well conceive, that it was He to whom God the father spake, Gen. 1. 29. "Let us make Man in our "Image, after our Likeness:" And of whom He faid, Gen. 3. 22. "Behold, the Man is become "as one of us." And hence our Lord speaks of the "Glory he had with the Father before the World was," John 17. 5. He is therefore faid to be " before all things," Col. 1. 17. There can be nothing but the Creature, and the Creator; and he that did subsist in the Beginning before all Things, or created Beings, mult be without beginning Himself.

To this belongs the frequent Evidence of his being the "Living God, having Life in Himfelf," John 5. 26. and so the Author or "Prince of "Life to others," Acts 3. 15. He is indeed Life itself; that is his Name and Nature, as He saith, John 14. 6. "I am—the Life;" and the Apostle tells us, I John 1. 2. "The Life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear Witness, and flew unto you that Eternal Life which was with the Father, and was manifest unto us." And again, This is "the True God and eternal Life," I John 5. 20. He swears by his Life in the solemn Oath mentioned before, Rom. 14. 11. "As I live, saith the Lord." And that He will live and reign for ever, will appear, when we come to speak of his Kingdom: Thus He speaks of Himself, Rev. 1. 18. "I am he that liveth, "and was dead, and behold I am alive for ever-

" more, Amen."

5. Like to this His Eternity is His Immutability and Unthangeableness: This the most High God glories in, Mal. 3. 6. "I am the Lord, I change "not;" this is expressly ascribed by the Apostle to our Lord Jesus Christ, Heb. 1. 11, 12.—" They "all shall wax old, as doth a Garment, and as a "Vesture shalt thou change them, and they shall be changed, but thou art the same, and thy "Years never sail;" which Words are taken from Psal. 102. 27. And again, in Heb. 13. 8. He is called "Jesus Christ, the same Yesterday,

" and to Day, and for ever."

6. Another glorious Perfection of the most High God, is His Ubiquity or Omnipresence. He is said to "fill Heaven and Earth," Jer. 23. 24. Now that this belongs to our Lord Jesus Christ, doth appear from His being with the Father, John 1. 1. -" The Word was with God,"-and in the Father, John 14. 10, 11. " I am in the Father, " and the Father in me :" Even when His buman Nature was here on Earth, He was, as to his divine Nature, in Heaven, John 3. 13. "No " Man hath ascended up to Heaven, but He that "came down from Heaven, even the Son of Man "which is in Heaven;" and speaking of Heaven at another Time, He saith John 14. 3.-Where "I am." - And when, as Man, He afcended up into Heaven, it was where, as God, He was before, John 6. 62. " What if you shall fee the "Son of Man ascend up where He was before?" When His bodily Presence left the World, (with respect to which, He told His Disciples, Matt. 26. II.—" Me ye have not always,") He yet continued his divine and gracious Presence, Matt.

28. 20. "Lo, I am with you always, even unte the End of the World:" Hence it is faid, Matt. 18. 20. "Wherever Two or Three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in "the Midft of them;" for being present every where, He can manifest His Presence when, and where He pleaseth. Rev. 2. 4. "He walks in the " Midst of his Golden Candlesticks." Thus he is faid to "dwell in the Hearts of his People," Eph. 3. 17. who are therefore called "the "Temple of God," 2 Cor. 6. 16. and thus he speaks of Himself in Unity with the Father, John 14. 23. "If a man love me, he will keep my "Words, and my father will love him, and We " will come to him, and make our Abode with "him." He is moreover faid " to fill all Things," Eph. 4. 10. and " to fill all in all," Eph. 1. 22. And because He "fills Heaven and Earth," all Things every where must be subject to Him, Phil. 2. 10. even " Things in Heaven, and Things in " Earth, and things under the Earth."

7. Omniscience, or knowing all Things, is another glorious Attribute of the most High God, and a Consequence of his Omnipresence, Heb. 4. 13. " All Things are naked and open unto the eyes "of Him, with whom we have to do:" And this Perfection doth so peculiarly belong to the Great God, that it is faid of Him, I Kings 8. 39. "Thou, even Thou only knowest the Hearts of " the Children of Men." Now nothing is more evidently claimed by our Lord Jesus Christ than this Perfection; Rev. 2. 23 .- " And all the " Churches shall know that I am He that searcheth " the Reins, and the Heart." The same is teftified of Him, John 2. 24, 25. "He knew all Men, and needeth not that any should testify of Man: For He knew what was in Man."

How often is our Lord spoken of, as a Discerner of the Thoughts and Intents of the Heart, by all the Evangelifts? In Matt. 9. 4. and 12. 25. it is faid, " Jesus knew their Thoughts." In Mark 2. 6-8. "There were certain of the Scribes "fitting there, and reasoning in their Hearts .-" And immediately when Jesus perceived in his "Spirit, that they so reasoned within themselves, "He faid, Why reason ye in your Hearts?" &c. So at another Time, Luke 9. 47. "Jesus perceived "the Thought of their Heart." So also, John 6. 61, 64. " Jesus knew in Himself, that his "Disciples murmured at Him .- He knew from "the Beginning, who they were that believed "not." So he faith to the Jews, John v. 42. "I know you, that ye have not the Love of God

" in you." There are very many more Testimonies of this kind fet down in the Gospels. We are told, John 16. 19. that " Jesus knew that they were "defirous to ask Him,"-and accordingly anfwered what was in their Hearts: and it is faid, ver. 30. " They cried out, Now we are fure that "thou knowest all Things, and needest not that "any Man should ask thee: by this we believe, "that thou camest forth from God." This also convinced Nathanael, when our Lord told him, John 1. 48. " Before that Philip called thee, when "thou wast under the Fig-tree, I saw thee;" which drew out that noble Confession, ver. 49. "Rabbi, Thou art the Son of God, Thou art "the King of Israel." Thus also another Difciple addressed himself unto Him, John 21. 17. "Peter faid unto Him, Lord, Thou knowest all "Things; Thou knowest that I love Thee." This Attribute will be very illustrious at the Judgment-day, " When the Lord comes, and "will bring to light the hidden Things of Dark-

" nefs, and will make manifest the Counsels of

And well may he be supposed to know the Counsels of the Hearts of Men, who is intimately acquainted with the Counsel of his Father; from whence He hath that glorious Name, Ifa. 9. 6 .-Wonderful, Counsellor,-which Name is denied to be competible to any meer Creature, Rom. 11. 34. "Who hath known the Mind of the Lord, or who "hath been His Counsellor?" The "only be-" gotten Son" is therefore faid figuratively to be "in the Bosom of the Father," John i. 18. So that as " no Man knows the Son but the Fa-"ther," fo " no one knows the Father but the "Son." He faith, John 8. 38. " I speak that "which I have feen with my Father;" as He also saith again, John 10. 15. "As the Father "knoweth Me, fo know I the Father." Nevertheless, this is not spoken to exclude the Holy Ghoft, who also " fearcheth all Things, yea, the " deep Things of God," 1 Cor. 2. 10. The intimate Union of the Three Bleffed Persons in the Godhead being thus expressed, John 16-13-15. "When He the Spirit of Truth is come, He shall guide you into all Truth .-"He will shew you Things to come. He shall " glorify Me; for he shall receive of Mine, and " shew it unto you. All that the Father hath 18 " Mine: Therefore, said I, He shall take of "Mine, and shew it unto you."

8. Another of the glorious Attributes of the Most High God is his Omnipotency; He is the Lord God Almighty, by which Name He makes Himself known to Abraham, Gen. 17. 1. "I am the "Almighty God:" To this belongs that other great Name, "The Lord of Hosts." Now that this Attribute belongs to our Lord Jesus Christ, doth doth appear from the Cry of the Seraphim, Isaiah 6. 3. "Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord of Hofts, " the whole Earth is full of his Glory;" which the Evangelist tells us expressly, was meant of our Lord Fesus Christ, John 12. 41. as was noted before: So doth He, who is to " come in the "Clouds," &c. proclaim his Name, " which is, "and which was, and which is to come, the "Almighty," Rev. 1. 7. 8. The Pfalmist calls him most Mighty, Pfal. 45: 3. " Gird thy Sword "upon thy Thigh, O most Mighty." And the Prophet calls him the Mighty God, Ifa. q. 6. "His Name shall be called Wonderful, Coun-"fellor, the Mighty God;" the same with the Great God, Titus 2. 13.

The Angel which wrestled with Jacob, (whom we before proved to be the Son of God) is expressly called The Lord of Hofts, Hof. 12. 4, 5. " He had "Power over the Angel-He found him in "Bethel, and there He spake with us; even the, "Lord God of Hosts, the Lord is his Memo-"rial." The Hosts of Heaven are represented as his Chariots, Pfal. 68. 17, 18. " The Chariots " of God are twenty Thousand, even Thousands "of Angels; the Lord is among them, as in "Sinai, in the Holy Place: Thou hast ascended "on High," &c. Which Words, the Apostle faith, are meant of Christ, Eph. 4. 8. Hence his Power is called Divine, 2 Pet. 1. 3. " His Divine "Power hath given unto us all Things that per-"tain to Life and Godlines;" and the fame Power that the Father hath, John 5. 19. "What"foever Things He [the Father] doth, these also "doth the Son likewise;" as He had said before, ver. 17. " My Father worketh hitherto, and I. "work:" Hence also he is said to be above all, John 3. 31. " He that cometh from above, is C 2

"above all;" and again, "He that cometh from Heaven, is above all." We read also of his mighty Power, "whereby He is able to subdue all. Things to Himself," Phil. 3. 21. He is able to do for us whatsoever we ask, John 14. 14. If you ask any Thing in my Name, I will do it." This his Almighty Power will surther appear under the following Head; for,

of the most High God are frequently ascribed in the Holy Scriptures to our Saviour Jesus Christ; and they are therein said to be wrought by Him.

: 1. We begin with the Works of Creation, which the Holy Writings begin with, and peculiarly aferibe to God alone, Gen. 1. 1. " In the Begin-" ning God created the Heavens, and the Earth;" and He ordered his People in Babylon after this Manner, Jer. 10. 11. "Thus shalt thou say unto " vens and the Earth, they shall perish from the 4 Earth," &c. Now nothing is more plain, than that these wondrous Works are ascribed to our Lord Jesus Christ, John 1. 1-3. " In the Begin-" ning was the Word .- All Things were made 4 by Him; and without Him was not any Thing " made that was made;" and ver. 10. " He was in the World, and the World was made by "Him." This is most fully declared by the Apostle, Col. 1. 16. " By Him were all Things created that are in Heaven, and that are in Earth, visible, and invisible, whether they be Thrones, or Dominions, or Principalities, or 4 Powers; all Things were created by Him, and of for Him." In Pfal. 102. 25. it is faid, "Of wold Thou hast laid the Foundations of the Earth, and the Heavens are the Work of thy Mands; which Words are quoted, Heb. 1. 10.

as belonging to our Lord Jesus Christ, to Thew his Dignity above all Angels and Creatures what soever. Therefore He is said to be, "The Bes" ginning of the Creation of God," Rev. 3. 14. as being the Original and first Cause, by which all Things were created and made; the Father having "created all Things by Jesus Christ," Eph. 3. 9.

2. The Works of the Divine Providence towards the World, and the Church therein, are all ascribed to our Lord Jesus Christ. As all Things were made by Him, so "by Him all Things consist," Col. 1. 17. the like is testified of Him, Heb. 1. 34. That "being the Brightness of his Father's "Glory, &c. he upholdeth all Things by the "Word of his Power." These Works of Presservation and Providence, He continues to work bitherto, as the Father doth, John v. 17. and will continue so to do until the End of the World, when He will yet more illustriously shew forth his Deity.

3. The Judging of the World is the peculiar Prerogative of the most High God, Plal. 90. 61 "God is Judge Himfelf;" fo He is called, Gen; 18. 25. " The Judge of all the Earth." Now it is very plain, that our Lord Festes Christ is the Judge of the Quick and Dead, " who shall judge " the Quick and the Dead at his appearing and his "Kingdom," 2 Tim. 4. r. Remarkable is the Prophecy concerning Him, Zech, 14. 4, 5. " His " Feet shall stand in that Day upon the Mount " of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the "East; and the Mount of Olives shall cleave in "the Midst thereof, &c. and the Lord my God " shall come, and all the Saints with thee;" which exactly agrees with what the Angels faid of our Lord Fesus Christ, Acts 1. 11. 12. 4 This " fame Jesus, which is taken up from you into "Heaven, shall so come in like Manner as ye " have C 3

"have seen Him go up into Heaven: Then re"turned they unto Jerusalem, from the Mount
"called Olives." To this we may add that old Prophecy, recorded Jude 14. "And Enoch "also, the seventh from Adam, prophessed of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten Thousands of his Saints;" compared with Thess. 3. 13. "The Coming of our Lord Jesus

"Chrift, with all his Saints."

We are told, that the "Coming of our Lord "draweth near," and that "the Judge is at the "Door," James 3. 8, 9. This Day of Judgment is called the "Day of God," 2 Pet. 3. 12. "Looking for, and hasting to the Day of God," which yet our Lord claims as His Day, Luke 17. 24. "So shall the Son of Man be in His "Day;" which the Apostle calls His Times, I Tim. 6. 14, 15. "Until the Appearing of our "Lord Jesus Christ, which in His Times He "shall shew, who is the blessed and only Po-"tentate," &c. Hence He is called "The "Lord, the Righteous Judge," 2 Tim. 4. 8. and it is said, "He shall sit on the Throne of His "Glory," Matt. 19. 28.

It is true, as Man or as Mediator, he hath this Power by Commission from the Father, John 5.

22. 27. "The Father judgeth no Man, but hath "committed all Judgment to the Son: He hath given Him an Authority to execute Judgment also, because He is the Son of Man." But then this must suppose Him a Person capable of such a Commission, which He completely was, by reason of His Divine Nature, and particularly His Omniscience, which is spoken of with Respect to this very Thing, I Cor. 4. 5. "The Lord cometh, who will bring to light the hidden Things of Darkness, and will manisest the "Counsels"

"Counsels of the Heart, and then shall every " Man have Praise of God." In like Manner, when it is faid, Rom. 14. 10. "We shall all stand " before the Judgment-feat of Christ," it is added, ver. 12. " Every one of us shall give an Account of "himself to God:" So when the Apostle tells us, 2 Cor. 5. 10. "We must all appear before "the Judgment-leat of Chrift," he calls it, ver. 11. "The Terror of the Lord." That which is called the "Revelation of the righteous Judg-"ment of God," Rom. 2. 5. is thus expressed; 2 Theff. 1.7, 8. " The Lord Jesus shall be re-"vealed from Heaven with his mighty Angels, "taking Vengeance," &c. "He is the LORD, "who will break his Enemies like a Potter's "Veffel," &c. Pfal. 2. 9-12. "When the "great Day of his Wrath is come, who shall be " able to stand?" Rev. 6. 17.

4. One remarkable Declaration of his Deity at that Day, will be his Raifing of the Dead. This the Lord God of Ifrael doth expressly claim as his Prerogative, Deut. 32. 39. "I, even I am He; "and there is no God with Me; I kill, and I "make alive:" compare this with Rev. 1. 18: "I am He that liveth, and was dead, and I am " alive for evermore, Amen, and have the Keys " of Hell and Death," viz. to open the Graves, and to let out the Dead that are therein, as the Words are explained, Rev. 20. 13. " Death and "Hell delivered up the Dead which were in "them." Agreeably to this our Lord frequently speaks, John 6. 40. "And I will raise them up at the last Day;" the same Words we have, ver. 54. and with respect to this, he calls Himself "the Refurrection and the Life," viz. Author and Giver of it. When Martha had faid of Lazarus, John 11. 24. "I know that He shall " rife

" rife again in the Resurrection at the last Day, Jesus said unto her, ver. 25. I am the Resurer rection and the Life, he that believeth in Me, " though he were dead, yet shall he live." And this Power reacheth to all the Dead, John 5. 28, 29. "They that are in their Graves shall hear " his Voice," [the Voice of the Son of God, ver. 25] " and shall come forth; they that have done "Good, to the Resurrection of Life; and they "that have done Evil, to the Resurrection of "Damnation." But the bleffed Change that shall be wrought by the Resurrection, in the Bodies of Believers, is in an especial Manner ascribed to · Him, Phil. 3. 21. " Who shall change our vile "Body, that it may be fashioned like unto his " glorious Body, according to the mighty work! "ing, whereby He is able to subdue all Things " to Himfelf."

5. The Works therefore of the most high God, respecting his Church, are in the fullest Manner ascribed to our Lord Jesus Christ. That which is called the Church of God, 1 Tim. 3. 15. " The " House of God, which is the Church of the " Living God," is claimed by the Bleffed Fefas as His Chutch, Matt. 16. 18. " On this Rock I " will build my Church." This is the House that He alone built, who builded all Things, Heb. 3. 3, 4. " For this Man was counted worthy " of more Glory than Moses, inasmuch as He "that hath builded the House, hath more Honour than the House; for every House is builded by " fome Man, but He that built all Things is This Church He hath built upon a " God." Rock, which Church are his Chosen and Redeemed, who are the "Temple of the Living "God," 2 Cor. 6. 16. "Built up a Spiritual " House, 1 Pet. 2. 5. Thefe

Thefe the Lord hath chofen; and as they are called the Elect of God, Rom. 8. 33. " Who shall " lay any thing to the Charge of God's Elect!" So the Lord Jefus calls them His Elect, Matt. 24. 30, 31. "They shall see the Son of Man coming "in the Clouds of Heaven, with Power and great "Glory; and He shall send his Angels with a " great Sound of a Trumpet, and they shall ga-"ther together his Elect." Of these he speaks to the Father, John 17. 10. " All Mine are "Thine, and Thine are Mine." Hence He tells His Disciples, John 15. 19. that He "had chosen "them out of the World," and John 13. 18. That He "knew whom He had chosen;" to which belongs the mention that is made in Rev. 21. 27. " Of them that are written in the Lamb's. " Book of Life."

These also He hath redeemed. The Great God glories in the Name of a Redeemer, Ifa. 44. 61 "Thus faith the Lord, the King of Israel, His "Redeemer, the Lord of Hosts." Now the Work of Redemption is in a peculiar Manner attributed to the Son of God, whom the Father " fent: " forth, made of a Woman, made under the Law. " to redeem them that were under the Law," Gah. 4. 4, 5. It would have bankrupted all the Creatures in Heaven and Earth, to have laid down A: Price sufficient for our Redemption, Pfal. 49, 7, 8. "None of them can by any Means redeem his "Brother, nor give to God a Ranfom for him; "for the Redemption of their Soul is precious,. "and it ceaseth for ever." But to our Lord Fesus. Christ belongs that praising Song, Rev. 5. 9. "Thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God. "by thy Blood, out of every Kindred, and "Tongue, and People, and Nation." He is the Redeemer, that was prophefied of, that He " thould: " come

" come to Zion," Ifa. 59. 20. As the Apostle applies that Text, Rom. 11. 26. And a more ancient Prophecy calls Him by that Name, and thereby declares his Deity, Job 19. 25, 26. "I "know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He " shall stand in the latter Day upon the Earth; " and though after my Skin, Worms deftroy this "Body, yet in my Flesh shall I see God," [his Redeemer, spoken of before, whom then "every "Eye shall see," Rev. 1. 7. and who is God, as He is here called, as well as Man,] "whom I " shall see for myself, and mine Eyes shall be-"hold." He that bought us with a Price, is to be glorified as God, 1 Cor. 6. 20. " Ye are bought "with a Price, therefore glorify God in your "Body, and in your Spirit, which are God's," viz. by that Price which he laid down to purchase them. And the dreadful and swift Destruction that comes on them, that deny the only Lord God our Saviour, is faid to be on this Account, that they "deny the Lord that bought them," 2 Pet. 2. 1.

IV. There are several Offices that our Lord Jesus Christ executes as our Redeemer, none of which could be performed in the Manner that He performs them, if He were not the most High God, or the Great God our Saviour, Tit. 2. 13.

1. He is the Great Prophet of his Church. There have been indeed other Prophets meer Men, who spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. But our Lord is sufficiently distinguished from them all: "Moses was faithful in all his House, "as a Servant; but Christ as a Son over his own "House," Heb. 3. 5, 6. It was the Spirit of our Lord Jesus Christ that spake by the Prophets, who are said, 1 Pet. 1. 11. "To search what, or

" what Manner of Time the Spirit of Christ in "them did fignify-" The Prophets and Apofles were commissioned, and sent by our Lord Fesus Christ, Luke 11. 49. "Therefore said the Wis-"dom of God," [meaning Himself, as is said, Matt. 23. 34.] "I will send them Prophets and "Apostles," &c. whom he also promised to qualify for their Work, Luke 21. 15. "I will give "you a Mouth and Wisdom, which all your "Adversaries shall not be able to gainfay, nor In I Cor. 12. 28. it is faid, that "God hath set some in his Church, first Apostles, "fecondarily Prophets, thirdly Teachers," &c. Now that He who is here called God, was our Lord Jesus Christ, appears from the same Thing faid of Him that "ascended up on High," &c. Eph. 4. 11. "He gave fome Apostles, some Pro-"phets, some Evangelists, and some Pastors and "Teachers:" Hente he is called the "Lord" "God of His holy Prophets," Rev. 22. 6. "The "Lord God of His holy Prophets fent his Angel," "to shew unto his Servants the Things that " must shortly be done:" Compare this with ver. 16. " I Jesus have sent mine Angel," &c. We may here further understand, that they who are called the "Angels of God," John 1. 51. are called by our Lord Jesus, His Angels, in the Place : before cited, Matt. 24. 30, 31. And we also find, that the Bleffed Jesus sends, not only Prophets and Apostles, but Angels also, on his Meffages.

And as our Lord fent his Prophets, Angels and Men, upon his Errands; so doth He distinguish His Predictions from theirs, in the same Manner as God under the Old Testament did. Thus the God of Israel saith, Isa: 43. 10, 12. "Ye shall know, and believe, and understand,

· that

"that I AM HE,—I have declared, and have "faved, and I have shewed." In like Manner the Lord Jesus speaks, John 13. 19. "Now I tell "you before it comes, that when it cometh to

" pass, ye may believe that I AM HE."

But besides His sending the Angels and the Prophets, we have higher Testimony of the Godhead of our Lord Jesus, by His sending the Holy Spirit, This was indeed the "Promise of the Father," Luke 24. 49. And "His glorious Work," John 14. 26. "The Comforter which is the Holy "Ghost, whom the Father will send in my "Name;" so is it also the Promise of our Lord Jesus Christ, Zech. 12. 10. "I will pour upon "the House of David, &c. the Spirit of Grace"—Which Text was shewed before to belong to Him, who was pierced for us. This was also His glorious Work, John 15. 26. "When the "Comforter is come, whom I will send unto you "from the Father—" And John 16. 7. "If I

"depart, I will fend Him unto you."

As our Saviour is intimately acquainted with the Counsel of the Father, touching our Salvation, in the Manner that no Creature can be; so doth He declare, and teach it in the Manner that no Creature can do, John 1. 18. "No Man hath "seen God at any Time, the only Begotten Son, "that is in the Bosom of the Father, He hath declared Him." Thus it is written in the Prophets, "they shall be all taught of God," John 6. 45. viz. by making the outward Teaching effectual to the Souls of Men; it is said of our Lord Jesus, that "He opened their Understand-"ings, that they might understand the Scriptures," Luke 24. 45. "He opened the Heart of Lydia, "that she attended to those Things which were spoken of Paul," Acts 16. 14. He enlightens the Mind, as the "Light of the World," John 8. 14. " I am the Light of the World, (faith He) " whofoever followeth Me-shall have the Light " of Life."

He enlivens the dead Souls, and " quickens " whom he will," John 5. 21. This giving Spiritual Life is thus described, ver. 25. " Verily, " verily, I fay unto you, The Hour is coming, " and now is, that the Dead shall hear the Voice " of the Son of God, and they that hear shall "live," (as his raising the dead Bodies is defcribed, ver. 28. as was noted before). Hence the Apostle saith, Gal. 2. 20. "I live, yet not I,

" but Christ liveth in me."

He makes the Will free to what is spiritually good, which is naturally in Bondage to Sin and Satan, John 8. 36. " If the Son make you free," "then ye shall be free indeed." He effectually draws Sinners to Himself, John 12. 32. " And "I, if I be lifted up from the Earth, will draw " all Men to Me:" He brings back his loft Sheep to the Fold, John 10. 16. " And other Sheep I' " have, that are not of this Fold, them also I " must bring, and they shall hear My Voice, and " they shall be one Fold, and one Shepherd."

In a Word, all Grace comes from Him, John 1. 17. "Grace and Truth comes by Jesus Christ:" So that He faith, John 15. 5. "Without me, ye " can do nothing:" But the Apofile faith of himfelf, Phil. 4. 13. "I can do all Things through "Christ, which strengtheneth me." "He is the " Author and Finisher of our Faith," Heb. 12. 2. Hence Application is made to Him, for the working this Grace, by the poor Man, Mark 9. 24. "Help, Lord, my Unbelief;" and by the Apoftles, in that Prayer, Luke 17. 5. "Increase our Faith." And as Strength, to Comfort is from Him, 2 Cor. 12. 9. "My Grace is sufficient for thee." John 14. 27. "Peace I leave with you, my Peace I give unto you." Matt. 11. 28. "Come unto Me, ye that labour, and are heavy laden, and

But not only doth He make his Doctrine effectual by the Power of his Grace and Spirit, but He confirmed it by His divine Works and Miracles. It is the Glory of the most High God, that " He " only doth wondrous Things," Pfal. 72. 18. When Creatures are enabled to do Wonders, or to work Miracles, it is for the Glory of God, and by His Power; but when our Lord fesus Christ wrought His Miracles, he did them to manifest His own Glory, John 2. 11. " This Beginning " of Miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and " manifested forth His Glory, and His Disciples " believed in Him." His Glory illustriously thined forth in these Works; and the Evangelist saith of himself, and his Fellow-Disciples, John 1. 14. "We beheld His Glory, the Glory as of the only "Begotten of the Father." And He did these Works by His own Power, Luke 6. 19. "There " went Virtue [or Power] out of Him, and healed " them all." When the Pharisees questioned His Power to do, what it was owned that God only can do; He proved His Power by one of these miraculous Works, Mark 2. 10, 11. " That ye " may know, that the Son of Man hath Power " on Earth to forgive Sins (He faith to the Sick of the Palfy) I fay unto thee, Take up thy "Bed, and go unto thy House." And indeed, His Manner of speaking in this and His other Miracles, shews His Authority. "He faid unto " the Sea, Peace, be still," Mark 4. 39. and to the dead Man, Luke 7. 14. " Young Man, I " fay unto thee, Arise." It.

It is true, the Apostles wrought Miracles; but it was our Lord Fesus Christ who sent them, that gave them the Power, Luke 10. 19. " Behold, "I give unto you Power to tread on Serpents " and Scorpions, and over all the Power of the "Enemy," Mark 16. 17. " In my Name shall "they cast out devils." And they fully declared, that what they did was not by their own Power or Virtue, but by the Power of Chrift, Acts 3. 12. "Why look ye so earnestly on us, as though "by our own Power, or Holiness, we had made "this Man to walk?" Ver. 16. "His Name, "through Faith in His Name, hath made this " Man strong, whom ye see and know; yea, the " Faith that is by Him, hath given Him this per-"fect Soundness in the presence of you all." And again, Acts 4. 10. "Be it known unto you" " all, and to all the People of Ifrael, that by the "Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, &c. even " by Him, doth this Man stand here before you "whole." So in another Place, Acts 9. 17. "Ananias faid, Brother Saul, the Lord, even "Jefus, that appeared unto thee by the Way as "thou camest, hath fent me, that thou mayest " receive thy Sight." And ver. 34. " Peter faid "unto him, Eneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee " whole."

Above All, He confirmed His Doctrine, and therewith His Deity, by His Resurrection, Rom. 1. 4. "He was declared to be the Son of God "with Power, according to the Spirit of Holi-"ness, by the Resurrection from the Dead;" in that He raised Himself from the Dead, by his own Divine Power, as He said, John 2. 19. "Destroy this Temple, [meaning His Body] and in three Days I will raise it up." So speaking of His Life, He said, John 10. 18. "I have Power

t.

"to lay it down, and have Power to take it again. This Commandment have I received

" from My Father."

2. He executed the Office of a Prieft, but fo as no one but He, who is God as well as Man, can do. His Type Melchizedek was mentioned before, Heb. 7. 3. " Without Father, without " Mother, without Beginning of Days, or End " of Life, but made like unto the Son of God, "abideth a Priest continually." Here lay the Value of his Blood, that He was God as well as Man, that shed it: So we read, Acts 20. 28. " Of the Church of God, which He hath pur-"chased with His own Blood." Therefore it is faid, Heb. 9. 14. " that through the eternal " Spirit, He offered up Himself to God without "Spot," i. e. by the Power of His Divine Nature, He offered up His human Soul and Body a Sacrifice, from whence the Dignity thereof proceeded, and the Benefits thereby; that " in Him "we have Redemption through His Blood, the "Forgiveness of Sins," Eph. 1. 7.

The most high God claims this as his Prerogative, to forgive Sins, Isa. 43. 25. "I, even I am "He, that blotteth out your Transgressions for "mine own Sake." The Jews were right in their Doctrine, that none could forgive Sins but God only, though they were mistaken in the Person that they speak of, Mark 2. 7. they said, "Why doth this Man speak Blasphemy? Who can forgive Sins, but God only?" Our Lord Jesus immediately proved by Miracle, as was noted before, that He had Power to forgive Sins; and therefore that He did not blaspheme, when He thereby claimed the Honour and Power that belongs to God only. The same Power He elsewhere exercised, Luke 7. 48. "He said unto Her, Thy

"Sins are forgiven thee." And the Apostle ascribes this Power to Him, when he requires us to forgive the Wrongs that any do to us, Col. 3.

13. "As Christ also forgave you, so also do ye."

St. Paul expressly affirms, Rom. 8. 33. That it is God that justifies: And the Father Himfelf declares of our Lord Jesus Christ, Isa. 53. 11. By His Knowledge shall my Righteous Servant justify many. And the Prophet speaks of Him, as hath been proved before, when He saith, Isa. 45. 25. "In the Lord shall all the Seed of

" Ifrael be justified."

And as to justify, so to fanctify, is the Work of the Great God, Levit. 20. 8. "I am the Lord "that fanctify you." Now in Mal. 3. 1-3. it is faid of our Lord, "The Messenger of the "Covenant, that was fuddenly to come to His "Temple;" that "He should purify the Sons of "Levi, and purge them as Gold and Silver, that " they might offer unto the Lord an Offering in "Righteousness." And it is said by the Apostle, Eph. 5. 25, 26. " Christ loved His Church, and "gave Himself for it; that He might sanctify "and cleanse it, with the washing of Water, by "the Word." And again he speaks, Tit. 2. 13, 14. " Of the Great God, and our Saviour " Jesus Christ, who gave Himself for us, that He " might redeem us from all Iniquity, and purify "unto Himself a peculiar People, zealous of good "Works." To the same Purpose we read, Heb. 13. 12. " Jesus, that He might fanctify His "People with his own Blood, suffered without "the Gate." And hence in the same Place, where the Glory of His Person is described, that He is the " Brightness of His Father's Glory, "and the express Image of His Person," from whence the Dignity of His Priefthood proceeded; it it is immediately added, Heb. 1. 3. That "He by Himself purged our Sins, and is set down," &c.

3. He is moreover the King of his Church, and fuch a King, as none can be, but He that thus fpeaks of Himself, Fer. 46. 18. " Thus saith the "King, whose Name is the Lord of Hosts." Our Lord Jesus Christ is " King of kings." Rev. 17. 14. " The Lamb shall overcome them, for "He is Lord of lords, and King of kings." And Rev. 19. 16. " He hath on His Vesture, " and on His Thigh, a Name written, King of "kings, and Lord of lords." He is the King of Israel, to whom they cried, Hosanna! when the Prophecy was fulfilled in Zech. q. q. " Re-"joice, O Daughter of Zion; behold, thy King cometh, He is Just, having Salvation," &c. He is the true Melchizedek, which is by Interpretation, King of Righteousness! and after that, King of Salem, which is King of Peace; which is much like the Name given Him by the Prophet, Ifa. 9. 6. " The Everlafting Father, The Prince " of Peace." The same Prophet " saw Him on His "Throne, high, and lifted up-" Isa. 6. 2. which is called "His Glory," John 12. 41. Glorious is the Description of His Kingdom, and Kingly Dignity, in Pfal. 45. which is faid, ver. 1. to be "a Song made touching the King;" there we read of the Throne and Scepter which belongs to Him, as being truly God, ver. 6. "Thy Throne "O God, is for ever and ever; a Scepter of " Righteousness is the Scepter of thy Kingdom." This and a great deal more, of the Glory of His Kingdom, belongs to our Lord Jesus Christ, as the Apostle tell us, Heb. 1. 7, 8. "Unto the Son " he faith, Thy Throne, O God, is for ever " and ever."

Whereas therefore in one Place, there is mention made of His delivering up his Kingdom, I Cor. 15. 24. "Then cometh the End, when "he shall have delivered up the Kingdom to "God, even the Father,"-it must be understood, either of his delivering up the Subjects of His Kingdom, and prefenting them to the Father; or else with respect to the present Manner of the Administration of his Kingdom in this World, which must needs cease, because there will be then no more Subjects to be brought in, nor Enemies to be subdued: But that His Throne shall be for ever and ever, is plainly said of one like the Son of Man, that came with the Clouds of Heaven. Dan. 7. 13, 14. "His Dominion is an everlasting "Dominion, which shall not pass away; and " His Kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." " And the Angel said, Luke 1. 33. He shall reign "over the House of Jacob for ever, and of His "Kingdom there shall be no End."

It is true, as Man, or as Mediator, this Power is given Him by the Father, as He faith, Matt. 28. 18. "All Power is given unto Me in Heaven "and Earth;" but it must be upon the Account of the Fulness of the Godhead that dwelt in His human Nature, without which he had not been capable of all Power in Heaven and Earth; and there are many Places that speak of the Kingdom and Reign of the Messiah in the Gospel-days, that evidently shew Him to be the Lord Jehovah, God and King, Ifa. 24. 23. "The Lord of Hofts "fhall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his Ancients gloriously." Obadiah ends his Prophecy thus, ver. 21. "The King-"dom shall be the Lord's." Mic. 4. 7. "The "Lord shall reign over them in Mount Zion, "from henceforth even for ever." The Apostle faith, 1 Cor. 15, 25. "He must reign till He "hath put all Lnemies under His Feet." And he Himself will fay, Luke 1 .. 27. " Those mine "Enemies, which would not that I should reign " over them, bring hither, and flay them before " Me." And the Church is brought in triumphing in God her Saviour the King of Zion, Rev. 11. 16, 17. " The four and twenty Elders which " fat before God on their Seats, fell upon their "Faces, and worshipped God, saying, We give "Thee Thanks, O LORD GOD ALMIGHTY, " which art, and wast, and art to come; because a thou haft taken to Thee thy great Power, and " hast reigned." And Rev. 19. 6. " I heard-" the Voice of mighty Thunderings, faying, "Allelujah: For the Lond God Omnipotent

None but God can be the Lawgiver of his Church, that can give Laws immediately to bind the Consciences of Men, James 4. 12. "There " is one Lawgiver, who is able to fave, and to " destroy." Now this Prerogative belongs to our Lord Jesus Christ. The Heaters of the Sermon on the Mount did perceive, that "He taught " them as one having Authority," Matt. 7. 29. For thus His Laws are expressed, Matt. 5. 34: " I fay unto you, Swear not at all;" v. 44. "I " fay unto you, Love your Enemies;" and foin the rest. The Prophets said, " Thus faith the "LORD;" and our LORD faid, "Thus fay 1," John 13. 34. " A new Commandment I give " unto you." John 15. 17. " These Things I command you," &c. And it will appear in what follows in this Discourse, that He requires Obedience to whatfoever he commands; and therefore the Apostle faith; Gal. 6. 2. " Bear ye one another's Burdens, and so fulfil the Law of None " Christ."

None but God can subdue the Hearts of His Subjects, and "make them willing in the Day of " His Power," Pfal. 110. 3. and destroy all His proud Enemies, as is further faid, ver. 5. " The "Lord at Thy Right Hand shall strike through "Kings in the Day of His Wrath." Pfal. ii. 9. "Thou shalt break them with a Rod of Iron, " and dash them in pieces like a Potter's Vessel." The same is said of Him, Rev. 2. 27. On this Account it is faid, Rev. 19. 13. " He was clothed "in a vesture dipped in Blood, and his Name is " called, The WORD OF GOD." And this is what is gloriously described, Isa. 63. 1-3. "Who is "this that cometh from Edom, with dyed Gar-"ments from Bozrah? This that is glorious in "his Apparel, travelling in the Greatness of his "Strength? I that speak in Righteousness, mighty " to fave. Wherefore art thou red in thy Appa-"rel, and thy Garments like Him that treadeth "in the Winefat? I have trodden the Wine-" press alone, and of the People there was none "with me: I will tread them in mine Anger, " and trample them in my Fury, and their Blood " shall be sprinkled upon my Garments, and I " will stain all my Raiment."

Above all, his Royal Gifts and Rewards to His obedient Subjects, thew His God-bead and Majesty, Eph. 4. 8. "When He ascended on High, "He led Captivity captive, and gave Gists to "Men." The grant and privilege of being the adopted Children of God, is of His bestowing, John 1. 12. "To as many as received Him, to "them gave He Power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His "Name." The great "Gist of God is eternal "Life," Rom. 6. 23. And that this is the Gist bestowed by our Lord Jesus Christ, is frequently affirmed, John 6. 33." The Bread of God is He "that came down from Heaven, and giveth Life "unto the World." John 10. 28. "I give unto "them eternal Life, and they shall never perish, "neither shall any pluck them out of my Hand." He is so great a King, as to give even Crowns to His Subjects, Rev. 2. 10. "Be thou faithful "unto Death, and I will give thee a Crown of "Life." Thus we find him speaking to His Father, John 17. 24. "Father, I will that they "also, whom Thou hast given Me, be with Me "where I am."

Moses tells the People of Israel, Deut. 10. 17. "The Lord your God is God of gods, and Lord "of lords; and under that Name is He praised." Psal. 136. 3. "O give Thanks unto the Lord "of Lords: For His Mercy endureth for ever." Now this Title is ascribed to our Lord Jesus Christ, and joined with that of King of Kings, in the beforementioned Places; and in I Tim. 6. 14. 15. where we read of the "Appearing of our "Lord Jesus Christ; which in His Times, He "shall shew, who is the blessed and only Poten-"tentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords."

We are affured, there is but one Lord, Eph. 4. 5. "One Lord, one Faith, one Baptism;" and we are plainly told who that one Lord is, I Cor. 8. 6. "And one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom "are all Things, and we by Him." This plainly shews us, that our Saviour Jesus Christ is one with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, or else there would be Lords many, which is the Doctrine of the Heathen, that is mentioned just before, ver. 5. and which the Apostle doth there consute. As we have but one Father, so but one Master, Matt. 23. 9, 10. "One is your Father, which is in Hea-"ven—and one is your Master, even Christ;"

as He faith again, John 13. 13. "Ye call Me "Master and Lord, and ye say well, for so I "am;" and St. Peter saith, Acts 10. 36. "He is "Lord of all."

The Name LORD, answering to JEHOVAH in the Old Testament, is the constant Appellation of our bleffed Saviour throughout the New Testament. In the Story of St. Paul's Conversion, we read feveral Times of the Lord's speaking to Saul, and to Ananias, Acts 9. 15. "And the Lord faid "unto him, Go thy Way, for he is a chosen "Vessel—" which is repeated thus in another Place, Acts 22. 14. that he [Ananias] faid, "The "God of thy Fathers hath chosen thee,"-and the whole is explained by the fame Person, Acts "The Lord, even Jesus, that appeared "unto thee in the Way as thou cameft, hath " fent me."-We find Him emphatically called by the Angel, " Christ the Lord," Luke 2. 11. Thus He is styled by the Parents of John the Baptift; one of them speaking to the Bleffed Virgin, faith, Luke 1. 43. "Whence is this to me, that "the Mother of my Lord should come to me?" And the other speaking by prophetical Inspiration to his Son, calls our Saviour, not only the Lord, but the Highest, or the most High, ver. 76. " Thou "Child, shalt be called the Propnet of the "Highest, for thou shalt go before the Face of "the Lord, to prepare His Way." Thus is He called by the Baptist Himself, John 1. 23. "I am "the Voice of one crying, make straight the Way "of the Lord." And this was the fulfilling of what the Lord had said of Himself, Mal. 3. 1. "Behold I will fend My Messenger, and he " shall prepare the Way before Me: And the "Lord whom ye feek, shall suddenly come to "His Temple, even the Messenger of the Cove-" nant

" nant, whom ye delight in; behold, He hall

Thus confessing our blessed Saviour to be the Lord, is for the Honour of the Father, Phil. 2. 11. 46 And every Tongue shall confess, that Jesus is " the Lord, to the Glory of God the Father." This was done by the Prophet Daniel, in that remarkable Passage, Dan. 9. 17. "O our God, "Hear the Prayer of thy Servant, and his Suppli-cation, and cause thy Face to shine upon thy "Sanctuary, which is defolate, for the Lord's " Sake." Thus of old, " David in Spirit called "Him Lord," faying, Pfal. 110. 1. "The Lord " faid unto my Lord, Sit Thou on My Right-" hand;" which was that which puzzled the Pharifees, when Fesus asked them, Matt. 22. 45. " If David call Him Lord, how is He his Son?" But this is very intelligible to them, who know Him to be both God and Man; with respect to which two Natures, He calls Himself, Rev. 22. 16. both " the Root and the Offspring of David:" From Christ as God, David had his Being; from David, as Man, Christ sprang.

The Psalmist asks the Question, Psal. 24. 10, "Who is the king of Glory?" and answers it, "The Lord of Hosts, He is the King of Glory;" which Title is given to Christ, when the Apostle, speaking of the Ignorance the great Men were in of the Wisdom of God, saith, I Cor. 2. 8. "Had "they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of Glory." And we may observe, that the Name of Lord and God are frequently used for the same, Rom. 14. 6. "He that eateth, "eateth to the Lord; for he giveth God Thanks." And ver. 11. "As I live, saith the Lord, every "Knee shall bow to Me, and every Tongue shall "confess to God." Hence that noble Confession of the Apostle, cited before, John 20. 28. "And "Thomas answered, and said unto Him, My "Lord and my God."

V. The incommunicable Adoration and Worship, that belongs to the most High God, is given and paid, according to the Orders and Examples, that we find in the Holy Scriptures, to our Lord Jesus Christ.

Divine Worship is due to God alone from Angels and Men, Matt. 4. 10. "Thou shalt worship "the Lord thy God, and Him only shilt thou "serve." The Idolatry of the Heathens was, Gal. 4. 8. that "they did Service to them that by Nature are no Gods." This divine Worship is to be paid to our Lord Jesus Christ by all capable Creatures in every Place, Phil. 2. 10. "That at the Name of Jesus, every Knee should bow, of Things in Heaven, and Things on

" Earth, and Things under the Earth."

The Angels, to be fure, will only worship the most high God, Neh. 9. 6. "Thou, even Thou "art God alone, - And the Host of Heaven "worshippeth Thee:" All which Host are required to pay this Worship to our Lord Fesus Christ, Heb. 1. 6. " And again, when He bringeth in the First-begotten into the World, "He faith, Let all the Angels of God worship "Him." Which, if the first coming of our Lord nto the World be there meant, may perhaps reer to the Worship paid Him by the Angels, when t is faid, Luke 2. 13, 14. " There was with the Angel a Multitude of the Heavenly Hoft, ' praising God, and faying, Glory be to God in the Highest, Peace on Earth, good Will to-wards Men." Much such a Song the Disciples arnt, when they cried out, Luke 19. 38. " Bleffed

Bleffed be the King, that cometh in the Name " of the Lord, Peace in Heaven, and Glory in the Highest."

In that glorious Appearance of our Lord, spoken of feveral Times before, Ifa. 6. 1. " I faw the "Lord fitting upon a Throne."-There follows the Adoration given by the Angels, ver. 2. 3. "About it stood the Seraphims, each one with " fix Wings, with twain He covered His Face," &c. " And one cried unto another, and faid, " Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord of Hofts, the "whole Earth is full of his Glory." So in the New Testament, the Angels are represented as adoring Him, and the Church below, as joining with them, Rev. 5. 11-13. "And I belield, "and heard the Voice of many Angels round " about the Throne, and the Beafts, and the " Elders and the Number of them was ten "Thousand Times ten Thousand, and Thou-" fands of Thousands; saying with a loud Voice, "Worthy is the Lamb that was flain, to receive es Power, and Riches, and Wisdom, and Strength, " and Honour, and Glory, and Bleffing. And " every Creature, which is in Heaven, and on "the Earth, and under the Earth, and fuch s es are in the Sea, and all that are in them, heard 46 I faying, Bleffing and Honour, and Glory, and Power, be unto Him that fitteth upon the "Throne, and to the Lamb for ever and ever." "Thus all Things are not only made by Him, but for Him, Col. 1. 16. namely, for His Honour, and Glory, and Praise.

And for the Children of Men, what Honour they give to the Father, they are to give the Son, John v. 23. " That all Men should honour the Son, even as they honour the Father: He that "honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the "Father that hath fent Him." So we are told, I John 2. 23. " Whosoever denieth the "Son, the same hath not the Father; but he "that acknowledgeth the Son, hath the Father " also." From hence we are fure, that the Son must be One with the Father; for the Great God faith, Ifa. 42. 8. "I am the Lord, that is My "Name, and my Glory will I not give to "another." As the Godhead of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoft, is all one, fo is "the Glory equal, and Majefty coeternal :" therefore the Apottle faith, I John 2. 22. " He is " Antichrist that denieth the Father and the Son; for though He doth not fimply deny the Father to be God, and that Worship is due to Him; yet by denving the Son to be of one Substance with the Father, he doth by consequence deny the Father: For he cannot be a Father properly, who hath not a Son of the fame Nature with Him; therefore we have those solemn Commands given forth Pfal. 2. 12. " Kiss the Son, lest He be angry, "and ye perish from the Way."-Pfal. 45. 11. "He is thy Lord, and worship thou Him."

This Worship, due only to the most High God, and given to our Lord Jesus Christ, is both in-

1. There is given to Him internal Worship, in the Actings of those Graces in which Adoration doth confift. To the right Worship of God must go a faving Knowledge of Him, John 17. 3. "This is Life eternal, that they might know "Thee, the only true God;" which Words a e spoken of the Father: and the same Words, as to the Sense of them, are spoken of the Son, I John 5. 20. " And we know that the Son of God is "come, and hath given us an Understanding, "that we may know Him that is true; and we " are in Him that is true, even in his Son Jefus Christ ; ec Christ; this is the true God, and eternal Life;" the knowing of the Father and of the Son being the knowing of one and the fame true God, or the "Knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face " of Jesus Christ," 2 Cor. 4. 6. Therefore he tells the Jews, John 8. 19. "Ye neither know " Me, nor My Father; if ye had known Me, " ye should have known My Father also." The fame Thing He tells His Disciples, John 14. 7-9. "If ye had known Me, ye should have "known My Father also; and from henceforth e ye have known Him, and have feen Him. " Philip faith unto Him, Lord, shew us the Fa-" tner, and it sufficeth us. Jesus faith unto him, " Have I been so long with you, and yet hast "thou not known Me, Philip? He that hath " feen Me, hath feen the Father; and how favelt "thou then, Shew us the Father?" In this Knowledge we must live and grow, - 2 Pet. 3. 18. "Grow in Grace, and in the Knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, to Him be "Glory, both now and for ever. Amen. There being nothing in the World comparable to it Phil. 3. 8. " Yea doubtleft, and I count all "Things but Lofs, for the Excellency of the " Knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord."

which our Lord claims in Equality with the Father, John 14. 1. "Let not your Hearts be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in Me." Such being the effential Union of the Father and the Son, that whosoever doth believe aright in the one, doth also believe in the other; as our Lord saith, John 12. 44. "He that believeth on Me, believeth not on Me," that is, not only in Me, but on Him that sent Me." The Apostle refers to the Old Testament-Prophecy, Rom. 10.

11. "The Scripture faith, He that believeth on " Him, shall not be ashamed." But the New Testament abounds with Proofs, there being above forty Places in the Gospel only of St. John, wherein Mention is made of believing in, or on Him; amongst which, divers of them tell us, that "whofoever believeth on Him, shall not perish, " but have everlasting Life," John 3. 15, 16. The Direction which the Apostle gives to the Jailor, what he should do to be faved, was this, Acts 16. 31. " Believe on the Lord Jefus Chrift, and thou " shalt be faved, and thy House;" and this is called believing in God, ver. 34. "He rejoiced, " believing in God with all his House." Some, that have owned the Doctrine of the Athanasian Creed, seemed to have disliked the damnatory Sentences therein, which yet appear to be nothing more than what we read, John 3. 18. "He that " believeth not, is condemned already, because he "hath not believed in the Name of the only begotten Son of God." And ver. 36. " He that " believeth not the Son, shall not fee Life, but "the Wrath of God abideth on him."

Nearly allied to Faith, is Hope and Trust, which the Apostle tells us, must be in the living God, 1 Tim. 6. 17. and there is a Curse on him that doth misplace it, Jer. 17. 5. "Cursed is the Man "that trusteth in Man," &c. But on the contrary, there is a Blessing pronounced on them that trust in the Son of God, Psal. 2. 12. "Kiss "the Son, lest He be angry, and ye perish from "the Way; if his Wrath be kindled but a little, "blessed are all they that put their trust in Him." To this agrees the Prophecy, Isa. 11. 10. as we find it quoted by the Apostle, Rom. 15. 12. "There shall be a Root of Jesse, and He that "shall rise, to reign over the Gentiles, in Him D 3

"Truth." Our Lord Jesus Christ therefore is called our Hope, 1 Tim. 1. 1. as being both the Author and Object of it; and this Hope is not only as to this present Life; for faith the Apostle, 1 Cor. 15. 19. "If in this Life only we have "Hope in Christ, we are of all Men most miser- "able."

Supreme and superlative Love is to be given to the only Lord God, as it is faid, Mark 12. 29, 30. "The first of all the Commandments is, Hear, " O Ifrael, the Lord our God is one Lord;" and, 45 Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all " thy Heart, and with all thy Soul," &cc. This Love therefore being the Sum of the first Table of the Commandments, our Lord tells us, John 14. 21. "He that hath My Commandments, and keepeth " them, he it is that loveth Me; and He that so loveth Me, shall be loved of my Father, &c." This Love to our Lord Jefus Christ is not only required to be superlative, above what is due to the dearest Relations, Matt. 10. 37. " He that loveth Father or Mother, Son or Daughter, more than " Me, is not worthy of Me;" but all others are to be hated in Comparison of Him, Luke 14. 20. "If any Man come to Me, and hate not his Father, and Mother, and Wife, and Children, " and Brethren, and Sifters, yea, and his own Life " alfo, he cannot be My Disciple." And the loving or hating Him, is spoken of as the same with the loving or hating of the Father, John 15. 23. 24 " He that hateth Me, hateth my Father alfo. 46 -NOW

This Love, in Conjunction with Fear, makes upthat Reverence that God demands for His Son, Mark 12. 6. "Having yet therefore one Son, "His well-beloved, He fent Him also unto them, "faying, They will reverence My Son." We had the Command before, "Kiss the Son, left "He be angry."—And in the-Verse preceding, it is thus, Psal. 2. 11. "Serve the Lord with

" Fear, and rejoice with trembling."

Now

The rejoicing and glorying in God is also a Part of this internal Worthip of God, Ifa. 41. 16. "Thou shalt rejoice in the Lord, and glory in "the holy One of Ifrael." This is demanded for our Lord Jesus Christ, as the Lord to whom every-Knee must bow, in the Place already cited, where it is further faid, " In the Lord shall all the Seed " of Israel be justified, and shall glory," Isa. 45. True Believers are therefore described as "they that worship God in the Spirit, and re-"joice in Christ Jesus," Phil. 3. 3. As did the bleffed Virgin, who begins her Song thus, Luke 1. 46, 47. " My Soul doth magnify the Lord, and "my Spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour." And we have the Apostle's solemn Words, Gal. 6. 14. "God forbid that I should glory, save in the "Crofs of our Lord Jefus Christ;" namely, in Jefus Chrift, and Him crucified. These are the inward Acts of Worship, which belong to our Lord Jefus Chrift.

2. There is also given to Him external Worship: When the Lord, in the second Commandment, forbids the bowing down to Images, Exod. 20. 5. the Meaning is, that we must bow down to Him. Pfal. 95. 6. "O come let us worship, and bow "down, and kneel before the Lord our Maker." Now the folemn Oath has been feveral Times mentioned as belonging to our Lord Jesus Christ, Rom. 14. 11. " As I live, faith the Lord, every "Knee shall bow to Me." And Phil. 2. 10. " At the Name of Jesus every Knee shall bow, of Things in Heaven," &c. Such Expressions of Divine Worship are not to be paid to the highest Creatures; We find them accordingly refused by the Angel, Rev. 19. 10. " I fell at his Feet to wor-" ship Him," [meaning a created Angel, that appeared to Him] " and he faid unto Me, See thou "do it not; I am thy Fellow-servant, and of thy "Brethren, which have the Testimony of Jesus; " worship God." It may reasonably be supposed, that the Ground of this Mistake, when St. John made this Attempt to worship the Angel, was, that He thought Him to be the Lord Jesus, who had formerly appeared unto Him, and at whose Feet He fell, Rev. 1. 17. And upon the fame Mistake he offered again to worship the Angel, Rev. 22. 9. (which the Lord Jesus had fent to him, ver. 16.) and was refused, as before, in much the same Words. We find the Apostle also refusing such Tokens or Expressions of Worthip, Acts 10. 25, 26. " Cornelius met him, and fell "down at his Feet, and worshipped Him; but 66 Peter said, Stand up, for I myself also am 1 " Man." But now this external Worship, of outward Tokens of it, were continually given to our Lord Fesus Christ, and as constantly received by Him. For not only did the Wife Men give it to Him in His Infancy, Matt. 2. 11. " They faw "the young Child, and Mary His Mother, and ce fell

" fell down, and worshipped Him;" but afterwards we find it expressed of almost all that came to Him, in any ferious Manner, that they fell down, and worshipped Him; so did the Leper, Matt. 8. 2. The Ruler, Matt. 9. 18. The Persons in the Ship, Matt. 14. 33. The Woman of Canaan, The Man that was born blind had Matt. 15. 25. a particular Discovery made to him, that our Lord Tefus Christ was the Son of God, in whom he was to believe, and upon that Discovery gave Himthis Worship; for being examined, whether he did believe on the Son of God; and being informed, that the Person who spake to him, and who had before cured him of his Blindness, was He; we are told, John 9. 38. that "he faid Lord, I be-"lieve," and he worshipped Him. But especially this Worship was given Him in a folemn Manner, after His Resurrection; by the Women, Matt. 28. 9. who " held Him by the Feet, and "worshipped Him;" and by that great Affembly at Galilee, ver. 17. "When they faw Him, they " worshipped Him." And at His Ascension, Luke 24. 52. "They worshipped Him, and returned; " to Jerusalem with great Joy."

This open Acknowledgment of the Deity of our Lord Jesus Christ, is in the whole Conversation of a Christian, as well as in the Ordinances of his more immediate Worship.

In our whole Conversation, we are to pay Obedience and Service to the most High God, Matt. 4.

10. "Him only shalt thou serve." Now to our Lord Jesus Christ belong the Prophecies, Dan. 7.

27. "All Dominions shall serve and obey Him," Psal. 72. 11. "Yea, all Kings shall fall down before Him, all Nations shall serve Him;" hence
He is said to have "become the Author of eternal "Salvation to all them that obey Him," Heb. 5.

q. The very Hearts and Thoughts of Men are to be brought under His Obedience, 2 Cor. 10 3. " Casting down Imaginations, and every Thing "that exalteth itself against the Knowledge of "God; and bringing into Captivity every Thought " to the Obedience of Christ." Without this Obedience, in vain do we compliment Him with the Title of Lord, Luke 6. 46. "Why call ye " Me Lord, Lord, and do not the Things that I " fay?" This Obedience endears His People to Him, John 15. 14. "Ye are My Friends, if ye "do whatfoever I command you;" and to His Father, John 12. 26 .- " If any Man ferve Me, "Him will my Father honour." This enables the meanest Persons, such as the Servants were, to whom the Apostle writes, Col. 3. 24 that " they " ferve the Lord Chrift;" and all are required to fubmit to His Yoke, as he faith, Matt. 11. 29, 30. " Take my Yoke upon you-For My Yoke " is eafy, and My Burden is light."

As to the Ordinances of His Worship, it is one of the necessary Requisites to the Sacraments, that they be ordained by Christ Himself. We are at first devoted to our Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, in the same Manner as to the Father. In Matt. 28. 19. the Apostles are ordered to "go and "teach all Nations, baptizing them in the Name" of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy "Ghost." And although in this Institution of Baptism, the Godhead of all the Three glorious Persons is expressly and equally owned; yet in other Places, the Lord Jesus is more particularly named, Acts 8. 16. "They were baptized in the Name 4" of the Lord Jesus;" and the same Words we

Two chief Acts of Worship go through the seseveral Ordinances, namely, Thanksgiving and Prayer.

Praise and Thanksgiving is peculiarly claimed, as due to the most High God; Pfal. 148. 13. " Let "them praise the Name of the Lord, for His "Name alone is excellent."-Now how the holy Angels exalt the Name of our Lord Jefus Christ, in their praifing Song, we had before, in Rev. 5. 11-13. And again they fing, Rev. 7. 10. "Sal-" vation to our God, that fifteth upon the Throne, "and to the Lamb." And for the Children of Men, how they shall praise Him, the Pfalmift faith, Pfal. 72. 15, 17. " He fall live, and unto Him " shall be given of the Gold of Sheba, Prayer also " shall be made for Him, [for the coming of His " Kingdom] and daily shall He be praised. " Name shall endure for ever, His Name shall be "continued, as long as the Sun; and Men shall "be bleffed in Him, all Nations shall call Him "bleffed." Accordingly we find all Glory, Honour and Praise ascribed unto Him, Rev. 1. 5, 6. "Unto Him that loved us, and washed us from "our Sins in His own Blood, and hath made us "Kings and Priefts unto God, and His Father; "to Him be Glory and Dominion, for ever and "ever. Amen." Such Doxologies we meet with at the End, or towards the Close of several of the Epiffles. That in 2 Pet. 3. 18. was recited before; so in Jude 25. "To the only wife God "our Saviour, be Glory, and Majesty, Dominion "and Power, both now and for ever. Amen." 1 Tim. 6. 16. "To whom be Honour and Power "everlasting. Amen." This Glory is ascribed to the Lord Jesus Christ in Equality with the Father, according to what he Himself saith, John 17. 10. " All Mine are Thine, and Thine are "Mine, and I am glorified in them." Supplication and Prayer is only belonging to Him, to whom our Faith and Trust belong; according as the Apostle cites the Prophecy, Rom. 10. 13. "Whosoever shall call upon the Name "of the Lord shall be saved;" upon which he adds, ver. 14. "How then shall they call on Him, "on whom they have not believed?" For this is the Character of all the Faithful, to whom the Apostle writes, I Cor. 1. 2. "To all that call "upon the Name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours." Thus we find them elsewhere described. Acts 0. 14. 21.

where described, Acts 9. 14, 21.

Sometimes our Lord Jesus Christ is joined with the Father, in the solemn Supplications of His People, 1 Thess. 3. 11, 12. "Now God Himsels, "and our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, direct our Way unto you; and the Lord make you to increase and abound in Love," &c. 2 Thess. 2. 16, 17. "Now our Lord Jesus Christ Himself, and God even our Father, which hath loved us, and given us everlasting Consolation, and good Hope through Grace, comfort your Hearts and establish you in every good Word and Work."

Sometimes also Prayer is made to Him, without naming the Father: This was He to whom our Father Jacob prayed, Gen. 48. 16. "The Angel that redeemed me from all Evil, bless the Lads;" and the dying Prayer which the first Martyr is said to make to God, was directed to Him, Acts 7. 59. "They stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my "Spirit." 2 Thess. 3. 16. "Now the Lord of Peace Himself give you Peace always by all "Means: The Lord be with you all." There are eight or nine of the apostolical Epistles, that begin with Petitions to our Lord Jesus Christ, Rom. 1. 7. "Grace to you, and Peace from God "our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ."

And fo in the reft. And the Epiffles of St. Paul do generally end with fuch like Prayers to Him. namely, two of the Epiftles to fingle Persons, as 2 Tim. 4. 22. " The Lord Jesus Chrift be with thy "Spirit,"-And in Philem. ver. 25. "The Grace " of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your Spirit;" and all the Epistles, that were written to whole Churches. In one indeed, all the Three glorious Persons are prayed to, 2 Cor. 13. 14. "The "Grace of our Lord Jefus Christ, and the Love " of God, and the communion of the Holy "Ghost, be with you all." In the rest, there is only Mention made of our Lord Jesus in his Supplication; this is done twice in the same Words in one of them, Rom. 16. 20. and 24. And this is made the fign by which his Epistles might be known by the Churches; "Which (faith he) is "my Token in every Epistle; so I write, The "Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. " Amen," 2 Theff. 3. 17, 18. Yet was not the Form of Words peculiar to this Apostle; for, in the Revelation of St. John the Divine, (which Title is thought to be given to him for his fo expressly treating of the Divine Nature of our Saviour) after that the Belowed Disciple had mentioned that Prayer of the Church to our Lord for his speedy coming, Rev. 22. 20. " Amen, even fo, come, Lord Je-"fus." He shuts up the whole Canon of Holy Scripture with the same Prayer and Bleffing, ver. 21. " The Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be "with you all. Amen."

ST PAUL's

OPINION, &c.

My OLD FRIEND,

AM much furprized and concerned at the great revolution which hath taken place in your religious creed; I am inormed you undeify our bleffed Redeemer, nd are metamorphofed into an Arian or ocinian, which of the two report doth not etermine. What bath perverted you from olding fast that true faith which was devered to faints, and which you have hiherto professed as a member of our estalished Church ? What wonderful demonration have you met with, of force fuffient to beat down the authority of Prohets, Evangelists, and Apostles? I fear ou have unwarily fuffered yourselves to be cluded by the artful reasonings of vain pen, wife in their own conceits, who will ot fubmit their understandings to the obeence of faith, nor believe any revealed uth but what is agreeable to their own ason: and forger that the holy scriptures A 2 tell tell us, that the natural man, or carnal reafon, receiveth not the things of the Spirit of Gop, neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned: but let your departure from the faith be owing to what cause it may, it grieves me to the heart; and I should not act the part of a friend if I did not exert my best, though weak, endeavours to convince you of your very dangerous error. As this strange alteration in your creed is recent and of late date, I hope you are not so firmly riveted in your new fystem as not to remain oper to conviction, and that you will, upon a review of the argument, return to a better mind. Many excellent treatifes have been published on this subject, which, in my opinion, afford a satisfaction little short of a mathematical demonstration, to which I might refer you; but, as a proof of my fincere friendship, I beg leave to submit to your serious perusal the following Essay, consisting for the most part of extracts, (arranged in my own method) from a pamphlet published about forty years ago, entitled, Two Letters to a very eminent and learned Gentleman, attempting to subvert the Doctrine of the Arians, by a Country Gentleman. The author, I have been told, was a layman, and confequently under no professional obligation to support a fystem: perhaps his plain and familiar way of treating this argument may carry with it greater conviction than other more elaborate performances. But though my author shews that Moses and the Prophets, the Evangelists and Apostles, uniformly bear witness to the divine nature of Jesus CHRIST, yet what I chiefly purpose to lay before you is the evidence he adduces from the epiftles of St Paul, and also from the peculiarity of his call to the office of an Apostle, occasionally inserting such observations and additional texts as the subject fuggested to me: and I the rather choose to confine my argument chiefly to the teftimony of St Paul, because you have ever been a professed admirer of him, as an acuse reasoner, a clear writer, a pathetic speaker, and a zealous indefatigable champion of the Christian faith. If you have not changed your fentiments of this great Apostle, but do still believe him to have been divinely inspired, and commissioned to preach the Gospel, you can have no reasonable objection to embrace, and die in that faith, which he taught, and doth still teach in his discourses and writings, is to wham most

The question before us, is, What was St Paul's opinion of JESUS CHRIST? Which is a matter of fact, and therefore to be proved, not by the logic or philosophy of the schools, but by evidence,—the evidence of the great Apostle himself.

Now, Sir, St Paul tells us, as it is recorded in Alls xx. 27, that "he hath not " fhunned to declare unto us the whole coun-" fel of Gop:" and we can defire no more. To know what that was, we must recur to his epiftles, and fee there what he hath delivered concerning it. This is a better way to get information and farisfaction, than from all the debates and friving about words among men, who have many devices in their hearts; but the counsel of the LORD (which St Paul, declares to us) that alone shall stand, Prov. xix. 21. And though men of learning may feem to darken this counsel by words, without knowledge of the power and wisdom of Goo, yer it shall come to nothing : and therefore I will trace the Apostle through his writings, and fee the mind of the Spirit, as to this counsel of Goo, which He hath revealed there, which he calls a Mystery subich from the beginning of the world bal been bid in God, Eph. iii. 9. and is yet hid from many of the wife and learned of this world, who will not allow any mystery of godliness at all. But let us attend a little to what St Paul fays, who inculcated this doctrine in all his writings, which, being the language of inspiration, and intended tended for the instruction of the unlearned as well as the learned, must therefore be understood in their most plain and obvious

tion: what followeth makes this sense necessary, ver. 16. For by Him were all things created that are in beaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him, and for him. Ver. 17. And he is before all things, and by him all things consist. Pray! mark the expressions: He was before all things: and All things universally, without exception, that were made, were made by Him: consequently He himself cannot be a creature.

But St Paul tells us not only that Jesus Christ made all things, but also, that he upholds, and governs all things:

By him all things confist, Col. i. 17. He upholds all things by the word of his power, Heb. i. 3. or by his own power, as the original signifies. Observe! by his own power: it is not said, by a power derived to him from God, but by his own power.

Are not the effential attributes of the Deity given, as fully and emphatically, to lesus Chais T in the latter passage, as they are to Goo in the former? The inference is obvious: JESUS CHRIST is therefore

GOD.

But to me it appears more than probable, that the former passage as well as the latter, is peculiarly descriptive of JESUS CHRIST!

the context feerns evidently to determine this-it runs thus-That in me first Tefus Christ might show forth all long suffering, for a pattern to them which should bereafter believe on bim to everlafting life. Now to the King eternal, immortal, invisible: Who can be this King eternal, immortal, invisible, but Jesus CHRIST mentioned in the preceding verfe : for it is observable that in all this paragraph (viz. from ver. 12 to 17 inclusively) the Apostle mentions only Jesus Christ; whence it follows that Jesus Christ is the King eternal, immortal, invisible, and only wife: God, and confequently Gor in the highest and most proper fense, being the only God, of one undivided substance with the Father and Holy Ghoft. No wonder then that St Paul does to frequently in his epiftles: implore his divine grace and bleffing upon

So I write, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, 2 Thess. iii. 17, 18, I be grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you, Rom. xvi. 24. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you, 1 Cor. xvi. 23.—What! the grace of a creature! why not rather the grace of God? If Jesus Christ is not God, why is he invoked in the above passages to do what is proper to God only?

These, Sir, are only a small gleaning from the plentiful vintage of texts to the same purpose which are to be met with in the writings of St Paul, who in every one of his epistles declares to us the counsel of God in this important article of faith; and to shew that this was no novel doctrine of his own invention, he brings many quotations from the Old Testament to prove the Divinity of our blessed Redeemer, the long expected Messiah foretold by the Prophets, which that I may not tire your patience, I omit; but they are all upon record in his writings, to which I refer you.

Now, Sir, give me leave to ask you this question, viz. If Jesus Christ was not properly and truly Goo; to what purpose doth the Apostle in all his epistles ascribe to him the attributes of Divinity, and in consistmation thereof appeal to the testimony of the Prophets, and all this without saying any thing to guide us into a contrary belief, or guard us against error or mistake? On other much less important occasions he observed a different conduct.

When he feemed to boast of his own performances, saying, that he laboured more abundantly than all the Apostles, 1 Cor. xv. 10. he explains himself and says, yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me;—but when he speaks of Christ, in the most exalted strains, he never puts in any caution to prevent our misunderstanding his words; no, not so much as once, in any of the texts before cited.

If Christ was a mere creature, there could be no reason to say, as the Apostle doth, without the least explanation, that he is God over all, blessed for ever. It would have been much more easy for him to say, that he was a superangelic creature, blessed for ever; and which it behoved him to say (had it been so) to prevent our running into erasors concerning him. But the Apostle says he useth great plainness of speech, 2 Cor.

iii. 12, and furely, if what he writes is plain, we are to understand him in that plain way in which he expresseth himself, or else he will be to us a barbarian, and may as well speak to us in an unknown tongue.

He doth not fay any where, take heed left ye mifunderstand any of my phrases, or expressions, concerning CHRIST; which furely he would have done had any of them carried a fecret, or contrary meaning. But he fays, Beware, left any man spoil you through philosophy, and vain deceit, after the rudiments of the world and not after Christ, Col. ii. 8. and then he adds, ver. o. For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godbead bodily. Here is no caution against believing that the Godhead dwells in CHRIST bodily, but against philosophy, and the rudiments of the world, or rules of human reasoning, to prove divine truths; as if he had foreseen that men would deay the Deity of CHRIST, and believe nothing that is revealed, but what they could philosophically prove, or mathematically demonstrate. But, fays he, beware of fuch philosophy, for it is vain deceit: and take this truth upon my word, Jesus CHRIST is God, (viz.) in him dwells the Godhead bodily, and he is God over all, bleffed for ever.

Again, he fays, O Timothy—avoid (not only) profane, but vain bat lings, and opposition of science, falsely so called, which some prof fing, bave erred from the truth, 1 Tim. vi. 20, 21. Now what can this opposition of science be, but attempting to prove the mysteries of the Gospel philosophically, or by school-arguments, which when they fail to do, there is an opposition of science? Revelation opposeth philosophy, and philosophy opposeth revelation, and the professor, not being able to reconcile them, falls from the faith, or errs from the truth, because he cannot demonstrate the mysteries of the Gospel to his reason, or reconcile them to the laws of disputation, which in this matter are but vain babblings; and whether this be the real meaning of that text or not, I am fure it may be fo explained, and with great probability too.

You have seen, Sir, from St Paul's epistles what was his opinion of Jesus Christ; how uniformly he afferts his divine nature; and with what great care he guards his converts to the faith against being led astray by philosophy, vain deceit, or artful reasonings of men of corrupt minds: but his testimony to this doctrine will have the greater weight of evidence, if we recollect his conduct and sentiments before his conversion, and the manner how he was instructed in the whole scheme of redemption by Je-SUS CHRIST.

St Paul before his conversion was a Pharifee, one of the strictest fects among the Jews, and which always discovered the bitterest enmity to CHRIST. He was a great enemy to idolatry, and trusting to his own righteousness, which is of the Law, had no notion of redemption by a crucified Saviour; and on that account feems to have had an implacable hatred to CHRIST and his doctrine, and with unremitted rage and cruelty perfecuted all his disciples; now the testimony of such a witness in favour of CHRIST must certainly be unexceptionable. -After his miraculous conversion, St Paul himself positively declares that he had no instruction from any man, Gal. i. 12. and that he did not go up to Jerusalem to be instructed by the Apostles there, but immediately went into Arabia, ver. 17. and that it was three years ere he went to 'ferusalem, where he saw Peter, and saw none else, save James the LORD's brother, ver. 18, 19, and that when he did see them and other of the Apostles on a second journey to Ferusalem, Gal. ii. i. they in conference, or in the difcourse he had with them concerning the faith, added nothing to him; did not inform him in any article of Christian faith which he did not before know. Yet you have feen that his writings abound with the most pompous expressions of our Lord's Divinity, and fuch.

fuch as are to be found no where else: Pray Sir, how came St Paul to know that JESUS CHRIST was the brightness of his Father's glory, and the express image of his person? -that he was in the form of God, and thought it no robbery to be equal with God?-that he is God over, all bleffed for ever?—that he is the image of the invisible Gop ?-that in him dwells the fulness of the Godhead, bodily? and divers other expressions which are too high to be applicable to any creature?-Who told St Paul all this? Why, fays he, Gol i. 12. " My Gof-" pel is not after men, neither received I " it of man, but was taught it by the reve-" lation of Jesus Christ:" many of this Apostle's expressions are so peculiarly his own, and contain fuch fublime fentiments of the personal dignity of Jesus Christ, that it is utterly incredible he should derive them from any fource but revelation. If then JESUS CHRIST, who best knew what himself was, did reveal these things to St Paul, who expressly affures us that he had them not from man but from Jesus CHRIST, the natural and undeniable inference is, that he is GoD; or God over all, bleffed for ever, Rom. ix. 5. or God manifest in the flesh, I Tim. iii. 16. How came St Paul thus to write of CHRIST, of whom but lately he was a perfecutor? Had he been only a man.

man, these expressions had not only been needless, but blasphemous; yet St Paul had this doctrine, not from man, but from CHRIST himself, which could not be true if CHRIST was a mere man, for he had it from him only; therefore he is GoD; deny the consequence who can.

St Paul knew that dreadful text full well, "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man," Jer. xvii. 5. yet he trusted in Jesus Christ, and desired to be found in him, having on his righteousness; and says, that there is no salvation in any other; and if this be not to bring himselfunder a curse, if Christ be a mere man, I know not what is.

He knew also that remarkable text, Ifa. xl. 18 and 25. that none but Goo can be compared with God, that none is like him but himself, and that he hath no equal: There can be no image of the invisible Got by any creature, and yet St Paul affures us, that JESUS CHRIST is the image of the invisible God, and that Jesus CHRIST being in the form of Goo, thought it no robber to be hisequal; and no marvel, for he that is in the form of Goo, must be Goo effentially; the thing is undeniable-and there fore CHRIST is GOD effentially; and this he himself revealed to St Paul, and is therefore true. And

And now, if after all this CHRIST was not God equal with the Father, either (1) St Paul must be an impostor in pretending to receive his revelations from Jesus Christ when he did not: or (2) these revelations were diabolical delusions and a lie: or (3) those writings which go in St Paul's name are spurious and none of his: or (4) we must not believe our senses, when we read his writings, but the direct contrary to what he affirms, when he says those things.

There are various other passages in St Paul's epiftles which I might have produced in support of the same doctrine, but as those I have recited are very plain and express to the point, and withal sufficiently numerous to establish the doctrine I contend for, I forbear to trouble you with any more; if those already produced do not convince you none will: what is demonstrated in one way is as certain, as if it was demonstrated in an hundred. But, alas! we meet with some persons who seem resolved not to be convinced even by the clearest evidence; and St Peter's observation is every day verified, who, speaking of St Paul's epittles, fays, In which are some things bard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction, 2 Pet, 111. 16. Now, Why may not St Peter, among among other things, have an eye to those many texts in St Paul's epiftles which speak of our Saviour's Divinity; these may be called hard to be understood, or hard to be believed, by those that are unlearned in the wisdom that is from above, and are unstable, or wavering in their opinion of what is revealed in the holy scriptures, so that they wrest them unto their own destruction: -They wrest them! Pray what is it to wrest the scriptures, but to go from their plain and literal meaning, to force them to speak directly contrary to what is expressed in the text? For to believe the scriptures as they plainly speak, can with no fense, be faid to wrest them : but he wrests them, who forces a meaning from them, contrary, not only to their universal analogy, and agreement one with another, but contrary to the very letter and evident meaning of every text there; that doth square with some darling notion or philosophical scheme of If I fay, as the text plainly doth, his own. In the beginning—the Word was God, I do not wrest that text. But if I say, In the beginning—the Word was [A] God, as the Arians do, I wrest it most abominably, and fo of the reft.

Is it not very furprizing and unaccountable that not only St Paul, but all the writers of the New Testament, should bear uniform form testimony to the divine nature of IE-SUS CHRIST? And when we recollect that they published their writings at different times and in distant countries, it must appear absolutely incredible, that they should all agree in this most important doctrine, if it were not true; or that they should ascribe to Jesus Christ the incommunicable attributes of the Deity, if he were only a creature: To what purpose should they do it? why should they thus rob God of his glory, which he hath declared he will not part with, Ifa xliii. 8.? or what end did this way of writing answer but to lead all future disciples of Jesus into direct idolatry? I allow indeed that JESUS CHRIST himself did not say in so many words, that he was God equal with the Father, but he faid what was equivalent to it, and appealed to his works for evidence of the truth: he faid so much, that the Jews accused him of blasphemy for faying God was his Father, thereby making himself equal with God: which charge he never denied: and it appears evident to me from the history of his trial, that the high priest and the Sanhedrin pronounced him guilty of death for afferting that he was the Son of GoD; which in their conceptions was making himself equal with God.—If Jesus Christ be only a creature, why have we not fome plain texts of scripture

ture to tell us fo? or to what end or purpose are all those strong and unequivocal expressions used in the holy scriptures, that declare him to be Gop? or why are they not laid down with fome limitation in the texts themselves? This might easily have been done in so very essential a matter, had he been a creature, and no more. But methinks I hear you reply, " JESUS CHRIST himself had done this; He hath in plain and express terms acknowledged his own inferiority to his Father: for doth he not fay, " My Father is greater than I?" If then, fay you, the Father be greater than the Son, it necessarily follows that the Son (i. e. IBsus CHRIST) cannot be equal to the Father, and confequently not Gop of the fame divine nature. This text alone is thought by some gentlemen of your persuasion to be fufficiently decisive: but, Sir, I am so far from joining iffue with them, that, in my opinion, these words, if duly considered, will afford a very strong argument for the divine nature of Jesus Chaist: for though you will not allow him to be God, yet you must acknowledge he was a man of good fense and found understanding: now affix your meaning to these words, "My Father " is greater than I?" What information do they convey? Why, forfooth, he tells his difciples what they, and every man in the world, knew

knew as well before, viz. that the Creator is greater than the creature; this is fuch egregious trifling, that it would be unbecoming a man of plain common fense to deliver it as an axiom of importance. This then cannot be the primary meaning of the words. The distance between Creator and creature is infinite, and doth not admit of comparifon: "To whom will you liken me, or make "me equal, saiththe holy One," Isa. xl. 25.? But certainly there must be some just ground of comparison between Jasus and his Father, otherwise we cannot suppose he would have made one: but nothing finite can be compared to infinite: to justify the affertion as confistent with common fense, we must suppose Jesus to be infinite as well as his Father: On any other supposition the affer- . tion is trifling and impertinent. Jesus spake these words, his meaning might be, my Father, as Father, is greater than I, as Son, or as Mediator. But whatever information Heintended to convey to his difciples by this comparison, it must appear evident to common sense, that the words will not admit of your interpretation, and confequently your opinion can derive no support from this text, which rather militates against you.

Permit me to take notice of another Text which is often produced as a proof that the

Son

Son is not omniscient, viz. Mark xiii. 32. Issus faith, "Of that day and that hour "knoweth no man, no, not the angels which " are in heaven, neither the Son, but the "Father." If the Son be ignorant of the day of judgment (fay our adversaries) he cannot be omniscient, consequently not God equal with the Father. In reply I fay, JEs us doth not in this passage speak of the last judgment: the former part of the chapter is a prophecy of the entire destruction of Jerusalem, and of the many portentous figns and prodigies which should precede that difastrous event; by the coming to pass of these Jesus says the destruction of Jerusalem might be known to be approaching. "When ye see these things come to pass, " know that it is nigh, even at the doors," " Verily, I say unto you, This ver. 29. " generation shall not pass till all these " things be done," ver. 30. Heaven and " earth shall pass away, but my words shall " not pass away," ver. 31. Then follows ver. 32. " But of that day and of that hour "knoweth no man, no, not the angels which "are in heaven, neither the Son, but the "Father."-That only the destruction of Jerusalem is the subject of this prophecy must be evident to every attentive reader, and therefore the words, " Of that day "knoweth no man, neither the Son," must be so interpreted as to be consistent with what what goes before. That Jesus himself knew. the day and hour of the destruction of ferusalem seems evident from the context, otherwise how could he foretel the various figns which should precede and precisely mark the time of it to be before that generation should pass away: but though he knew it himself, he was not commissioned by his Father to make it known to others, for so the Greek word may be translated .. lesus communicated as much as was proper for his disciples to know concerning this grand event, but he kept them in ignorance of the precise day when it would happen, in order to excite them to watchfulness and prayer, which he exhorts them to in the next verse, 33. " Take ye heed, "watch and pray, for ye know not when the "time is:" fo that this text is no proof that the Son is not omniscient, but if considered in conjunction with the context, rather proves that he is.

We shall do well to remember that the scriptures tell us that in the latter times, some shall depart from the faith, 1 Tim. iv. I. and that there shall be false teachers who shall bring in damnable beresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, 2 Pet. ii. I. Now what can be a more notorious departing from the faith, than to deny the LORD that bought them? and what can that denial be, but denying his Diety? For was that denial to be a renouncing Christianity, it could not be called benefy, but apoltacy; and therefore to depart from the faith, in the sense of scripture, is to deny CHRIST to be Gop, or those texts are inconclusive; for no man can properly be faid to depart from the faith of CHRIST, who doth not either deny his Divinity, or renounce Chriftianity, and so by one of them, deny the LORD that bought him. Where the term berefy is used, it necessarily supposeth a Christian church; and in fuch a church, what is departing from the faith, and what is denying the LORD that bought us, if denying him to be Gon is not? Be pleafed, Sir, feriously to consider these things; and to remember that who foever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father, 1 John ii. 23. and " whofoever shall confess me before " men," faith CHRIST, " him fhall the Son of man confess before the angels of GoD; "but he that denieth me before men, shall be denied before the angels of GoD," And this puts me in mind of that awful tribunal before which you and I must one day stand, for we must all appear before the judgement-feat of CHRIST." 2 Cor. v. 10. and therefore it greatly concerns us to enquire (each

At that awful day Jesus CHRIST will be our Judge; and if your proposition be true, I have honoured him more than was commanded; but if mine be true, you have difhonoured him very much, by putting him that is God on a level with a creature; and instead of honouring him as you do the Father, you deny him any religious honour, or at the most give him only a subordinate kind of honour ; and then I am fure your's is the most dangerous side of the question For, suppose I honour him more than is really commanded; it is, at most, but a work of supererogation, and following the letter of these plain texts of scripture, which are the statute law of heaven; on which account I am under an invincible (and therefore a justifiable) necessity of believing on him, as Ido; for having no other law to direct me, I must necessarily believe, as that appears to direct me in the very plain letter of it; and the Judge of all the earth cannot but do right. and will never condemn me, for giving hims the fame honour which I give to the Father, when I have his own direction; and that in words fo very express, that if I must not take the texts relating to it in their literal fense, I never know what meaning of: lense to put upon any text whatever; nor: B 2 which metaplorical fense; for as where there is no law there is no transgression, so where there is a law, it can be no transgression, to take its meaning from the plain letter of it: and where there is no transgression, there can be no condemnation; so that if there was a possibility of my being mistaken herein, my eternal welfare must be safe, provided my works justify my saith; and, when weighed in the balance, are not found wanting; for I do not suppose that this faith alone will carry me to heaven.

And if my Saviour should then ask me, Who doft thou fay that I am? and I should answer, with Thomas, My Lord and my God: and he should condescend to demand upon what grounds I build that faith? I might with great humility and adoration reply, that the facred scriptures in very plain and express terms informed me so; and say, LORD, I read there that Thou, the divine Word, walt in the beginning with Gop and of GoD; that Thou didst lay the foundations of the earth, and the heavens are the work of thy hands; and that Thou didst also create prin. cipalities, and powers; and that all things were not only created by thee, but for thet, tand that by thee all things consist: that all the angels are commanded to worship thee; and, I find, that I am commanded to honour thec thee, even as I honour the Father; which honour cannot be paid to thee, but by prayer, adoration, and praise, which are due to God only: - that the writings of all thy Evangelists and Apostles, more especially of thy faithful fervant Paul, who fays he received his Goipel from Thee by immediate inspiration, bear witness to thy Divinity, and declare, not only that thou art the image of the invisible God, but that thou art God over all, bleffed for ever, the Alpha and Omega, the Almighty; that in thee dwelleth the fulness of the Godhead bodily, and that the Father and Thou art one; and fince Thou didst not think it any robbery to be equal with Gop, how durft I, a poor, finful worm, think thee not equal, or rob thee of thy Deity? and therefore I have worshipped thee, as my Lord and my God. And befides, I find also in the facred records, that Thou fearchest the heart, art omniscient, omnipresent, omnipotent, and whatsoever the Father doth, without exception, that dost Thou likewise; and that he that hath. feen Thee, hath feen the Father also, and: that Thou art the great Gop, the true Goo, and eternal life, oc.

And suppose now, that such interrogatories and answers were really certain to occur at that day (as who knows but they may? for we find a dialogue of another fort will, Matt. xxv.) and supposing that I have been miltaken in the meaning of the abovesaid (and such other) texts; (which if we are sure of the plain meaning of any words, is utterly impossible, or if these are not part of these ared canon, we never can be certain of any being so) I say, supposing all this, yet having no other rule for my faith, I shall not be condemned, for not reading the text backwards, or not taking it in a sense directly contrary to its very letter; but shall be equally as safe, as those that have another ereed.

And farther, supposing on the other side, that the Judge should demand of one of a contrary faith, What doft thou fay that I am?—and he should answer a CREATURE. And suppose it should be further demanded, why he so believed when the texts just now named, and a multitude of others evince the contrary, in the most plain expressions? and suppose he should reply that he could not understand those texts in their plain and obvious fense, because that to suppose that the divine and human pature were fo united as two constitute one person, and yet remain two distinct natures, was a docsrine that had no foundation in natural religion, and is unintelligible, if not contrary to the common fense of mankind. And therefore the texts above named, and all others others of the like import, which speak of thee as God essential, are either interpolated, or misinterpreted; or should be so explained and understood, as to be consistent with the sense and meaning of those other texts of scripture which speak of thee as a

I fay, suppose the case should so happen, and that notwithstanding, Jesus CHRIST. should be really God and man, as we have afferted, and do affert, how must such a perion be confounded? how will he tremble before his Judge, and his Gop?—Will there be no difference? or will the righteous Judge make none between the reasons given. by the one, and by the other, for their faith ? The scriptures are so plain in this point, that he that runs may read them; and he that is willing to bring corrupt reasoning to the obedience of faith and revelation, may eafily understand them : therefore, to plead ignorance before our Judge, or farther to alledge, that this part of the facred records was doubted of in fuch a century; and that in such an age such a text, or such a part, was not owned by fuch a father, or not found in such an ancient copy, or differently interpreted by some very learned doctors, &c. I say, fuch pretences will be a too thin fig-leaf covering for infidelity.-We have the fure word of prophecy, to which we are to take heed. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is what we shall be judged by another day, when human reasoning will be struck dumb. Then may Christ very justly say, as in John v. 39, 40. to all such as denied his Divinity, Why did you not search and believe the scriptures, in order to eternal life, for those are they which testified of me? But ye would not come unto me that ye might have life, for whom the Father hath sent (and who is one with him) Him ye believed not.

The scriptures are very plain relating to Jesus Christ, and we are directed not comprehend, nor dispute, but believe. I will not take upon me to prejudge, nor to say, how far the mercies of Christ may extend to such criminals, at that dreadful day. But I desire not to be one of that number.

And to fum up all; This will be the case at that day; he that now believes in Christ, as God, if he should be then mistaken (as to that point) will, as to his eternal state, be secure; when he that now denies his Divinity, if at that day be should be mistaken, will! Oh—what shall I say?—the best that I can think is, that his state is very doubtful and hazardous, if not deplorable and desperate.

It is worthy of our most serious attention, that we are to be saved by grace, through faith: but faith depends not on an empty name, but hath respect to the nature of the person believed in: no man can be said to believe believe in God, that knows nothing of his nature, or denies his operations and attributes; nor can any man be faid to believe in CHRIST, that denies him to be IMMA-NUEL, or God-man in one person; for in denying that, he denies his person, and removes the true object of Christian faith, and introduceth another: and as none will fay, but that he who denies the effential perfections of God, denies God himself; so it will follow, that he who denies the Deity of CHRIST, denies CHRIST himself :- As for example, suppose any manshould befo mad as to deny, that GoD is boly, in so doing, he denieth him to be God, because holiness is effential to his nature: fo in like manner, he that chooses a CHRIST, that is not GOD and man, chooses such an one, as is not the CHRIST of GoD; for bis CHRIST is the Word, which in the beginning was with God, and was God, and, in time, took flesh, and dwelt amongst us; but the other is a mere creature, of a man's own making and deviling, which the scriptures of truth know nothing of.

Let me then (my dear friend) earnestly beseech you seriously to consider, whether the Jesus you believe in, and depend upon for salvation, is that Jesus whom St Paul preached; for, assuredly, this is a most important enquiry; It is not a mere speculative tive point, in which you may innecently err, but your everlasting happiness or mifery depend upon it. If any man preacheth another JEsus, faith St Paul-orthough we or an angel from heaven preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accurfed, Gal. i. 8. which dreadful depunciation he repeats, ven 9. that it may make the deeper impression on our minds, in order to excite us with the greater care and stedfastnefs, to hold fast that form of words and found doctrine, which was once delivered to the faints. If you really are a lover of truth, you will consider this subject without partiality or prepossession; do not suffer your judgment to be biaffed by great names, or by the learning or philosophy of any man whatever. Have recourse to the oracles of Gop (the fountain of divine truth) which alone can make you wife unto falvation: read with an honest heart and upright intention, comparing scripture with scripture, resolving to embrace the truth as delivered by the holy Apostles and Prophets: always remembering, that " we are " not fufficient of ourselves, to think any " thing as of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God," 2 Cor. iii. 5. If therefore you defire to know the truth, do not fail to offer up your fervent prayers to Almighty Goo, that he would open your understanding, that you may understand the scriptures. "If "any man lack wisdom," faith St James, "let him ask of God, who giveth liberally, "and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him;" but that your prayers may be heard, you must ask with humility, having a thorough consciousness of the weakness of your own understanding to receive and embrace divine truths; for "God resistent the "proud, but giveth grace to the humble," James iv. 6.

Whatever judgment you may pass on this little piece, compiled for the most part with borrowed materials, please to receive it with candour, and as a proof of my earnest defire to promote your comfort in this life, and your everlasting happiness in the

with a distance of the View

AT a time when the press teems with the most scurrilous invectives against the fundamental doctrines of our religion, and even the news-papers are converted into trumpets of sedition, by the enemies of the Church, silence on the part of its friends becomes criminal, and a cold neutrality is inexcusable. We are called upon, each according to his ability, to stand forth in defence of the doctrines and discipline of our Church; both which are equally exposed to the malevolence of some, and the insidious artifices of others.

course concerning Church-Government, it is hoped, will not be deemed a Publication, at this time, either unnecessary or useless. It was digested principally with a view to the instruction of a person desirous of information on the Nature and Constitution of the Church; and it is hoped, that it may be of some benefit to others, who require instruction on the same important subject: this at least may be said in its favor, that it lies within a narrow compass, and is level to the capacity of all.

How unnatural it is that the members of any society should be ignorant of its origin and establishment, the principles on which it was instituted, and the rules and orders by which its credit and dignity have been supported! This ignorance, which on other occasions is only extremely absurd, when applied to the principles of our eccle-finftical constitution, is bigbly reprebensible in itself, and attended with the most dreadful consequences; to this ignorance the adversary artfully applies bimself, under the specious character of a candid enquirer after truth—an advocate for liberty of conscience—and one who makes very great allowance for the scruples of his weak brethren.

Be it our endeavour by timely information, to prepare ourselves to give a reasonable answer to him that enquireth concerning the faith which we profess, the doctrines which we maintain, and the discipline to which we submit ourselves, in all bumility, as the servants of Christ.

This information, we flatter ourselves, may in some respects be gathered from the following treatise; which, without any farther apology, is commended to the serious attention of every candid and unprejudiced reader; not without the most earnest desire, that, through God's bleffing, it may prosper, to the edification of the ignorant, the conviction of the erroneous, and the establish. ment of the faithful; that the ever bleffed Trinity may be worshipped as such, in all sincerity and truth; that Christians may no longer dissemble with God and with each other, in transactions of the most serious nature; that their conduct may be directed by knowledge, neither swerving towards an enthusiastic contempt of all order and decency on the one hand, nor towards a lukewarm indifference to every thing that is facred on the other; but " that all who " profess and call themselves Christians, " may be led into the way of truth, and bold " the faith in unity of spirit, in the bond " of peace, and in righteousness of life."

CHURCH.

As the Holy Scriptures are the rule of our faith and practice, it is from them we are to learn the nature and constitution of the Christian Church, the form of its government, the extent of its powers, and limits of our obedience.

I. From the account which the Divine Records have given us of the Christian Church, it appears to be no confused multitude of men, independent one on another, but a well-formed and regular society. This is evident from the names and allusions by which it is described. It is called a family, whereof Christ is the Master, of whom the whole family is named (a). It is said to be the city of the living God (b); whence Christian people are fellow-citizens with the saints (c). And it is often mentioned as a kingdom, of which Christ is the king. Thus in our Lord's words, Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of Heaven (d;) where the Church and the Kingdom of Heaven mean the same thing. As a family, a city, and a kingdom, are societies, and the Christian Church is represented by them, that must likewise be a society.

Some of the chief characters and properties of this fociety, as described in Holy Scripture, are,

First, That it is not a mere voluntary society; but one whereof men are obliged to be members, as they value their everlasting happiness; for it is a society appointed by God with enforcements of rewards and punishments. That it is of God's appoint1

ment is certain; for it is the Church of the living God (e). That it is enforced with rewards and punishments is not less certain: for remission of sins, the grace of the Holy Spirit, and eternal life, are declared to be the privileges of the Christian Church, and annexed to baptism, the constant rite of initiation into the Church; Repent and be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoft (f). And the consequence of neglecting to hear Christ and his apostles may be understood from Matt. x. 14. Whoseever shall not receive you nor bear your words, when ye depart out of that bouse or city, Shake off the dust of your feet. Verily, I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment than for that city. Now as God by instituting this society, and annexing fuch rewards and punishments, has sufficiently declared his will, that men should enter into it, all men are obliged to become members of it; and it can in no other sense be called a voluntary society, than as it is lest to every man's choice, whether he will be for ever happy or miserable.

(f) Ads ii. 38.

Secondly, The Christian Church is a spiritual fociety. It was founded in opposition to the kingdom of darkness. This is plainly implied in our bleffed Saviour's words to St. Peter: Thou art Peter, and upon this rod I will build my Church, and the gates of Hell shall never prevail against it (g). Whence the members of the Christian Church are faid to be delivered out of the power of darknefs, and translated into the king dom of Christ (b). And the Christian people, as soldiers under Christ, are faid to fight, not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against Spiritual wickedness in high places (i). Their armour is not fuch as will guard them against carnal, but spiritual enemies; it " the armour of light (k), the armour of God, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righte-ousness, the shield of faith, the belmet of salvation, the sword of the Spirit (1). And this Spiritual Society, or Kingdom of Christ, was by the design of its Great Founder to be distinct from all earthly kingdoms. My kingdom, says Christ, is not of this world (m): for as earthly kingdoms are designed for mens' temporal welfare, so the end of this beavenly kingdom is to promote our everlasting happiness.

Thirdly, It is an outward and visible society. The name of Church is constantly applied in the Scriptures to such a society. Thus we find it used by our blessed Saviour himself: Tell it to the Church. If he neglect to hear the Church (n). It is compared to a marriage feast, to a sheepfold, to a net full of sishes, to a sield of corn, &c. by which allusions the society of Christians, which is the notion implied in the name of Church, is evidently described, as a visible body of men, taken out of and separated from the rest of the world. Publick rulers were appointed to govern the Church, the faith was to be publickly confessed, the public worship of God to be frequented, and visible sacraments to be received by all the members of it; and consequently the Christian Church is an outward and visible society.

Fourthly, It is an universal society, both with regard to place and with regard to time. With regard to place; for Christ's commission to his apostles was to preach the Gospel to every creature (0), and to teach and baptize all nations (p); and with regard to time; for it is prophesied concerning Christ's kingdom, that it shall be established for ever, as the sun and moon throughout all generations (q); and we are told by St. Paul, that Christ must reign, till all his enemies, the last of which is

II. Now fince no well-regulated fociety ever did or can subsist without officers to govern it, and without some subordination among these, and since it appears that the Christian Church is a regular society, it must of necessity have its officers. And as this society is to be continued by a succession of believers to the world's end, it follows, that there must be an uninterrupted succession of officers 'till that time. And as it is a society of God's institution, the officers of it must receive their commission from Him.

First, That there are officers in the Christian Church does not admit of doubt: our blessed Lord, the head and founder of it, when on earth, chose twelve that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach, whom he named apostles (1), and gave them power and authority over devils. and to cure all manner of difeases (u); and besides these, he appointed other seventy (v). After his refurrection, when he declared, All power was given unto bim in beaven and in earth, he commissioned his apostles to teach and taptize all nations (w), and invefted them with the same authority which he had received from his Father; AS my Father bath fent me, EVEN SO fend 1 you (x): as he had received authority to fend them, fo he gave them authority to fend others; and accordingly, when they were farther endued with power from on high (y): by the descent of the Holy Spirit, whom Christ promised to send, we read, that they ordained the seven deacons (2), that Paul and Barnabas ordained elders in every Church (a), and Paul ordained Timothy: fo that from the beginning, there were three distinct orders of ministers in the Church, namely, that of deacons, another of presbyters, and over them a superior order, in which were not only the apostles, but also Timothy and Titus, who governed the Churches in which they resided.

secondly, And that there is a subordination among the officers of this society is evident from Scripture. For the commission of the seventy was more limited and restrained than that of the twelve. And as the apostles and disciples were subject to Christ, so were the elders and deacons to the apostles. St. Paul sends to Miletus, and calls thither the elders of Ephesus, to whom he gives a most solemn charge; which is a manifest sign, that they were under his government (b). And at Corinth, where several prophets and evangelists were then present, the same apostle, being absent, both excommunicates, and absolves, and enacts laws. Let the prophets Speak two or three, and let the rest judge (c). If any man think bimself to be a prophet or spiritual, let bim acknowledge that the things which I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord (d.) And in like manner, Timothy, by virtue of the authority conferred on him by the imposition of St. Paul's hands, ruled the whole Church of Epbefus, officers as well as private Christians. Whence it is manifeft, that as the Christian Church was governed by the three orders of apostles or bishops, priests and deacons, so the supreme authority was lodged in the fuperior order of the apostles or bishops, from whom the priests and deacons derived their power, and without whose confent they could not lawfully perform any religious act.

Thirdly, That there will be an unintertrupted succession of these officers in the Church to the world's end, may be inferred from the nature of their functions. Their constant office is to prescribe rules for maintaining the outward peace and order of the Church-to preach the Gospel-to admit members into the Church by baptism (e)to take care that there be no schism in the body (f)-to administer the eucharist (g)to oppose heresies (b); and therefore their continuance is as necessary as their first inflitution; fo long as the Church shall last: and as that will be to the end of the world, there must be a constant succession of officers 'till the same time. And that it will be so, we have the affurance of our Lord's promife to his apostles just before his ascension, Lo! I am with you always, even to the end of the world (i): the meaning of which promife must be, that they should always be succeeded by others in the same office: for as the apostles all died within the compass of fourscore years after this extensive promise was made, it could no other way be fulfilled, but by our Lord's being with their fuccessors in the Gospel ministry 'till the world's end.

Fourtbly, That the officers of this fociety must receive their commission from God is manifest from Hebrews v. 4. No man taket this bonour to bimself, but be that is called of God as was Aaron. Now besides the plain meaning of the words, which shews, that he who officiates in divine matters is to be set apart, and to have a distinct commission from the rest of mankind, and that this commission must be derived from Divine institution, the necessity of such a Divine commission to qualify a person for any sacred office may be proved by three invincible arguments.

First, From the dignity of the office. It is called an bonour. The ministers of religion are the representatives of God Almighty: they are the slewards of the mysteries of God, the dispensers of his holy word and sacraments, the messengers and embossadors of Heaven. These characters ascribed to them in Holy Scripture sufficiently demonstrate the dignity of their function, and are a plain argument that none but God bimself can give them their commission.

the Jews. The apostle makes the calling of Auron the pattern of all other ministers in the Jewish and Christian Church. Aaron and his sons, and the Levites were consecrated by the express command of God to Moses, and they had all of them their distinst commission from Heaven, and no less than death was the penalty of invading their office (k). What Aaron and his sons, and the Levites were in the temple, such are the bishops, presbyters, and deacons, in the Christian Church.

These are appointed by God as those were, and therefore it can be no less sacrilege to usurp their office.

Thirdly, From the example of our Saviour, who (as the apostle speaks) glorified not bimself to be made an bigh priest, but be that faid unto bim, Thou art my Son, to-day bave I begotten thee (1). Though our Saviour wanted no gift to qualify him for this office, as having the Divine nature inseparably united to his buman, yet he would not enter upon his office, 'till he was externally commissioned thereunto by the visible defcent of the Holy Ghost upon him, and an audible voice from Heaven, proclaiming him to be the Messiah. From all which it is evident, that no one ought to exercise the office of a minister in the Church of God without a Divine commission; and that as the officers of the Christian Church, bishops, priests and deacons, were appointed by God, this, like every other Divine infitution, must remain in the same state till it shall please God to change or wholly lay it aside; for men may with the same reason abolish the sacraments of the Church, and all other Christian institutions, as pretend that the functions of Church officers are mutable and temporary.

III. As no fociety can subsist without officers, so neither can it without power to do all things which are necessary to its own preservation and good government; and as it appears that the Church is a society instituted by God, and designed to last to the world's end, there can be no doubt, but that he has invested it with all the powers, which the nature of such a society requires.

ciety, all the powers which belong to it are of the same nature, and such as wholly relate to the next world; consequently, they are distinct from those of civil magistrates, which concern the affairs of this life, and are designed for the present welfare of human societies. Our Lord himself wholly disclaimed all civil power, and lest the civil rights of mankind in the same state wherein he found them. And when the apostle exhorts the Hebrews to yield obedience to their passors, he restrains it to the affairs of their fonts, for which their pastors were accountable to God: Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit yourselves, for they watch for yoursouls, as they that must give an account (m).

Secondly, As God has appointed officers to govern his Church, the powers which he has committed to his Church for its good government must ordinarily be executed by them. For every office implies power, and to fay that the officers of the Church have no power but what all private Christians may lawfully exercise, is just the same as to say, there are no fuch officers at all. And as there are distinct offices, so there must be distinct powers appropriated to every one of them; for as the notion of an office implies power, fo distinct offices do necessarily imply distinct powers: and therefore, though the Scriptures had been filent in this matter, it might fafely have been concluded, from the different kinds of officers whom Christ hath intrusted with the care and government of his Church, not only that private Christians are excluded from the ordinary execution of any ecclefiaftical power; but that some powers are appropriated in such a manner to the chief officers, that they cannot lawfully be exercifed by those of lower orders. The officers of the Church are called God's flewards, who are entrusted with the care and government of his boufbold, that is, his Church; and whose business and duty it is to dispense their constant food, i.e. the word and facraments to all the members of it; whence it is plain that private Christians have no power to dispense the ordinances of the Gospel to others, but must themselves expect them from the hands of God's ministers. And the names of apostles and angels, whereby the officers of the Church were diffinguished from other Christians in the apostolic age, manifestly imply, that they acted by a commission from God, to which the rest had no title. And however great the gifts and abilities of private Christians might be, none had power to exercise any function or office in

in the Church, who had not been first approved and commissioned by those whom God had invested with authority, to that end, for through the whole New Testament the gifts or abilities of Church-officers are every where distinguished from their commission, and described as previous qualifications to it.

Thirdly, What these powers of the Church are, and to whom each of them belongs in particular, the Scripture will inform us. They may be reduced under the following heads, viz. The power 1. Of preaching. 2. Of prayer. 3. Of baptism. 4. Of celebrating the Lord's Supper. 5. Of consirming perfons baptized. 6. Of ordaining ministers. 7. Of making canons. 8. Of jurifdiction. 9. Of demanding maintenance.

First, The first of these powers is that of preaching the Gospel, which naturally precedes all the rest, because it is the means which God has been pleased to appoint for converting men to the Christian saith, in order to bring them into his Church, wherein the other powers are exercised. None have

Our Lord himself was fent and commissioned by the Father to preach the Gofpel (o), and this was one of the functions to which he was anointed by the Holy Spirit. In like manner he folemnly called and fet apart his apostles to this office (p), and gave them commission to teach all nations (q). And this branch of the apostolic office, viz. preaching the Gospel, was derived to their successors the bishops. Hence St. Paul charges Timothy to preach the word (r), and one previous qualification required of fuch as were to be ordained bishops, is, that they be apt to teach (s); but this power was not confined to the bishops or superior order of ministers in the Church, for the apostle calls the Prefbyters his fellow-labourers, that is, his affociales in preaching the Gospel; and Philip, who was only a deacon, preached the word in Samaria. All the different orders exercised this function; the bishops as invested with the plenitude of power, the priests and deacons by an authority derived from them. Secondly, Another religious act, which has always been appropriated to the Clergy, is offering to God the prayers of the Church. In fecret every man is his own orator; and in private families, performance of divine worship is incumbent on them, to whom the care and government of the family belong; but in the public congregations of Christians, divine worthip must be celebrated only by those, to whom it has pleased God to commit this office. The presenting of the people's prayers to God, and interceding with him to bless them, has always been reckoned an elsential part of the facerdotal office. The apostles join the offices of preaching and prayer together: we, fay they, will give ourselves continually to prayer and to the ministry of the aword (t). St. James directs fick persons to fend for the Presbyters of the Church to pray and intersede for them (u), that their fins may be forgiven. And the twenty-four elders in the Revelation, who represent the ministers of the Christian Church, bavi every one of them golden vials full of incense, which is the prayers of the saints (v).

Thirdly, The next power is that of admitting members into the Church by baptism. This is expressed in the commission, which our Lord gave to his apostles just before his ascension: Go, teach all nations, baptizing them (w). Yet was it never understood to be so strictly appropriated to them, but that it might lawfully be exercised by inserior ministers. For we find that Philip the Deacon baptized the Samaritans and the Ethiopian eunuch (x). Hence though the power of baptism belongs chiefly and primarily to the bishops, yet it belongs also to Presbyters, who are the bishops' assistants in the care and government of the Church; and may:

lawfully be committed to deacons; but neither Presbyters nor deacons ought to baptize without the bishop's allowance.

Fourthly, Another power which our Lord has left to his Church is that of confecrating the eucharist, or Lord's Supper. The first eucharist was consecrated by our Lord himself a little before his passion. At the same time he gave his apostles commission to do, as he had done; Do this, faid he, in remembrance of me (y.). Yet this office was not so strictly appropriated to the apostles, but that it might be lawfully executed by the ministers of the fecond order; whence we find that the eucharift was confecrated in the Church of Corinth, when no minister above the order of Presbyters, who were next below the apostles, was there. The reason why deacons were not allowed to confecrate the Lord's Supper was, because this sacrament was always believed to fucceed in the place of facrifices; and as none beside the bigh priest, and inferior priests, were permitted to offer facrifices under the Jewish law, so none but bishops and presbyters, who alone are priests in the Christian sense of that name, consecrated the Lord's Supper.

Fiftbly, A farther power which belongs to the Church is that of imposing hands on persons baptized, commonly called confirmation. The Scripture gives us the following account of the exercise of this power: when Philip, the deacon and evangelist, had converted and baptized the Samaritans, the apostles which were at Jerusalem sent unto them Peter and John; who having prayed and laid their bands on them, they received the Holy Ghost, who was before fallen upon none of them; only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus (2). When the twelve disciples at Ephesus had been baptized by Timothy, or some other of St. Paul's affistants, Paul laid his bands on them, and the Holy Ghost came upon them (a). From which pas-

fages these two things appear : First, That the end and defign of this office was to confer the gifts of the Holy Ghoff upon persons lately baptized. Secondly, That it was fo firictly appropriated to the apofles, that it could not ordinarily be performed even by inspired men and workers of miracles, who were of an inferior order. And that it was not a temporary institution, but one which was fundamental to Christianity, and confequently lasting and perpetual, is plain from its being called a principle and foundation; and joined with fome of the most effential duties and articles of the Christian religion Leaving the principles of the doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection; not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God, of the dollrine of baptism, and of laying on of bands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judg-

Sixtbly, Another power mentioned as belonging to the Church is that of ordaining ministers. It having been shewn that there must must always be ministers of different orders in the Church; and that no man can ordinarily exercise any ecclesiastical office, or function, who is not lawfully called to it; the next enquiry is, from whom this call or commission must be expected?

Now the original of this commission is from God the Father, by whom our Lord was sent into the world to mediate between God and man, as he himself witnesseth. As thou bast sent me into the world, saith he to the Father, even so bave I also sent them into the world (b); and to his apostles, as my Father sent me, even so send I you (c). So that the whole power of erecting the Christian Church, and of governing it since it was erected, is derived from the Father.

But then the person by whom this power is immediately conferred is the Holy Spirit, the third person in the bleffed and undivided Trinity. He it was, by whose anointing our Lord was invested with his mediatorial office. Whence he is faid to have preached by the Spirit (d); through the Holy Spirit he gave commandments to the apostles whom be bad chosen (e). By the Spirit of God be call out devils. Through the eternal Spirit be offered himself to God (f), and the authority and special grace, whereby the apostles and all church-officers execute their respective functions, are in the same manner ascribed to the Spirit. This was expressed in the very form of the apostles' ordination, Reeeive ye the Holy Gboft: wbofefoever fins ye remit, they are remitted; and whofefoever fin ye retain, they are retained (g). Where the authority to remit and retain fins is made s consequence of their receiving the Holy Ghoft. And St. Paul ascribes to the same Spirit both the offices of the apostles and other ministers, and their abilities to discharge those offices (b). So that all ecclefiaftical authority is the gift of the Holy Spirit. But the question is, What persons God has intrusted with authority to ordain ministers in the Church?

And if we may be allowed to reason from the constitution and universal practice of civil societies, we must conclude, that the power of ordaining ministers belongs to the Bishops, who are the chief governors of the Church, because the power of constituting subordinate magistrates belongs to the supreme governors of all civil societies: and it is contradictory to reason, that they who exercise any authority, whether in the Church or in the state, should derive their authority from any, but those in whom the supreme authority is lodged.

Accordingly we find in the Gospel, that whilst our Lord lived on earth, he reserved the power of ordaining ministers to himself. He gave the apestles and the seventy disciples a commission to preach, but never allowed them, while he continued among them, to communicate that commission to any other. Afterwards, when the apostles were the chief visible governors of the Church, they ordained Ministers. All the Apostes together ordained the feven deacons in the Church of Jerusalem (i). Paul and Barnahas ordained elders in every Church which they vifited (k). In the fame age, this authority was exercised by others whom the apostles had ordained to be chief governors of Churches! Timothy and Titus ordained Ministers in their refpective dioceses of Epbesus and Crete: but that no inferior order had this power is evident. St. Paul tells Titus, that for this cans her left him in Grete that he might ordain elders in every city (1). But this could be tno cause of leaving him there, if the presskytens or elders had the power of ordination lodged in them: for that island had been converted to Christianity long before this epiftle was written, and before Titus came thither and no doubt there were many presbyters among them. The fame may be faid of Timothy's being fent so Epbefus. To what purpose was he fent thither, if the presbyters there before had power to ordain?

So that it appears from Scripture, and from the nature of the episcopal office, that none: but Bishops have authority to ordain Mimisters in the Church; and consequently none but those who are ordained by them, can be truly faid to have a divine commission, or any authority to minister in the Christian Church. topering the second

Seventbly, The next power to be mentioned, which the Church exercised in the primitive ages, was that of making canons, or laws for the behaviour of its members in spiritual affairs! Whereby it is not meant, that the Church has authority to change any of the divine laws, or impose any article of faith, or rule of moral duty, or to prescribe any condition of falvation, which is neither expressly contained in the Scriptures, nor can certainly be concluded from them a but only that the is invested with power in all fuch things as relate to the outward peace and order of the Church. And if it appears that things of this kind are left undetern mined by the Scriptures, and alforthat it is necessary.

necessary they should be determined, then we cannot doubt but that Chrift has entrusted the Church with authority to determine them. Now that these are not particularly determined by Scripture is very evident. For the rules of Scripture are all general. We are commanded to affemble together to worship God, but the times and places are not expressed. We are commanded to follow fuch things as make for peace and edification, and to do all things decently and in order; but the particular methods whereby order must be maintained, and edification promoted, are no where let down. Timothy, and all other Bishops with him, are commanded to lay bands fuddenly on no man, but the previous trials of fuch as are candidates for holy orders, and the time and methods of examination into their abilities and behaviour, are left undetermined. But it is necessary that these things should be determined; for otherwise nothing but diforder and confusion would be feen in the church, and therefore Christ has certainly left left the governors of his Church authority to determine them. And accordingly if we enquire into the practice of the apostles, and other primitive governors of the Church; we shall find, that, besides the standing rules of the Gospel, they established many regulations, as the feveral occasions of the Churches under their care required. In many of St. Paul's epiftles, especially in those to the Corintbians, he prescribes particular rules for the decency of divine worhip, the avoiding of scandal, and other things which were not determined by Christ; and he fpeaks of customs which he himfelf and other apostles established and the Churches observed (m). There is and ever will be the fame necessity of prescribing rules for the peace and good government of the Church, and the order and deceney of divine fervice, that there was in the apostolic age; and consequently there is the fame reason why this authority should be transmitted to the Bishops in all ages; as any other part of the apostolical office.

Eightbly, From the power of making laws we proceed to that of jurifdiction, or exeeuting the laws; that is, the power of judging and cenfuring offenders. That our bleffed Lord has entrusted the Church; and particufarly the governors of it, with authority to censure offenders, and to exclude them from its communion will appear, if we consider the Church, 1st, as a fociety; for this authority is exercised by all societies whatever And as in civil focieties, this authority is necessary for securing mens' lives and properties, which is the chief end for which it pleased God to institute these societies; fo in the Church or fpiritual fociety, the fame authority is equally necessary to attain the ends for which the Church was founded; namely, to maintain the purity of divino worship, to secure men from the pollutions of the world, and train them up in virtue and piety now, in order to make them happy for ever; all which cannot, be effected, if the

from its communion such unworthy members as endeavour to oppose these ends by promoting vice, superstition, and insidelity.

Secondly, As a society, the privileges whereof are conditional; for none must be admitted into the Church by baptism, who do not, by themselves or their sureties, profess the faith, and vow obedience to the laws of Christ; and if these conditions are necessary for mens! admission into the Church, they must be so for their continuance in it. For no reason can be shewn why men should be obliged to vow faith and obedience in order to their becoming members of the Church, which does not equally hold for their exclusion from it when they notoriously break that yow: so that the power of excommunication is a manifest consequence of the baptismal covenant, and committed to the governors of the Church, who have the dispensation of the sacraments.

from our Lord's institution. Upon Peter's

That first they should privately admonife the offender; if this did not bring him to repentance they should then reprove him before two or three witnesses; but if this also proved unsuccessful, their last remedy should be to tell it to the Church; and if the offender still neglected to hear, as their authority was wholly spiritual, and they could not inslict any civil punishment on him, all that our Lord directs them to do is, that they should account the obstinate offender as an heathen or a publican (0), they should look on him no longer as a member of the Church, but place him among insidels, and other prossigate men, whose conversation they used to shun.

That this authority was exercised and held to be of divine right by the Apostles and their successors the Bishops of the primitive Church, is clear; from the case of Ananias and Sapphira, when it pleased God to attest the apostolic authority of retaining sins by enabling Peter to strike both the offenders with present death (p); and from the case of the incestuous Corinthian (9), whom St. Paul delivered to Satan, excluded from the Church of Christ, from the crime of incest, and afterwards received again to communion upon repentance. And this power was not confined to the apostles, but was to be continued to their fucceffors; we find it was committed to Timothy and Titus, whom St. Paul fet over the Churches of Ephefus and Creis, For he writes thus to Timothy: Against as elder receive not an accusation, but before twi or three witnesses (r); and if he had power to receive accusations and bear witnesses, be must have authority to pass some census upon them, if they were found guilty. Which manifestly implies, they had authority to exclude them from the Church, for otherwise they could not have been blamed for permitting them to remain in it.

Nintbly, Laftly, another right of the clergy, is that of demanding a competent maintenance from the people committed to their charge. It is certain that God has an absolute right to dispose of all we have in the world; and fince it has appeared, that he has appointed an order of men, to attend continually on his worship and service, we cannot doubt but that he requires so much of our worldly fubstance to be set apart for their support, as may enable them to difcharge the duties of their function, and fuch as may express the just respect which is berne to their office and character. When he fent forth his Apostles to preach, he gave them this instruction, Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass, in your purses, for the workman is worthy of his meat (w). Whence it is manifest, that our Lord accounted it the duty of those, to whom the Gospel was preached, to give a competent maintenance to them that preached it. When the apostle St. Paul puts the Theffalonians in mind that he had maintained himself, he at the same time afferts his right to require maintenant of them: Not (fays he) because we have m power (x). And to the Corintbians he fays, That as they who wait at the altar are partakers with the altar, even fo bath the Lat ordained, that they who preach the Gofpel, should live of the Gaspel (y). derive their commission by an uninterrupted fuccession from Christ and his Apostles, Wherein this obedience to our rulers confifts, and what are the limits of it, we may learn from the nature and extent of their power; for fo far as they have a right to command, fo far are we bound to obey. Now all things that are in the world may be divided into good, bad, and indifferent. The good oblige by their own nature, and the command of God; in these things the authority of our governors is of no force; for whatever is enjoined by the positive command of God, we are bound to do, whether they require it or not. The evil are by the same forbidden, and we are obliged not to obey our Governors, if they should command them. So that it is the indifferent only whereto their author rity reaches, and the things which are indifferent in themselves are all those which relate to the outward peace and order of the Church; which are not enjoined by the express word of God, but yet are in no respect contrary to it, in no wife forbidden by it. This authority was exercised by the Governors ors of the Church from the beginning (as hath been shewn) and it undoubtedly belongs to them; for as they are evidently invested with fome spiritual authority, and they can command in nothing at all, if not in indifferent things, in all fuch things as are indifferent, they certainly have a right to command. And as is their authority, fuch is to be our submission. So that the obedience we owe to our spiritual governors, confifts in observing all their injunctions, that are contained within these bounds of their commission; in submitting to that discipline, which they shall inflict, either to recover us from a state of folly, or to preserve us from falling into it; in attending their public administrations at such times and places as they shall appoint, and upon such occasions as they shall judge proper, to increase our piety and devotion; and in submitting to such regulations as they shall think conducive towards the edifying of the body of Christ. This is our duty; for things which are indifferent in their nature, when commanded by lawful authority, are no longer indifferent to us, but

but become necessary in their use; and in disobeying them that have the rule over, us, we disobey God, who has commanded us to be subject for conscience sake; and therefore all this we are to do, from a sense of that right which they have to command, intrusted to them by God our Saviour, and of that great penalty to which we are liable by our contempt; for he that despiseth them, despiseth Him that sent them.

To you, any more than it is to Dr. SMITH, that you should know the name of the person, who now addresseth you. Your mind cannot be biassed, either way, by that, of which you remain ignorant. The remarks in the following pages are not therefore true, or false, because I made them; but I made them, because I thought them to be true. Read, consider, and determine for yourself. If you find no satisfaction, throw the book into the fire; regret (but with moderation, as becometh a philosopher) the loss of your sixpence.

and take care not to lose another, in the same manner. If, on the contrary, you should find satisfaction (and, it is humbly hoped, you will find a great deal) neglect not to communicate to others, what has thus been communicated to you. Speak hand-somely of me, wherever you go, and introduce me to your kinsfolk and acquaint ance. The enemies of Religion are awake; let not her friends sleep.

I intended a much longer work; but, like the learned editor of Mr. Home's Life, am necessitated to "gratify," with all possible expedition, "the impatience "of the public curiosity;" so eager is it to hear, what they, who believe in God, can possibly have to say for themselves. VOU have been lately employed in em-, balming a philosopher; his body, I believe I must say; for concerning the other part of him, neither you nor he feem to have entertained an idea, fleeping or waking. Elfe, it furely might have claimed a little of your care and attention; and one would think, the belief of the foul's existence and immortality could do no harm, if it did no good, in a Theory of Moral Sentiments. But every gentleman understands his own bufinessibest.

Will you do an unknown correspondent the honour, Sir, to accept a few plain remarks, in a free and easy way, upon the curious letter to Mr. STRAHAN, in which this ever memorable operation of embalming is performed? Our Philosopher's account of bis own life will likewise be considered, as we go along.

Trust me, good Doctor, I am no bigot, enthusiast, or enemy to human learning-Et ego in Arcadia-I have made many a hearty meal, in private, upon CICERO and VIRGIL, as well as Mr. Hume*. Few persons (though, perhaps, as Mr. Hume fays, upon a like occasion, "I ought not to judge on that subs ject") have a quicker relish for the productions of genius, and the beauties of composition. It is therefore as little in my intention, as it is in my power, to prejudice the literary character of your friend. From fome of his writings I have received great pleasure, and have ever esteemed his History of England to have been a noble effort of matter and motion. But when a man takes it into his head to do mischief, you must be fensible, Sir, the Public has always reason to lament his being a clever fellow.

I hope it will not be deemed vanity in me likewise to say, that I have in my composition a large proportion of that, which our inimitable SHAKESPEARE Styles, the milk of buman kindness. I never knew what envy or hatted was; and am ready, at all times, to praife, wherever I can do it, in honour and confcience. David, I doubt not, was, as you affirm, a focial agreeable person, of a convivial turn, told a good ftory, and played well at "his favourite game of whift." I know not that JOHN THE PMNTER did the same. But there is no abfurdity in the supposition. If he did not, he might have done it-Doctor, be not offended—I mean no harm. I would only infer thus much, that I could not, on that account, bring myself absolutely to approve his odd fancy of firing all the dockyards in the kingdom.

Concerning the philosophical opinions of Mr. Huma you observe +, that " men will, no " doubt, judge variously." They are certainly at liberty so to do, because the author himself did the same. Sometimes, to be fure, he efteemed them ingenious, deep, fubtile, elegant, and calculated to diffuse his literary fame to the ends of the world. But, at other times, he judged very differently; very much fo, indeed. "I dine," favs he, " I play a game at back-gammon, I converfe, " and am merry with my friends; and when, " after three or four hours amusement, I would return to these speculations, they se appear fo cold, fo firained, and fo ridiculous, " that I cannot find in my heart to enter into " them any farther "." Now, Sir, if you will only give me leave to judge, before dinner, of Mr. Hume's philosophy, as he judged of it after dinner, we shall have no farther dispute upon that subject. I could indeed wish, if it were possible, to have a scheme of thought, which would bear contemplating, at any time of the day; because, otherwise, 2 person must be at the expence of maintaining a brace of these metaphysical Hobby Horses, one to mount in the morning, and the other in the afternoon.

After all, Sir, friend as I am to freedom of opinion (and no one living can be more fo) I am rather forry, methinks, that men should judge fo variously of Mr. Hume's philosophical speculations. For since the design of them is to banish our of the world every idea. of truth and comfort, falvation and immortality, a future flate, and the providence, and even existence of Gos, it seems a pity, that we cannot be all of a mind about them, though we might have formerly liked to hear the authorcrack a joke, over a bottle, in his life time. And I could have been well pleafed to have been informed by you, Sir, that, before his death, he had ceafed to number among his happy effusions tracts of this kind and tendency.

For—(let me come a little closer to you, Doctor, if you please, upon this subject—Don't be under any apprehensions—my name does not begin with a B—) Are you sure, and can you make us sure, that there really exist

no fuch things as a God, and a future state of rewards and punishments? If so, all is well Let us then, in our last hours, read LUCIAN, and play at whist, and droll upon Charon and his boat *; let us die as foolish and infensible, as much like our brother philesophers, the calves of the field, and the affes of the defart, as we can, for the life of us. But -if fuch things BE-as they most certainly ARE-Is it right in you, Sir, to hold up to our view, as " perfectly wife and virtuoust," the character and conduct of one who feems to have been possessed with an incurable antipathy to all that is called RELIGION; and who ftrained every nerve to explode, suppress, and extirpate the spirit of it among men, that it's very name, if he could effect it, might no more be had in remembrance? Are we, do you imagine, to be reconciled to a character of this fort, and fall in love with it, because it's owner was good company, and knew how to manage his cards? Low as the age is fallen, I will venture to hope, it has grace enough yet left, to refent fuch usage as this.

You endeavour to entertain us with some pleasant conceits that were supposed by Mr. Hume to pass between himself and old Charron. The philosopher tells the old gentleman, that, "he had been endeavouring to open the eyes of the Public;" that he was correcting his works for a new edition," from which great things were to be expected; in short, "if he could but live a sew years longer (and that was the only reason why he would wish to do so) he might have the fatisfaction of seeing the downsal of some of the prevailing systems of superstition."

We all know, Sir, what the word superstition denotes, in Mr. Hume's vocabulary, and against what Religion his shafts are levelled, under that name. But, Doctor Smith, do you believe, or would you have us to believe, that it is Charon, who calls us out of the world, at the appointed time? Doth not HE call us out of it, who sent us into it? Let me, then, present you with a paraphrase of the Wish, as addressed to him, to whom it should, and to whom alone, with any sense and propriety it can be addressed.—Thus it runs—

"LORD, I have only one reason why I would wish to live. Suffer me so to do, I most humbly beseech thee, yet a little while, till mine eyes shall behold the success of my undertaking to overthrow, by my metaphysics, the faith which thy Sow descended from heaven to plant, and to root out the knowledge and the love of thee from the earth."

Here are no rhetorical figures, no hyper-bole's, or exaggerations. The matter is even for I appeal, in the face of the world, Sir, to yourfelf, and to every man, who can read and understand the writings of Mr. Humi, whether this be not, in plain, honest English, the drift of his philosophy as it is called; for the propagation of which alone he wished to live; and concerning which you are pleased to say coolly, "men will judge variously, every one approving or condemning these opinions, according as they happen to co-

You talk much, Sir, of our philosopher's gentleness of manners, good nature, compassion, generofity, charity. Alas, Sir, whither were they all fled, when he so often fate down calmly and deliberately to obliterate from the hearts of the human species every trace of the knowledge of Gop and his dispensations; all faith in his kind providence, and fatherly protection; all hope of enjoying his grace and favour, here, or hereafter; all love of him, and of their brethren for his fake, all the patience under tribulation, all the comforts, in time of forrow, derived from thefe fruitful and perennial fources? Did a good man think himself able, by the force of metaphysic incantation, in a moment, to blot the fun out of heaven, and dry up every fountain upon earth, would he attempt to do it?—Tully had but a faint glimpse of the country to which we are all travelling; yet, so pleasing was any the most impersect and shadowy prospect into suturity, that Tully declared, no man should ravish it from him. And surely, Tully was a philosopher, a well as Hume. O had he seen the light which shone upon Hume, he would not have closed his eyes against it; had the same cup been offered to him, he would not have dashed it untasted from him!

"Perhaps our modern sceptics are igno"rant, that without the belief of a God, and the hope of immortality, the miseries of human life would often be insupportable.

But can I suppose them in a state of total and invincible stupidity, utter strangers to the human heart, and to human affairs?

Sure, they would not thank me for such a supposition. Yet this I must suppose,

Quod si in hoc erro, quod animos hominum immortales esse credam, libenter erro; nec mihi hunc errorem, quo delector, dum vivo, extorqueri volo. De Senectute, ad Fin.

" or I must believe them to be the most " cruel, the most perfidious, and the most " profligate of men. Careffed by those who " call themselves the great, ingrossed by the " formalities of life, intoxicated with vanity, " pampered with adulation, diffipated in the " tumult of bufinefs, or amidst the vicifi-" tudes of folly, they perhaps have little " need and little relish for the consolations of " religion. But let them know, that in the " folitary fcenes of life, there is many an " honest and tender heart pining with incu-" rable anguish, pierced with the sharpest " fling of disappointment, bereft of friends, " chilled with poverty, racked with difeafe, " fcourged by the oppressor; whom nothing " but trust in Providence, and the hope of " a future retribution could preserve from " the agonies of defpair. And do they, " with facrilegious hands, attempt to violate " this last refuge of the miserable, and to " rob them of the only comfort that had fur-" vived the ravages of misfortune, malice, " and tyranny? Did it ever happen, that " the influence of their execrable tenets dif-" turbed

" turbed the tranquillity of virtuous retirement, deepened the gloom of human dif-" trefs, or aggravated the horrors of the grave? Is it possible, that this may have " happened in many instances? Is it pro-" bable, that this hath happened in one " fingle instance ?- Ye traitors to human " kind, ye murderers of the human foul, " how can you answer for it to your own " hearts! Surely, every fpark of your ge-" nerofity is extinguished for ever, if this " confideration do not awaken in you the * keenest remorfe, and make you wish in " bitterness of foul-But I remonstrate in " vain. All this must have often occured " to you, and been as often rejected, as ut-* terly frivolous. Could I enforce the pre-" fent topic by an appeal to your vanity, I " might possibly make some impression. But to plead with you on the principles of BI-" NEVOLENCE, OF GENEROSTTY, is to address ce you in a language ye do not, or will not " understand; and as to the shame of being " convicted of abfurdity, ignorance, or want of candour, ye have long ago proved your-« felves

er felves superior to the sense of it. - But let or not the lovers of truth be discouraged. " Atheism cannot be of long continuance, " nor is there much danger of it's becoming " univerfal. The influence of fome confpi-" cuous characters hath brought it too much " into fashion; which, in a thoughtless and " profligate age, it is no difficult matter to " accomplish. But when men have retrieved " the powers of ferious reflection, they will " find it a frightful phantom; and the mind " will return gladly and eagerly to it's old " endearments. One thing we certainly " know; the fashion of sceptical and meta-" physical fystems passeth away. Those un-" natural productions, the vile effusion of a " hard and stupid heart, that mistakes it's " own restlessness for the activity of genius, " and it's own captionines for fagacity of understanding, may, like other monsters, ' please awhile by their singularity; but the " charm is foon over; and the fucceeding " age will be aftonished to hear, that their " fore-fathers were deluded, or amused, with " fuch fooleries."

You, Sir, have read the preceding paragraph before; but this Letter may come into the hands of many, who have not. It is the alarum bell to the admirers of Mr. Hume; and should be rung in their ears, till succeeded by the last trumpet.

And now, Sir, will you give me leave to ask you a few questions? Why all this hurry and buftle, this eagerness to gratify the pretended " impatience of the Public "," and fatisfy it, that our philosopher lived and died perfectly composed and easy? Was there, then, any fuspicion, in Scotland, that he might not, at times, be quite fo composed and easy as he should have been? Was there any particular BOOK ever written against him, that shook his system to pieces about his ears, and reduced it to a heap of ruins, the fuccels and eclat of which might be supposed to have hurt his mind, and to have affected his health? Was there any AUTHOR, whose name his friends never dared to mention before him, and warned all strangers, that were introduced failed, when by any accident it was done, to fly out into a transport of passion and swearing*? Was it deemed necessary, or expedient, on this account, that he should represent him, to have been persectly secure of the growth and increase of his philosophic reputation, as if no book had been written, which had impaired it; it having been judged much easier to dissemble the fall of Dagon, than to

Upon the whole, Doctor, your meaning is good; but I think you will not succeed, this time. But, surely, he who can restect, with complacency, on a friend thus misemploying his talents in his life, and then amusing himself with Lucias, Whist, and Charon, at his death, may smile over Babylon in ruins; esteem the earthquake, which destroyed Lisbon, an agreeable occurrence; and congratulate the hardened

OH,

Would we know the baneful and pestilential influences of false philosophy on the human heart? We need only contemplate them in this most deplorable instance of Mr. Hume.

These sayings, Sir, may appear harsh; but they are falutary. And if departed spirits have any knowledge of what is passing upon earth, that person will be regarded by your friend as rendering him the truest services, who, by energy of expression, and warmth of exhortation, shall most contribute to prevent his writings from producing those effects upon mankind, which he no longer wishes they should produce. Let no man deceive himfelf, or be deceived by others. It is the voice of eternal TRUTH, which crieth aloud, and faith to you, Sir, and to me, and to all the world—He that believeth on the Son bath everlasting life; and he that believeth not the Son, Mall shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him *.

By way of contrast to the behaviour of Mr. Hume, at the close of a life, passed without God in the world, permit me, Sir, to lay before yourself, and the Public, the last sentiments of the truly learned, judicious, and admirable Hooker, who had spent bis days in the service of his Maker and Redeemer.

After this manner, therefore, spake the author of the Ecclesiastical Polity, immediately before he expired—

"I have lived to fee, that this world is "made up of perturbations; and I have been long preparing to leave it, and gathering comfort for the dreadful hour of making my account with God, which I now appreshend to be near. And though I have, by his grace, loved him in my youth, and feared him in mine age, and laboured to have a conscience void of offence, towards him, and towards all men; yet, if thou, Lord, fouldest be extreme to mark what I have done amis, who can abide it? Doctor Smith, when the hour of his departure hence shall arrive, will copy the example of the Believer, or the infidel, as it liketh him best. I must freely own, I have no opinion of that reader's bead, or bears, who will not exclaim, as I find myself obliged to do—

AS it is possible, Sir, nay probable, that this little tract, because it is a little one, may be perused by many, who have not leifure or inclination to go through large volumes, and yet wish to know what Mr. Hume's philosophical fystem is; I shall here subjoin a short, but comprehensive summary of the doctrines which compose it, drawn up, some few years. ago, by a learned gentleman, for his amuse ment, with proper references to those parts o our philosopher's works, where such doctrines. were to be found. And though I never heard, the compiler had the thanks of Mr. HUME for fo doing, yet neither could I ever find, that he or his friends disputed the fidelity and accuracy with which it was done *..

^{*} See Dr. BEATTIE's Essay on Truth, Part II-Ch. I. Sect. I. and Part III. Ch. II.

A SUMMARY OF MR. HUME'S DOCTRINES, METAPHYSICAL AND MORAL.

OF THE SOUL.

That the foul of man is not the same this moment, that it was the last; that we know not what it is; that it is not one, but many things; and that it is nothing at all.

That in this foul is the agency of all the causes that operate throughout the sensible creation; and yet that in this soul there is neither power nor agency, nor any idea of either.

That matter and motion may often be regarded as the cause of thought.

OF THE UNIVERSE.

That the external world does not exist, or at least, that it's existence may reasonably be doubted.

That the universe exists in the mind, and that the mind does not exist.

That the universe is nothing but a heap of perceptions, without a substance.

That though a man could bring himself to believe, yea, and have reason to believe, that g

every thing in the universe proceeds from some cause; yet it would be unreasonable for him to believe, that the universe itself proceeds from a cause.

OF HUMAN KNOWLEDGE.

That the perfection of human knowledge is to doubt.

That we ought to doubt of every thing, yea, of our doubts themselves, and therefore, the utmost that philosophy can do, is to give us a doubtful solution of doubtful doubts *.

That the human understanding, acting alone, does entirely subvert itself, and prove by argument, that by argument nothing can be proved.

That man, in all his perceptions, actions, and volitions, is a mere passive machine, and has no separate existence of his own, being entirely made up of other things, of the existence of which he is by no means certain; and yet, that the nature of all things depends fo much upon man, that two and two could not be equal to four, nor fire produce heat, nor the fun light, without an act of the human understanding.

The fourth section of Mr. Hume's Essays on the Human Understanding, is called Sceptical doubts concerning the operations of the human understanding; and the sisth section bears this title, Sceptical Solution of those doubts.

OF GOD.

That it is unreasonable to believe God to be infinitely wise and good, while there is any evil or disorder in the universe.

That we have no good reason to think the universe proceeds from a cause.

That as the existence of the external world is questionable, we are at a loss to find arguments by which we may prove the existence of the Supreme Being, or any of his attributes.

That when we speak of Power, as an attribute of any being, God himself not excepted, we use words without meaning.

That we can form no idea of power, nor of any being endued with power, much less of one endued with infinite power; and that we

That every human action is necessary, and could not have been different from what it is.

That moral, intellectual, and corporeal virtues are nearly of the fame kind—In other words, that to want honesty, and to want understanding, and to want a leg, are equally the objects of moral disapprobation.

That adultery must be practised, if men would obtain all the advantages of life; that, if generally practised, it would in time cease to be scandalous; and that, if practised secretly and frequently, it would by degrees come to be thought no crime at all.

Lastly, as the soul of man, according to Mr. Hume, becomes every moment a diffe-

PLAN OR SALVATION

THIS little Tract may be of general Use, but was drawn up principally for the Benefit of fuch, as cannot read; who are really great Objects of Compassion; and it may therefore be reasonably expected, that their Relations, and others, who can read, should supply this Defect in their Education by reading it to them in small Portions, and at proper Seasans, (especially on the Sabbath) that they may not be ignorant of those Things, which it bigbly concerns them to know; and it is n be boped, that it will by the Grace of God be so deeply impressed on their Hearts, as to produce to the peaceable Fruit of Righteousness;" that they may glorify God by their Christian Profession, and Practice! And, that thefe important Purpofes may be answered, they are exhorted to pray for the divine Bleffing on what is here earnestly recommended to their constant Attention.

BRISTOL, April 15, 1778.

N.B. There will be no occasion to take any Notice to such as cannot read, of the Texts, which are put as Notes at the Bottom, till they are thoroughly acquainted with the Assertions, which such Texts are intended to prove: And then these may be read to them, as Consirmations from Scripture of what they are required to believe, and practise.

1. Begin and end every Day with humble and earnest Prayer to God through the Intercession of Christ; and examine your Heart and Life every Evening, particularly by the Prayers you presented to God in the Morning; that you may see whether you have endeavoured to act agreeably to the Petitions you then made.

2. Learn a few Texts of Scripture by Heart every Sunday, (especially that or those, which you hear preached on at Church,)—and, during the Week, think on them, and pay a due Regard to them in your Conduct.

PREFACE.

A LMOST all the Controversial Writers in Divinity (or at least of those that I have met with) seem to me to be guilty of one of these two Mistakes; and some of both of them.

First, all that they endeavour to do is to prove the Truth of the Doctrines which they maintain, without clearly and distinctly shewing how far the Belief of them is necessary to Salvation: And, Secondly, Many of them lay more Weight upon the Authority of the Fathers, Councils, and ancient Liturgies, than what, I think, there is sufficient Ground for.

If God requires the Belief of a Doctrine, as necessary to Salvation; no Man, who is A 2 convinced convinced of this, can possibly doubt but that the Doctrine is true. But it is possible that a Doctrine may be true, and yet the Belief of it may not be necessary to Salvation.

Men of Capacity, no doubt, may be allowed to debate even the bare Truth of Doctrines; provided that they do it with Modesty and Humility. But as for the Truth of those Doctrines, the Belief of which is not necessary to Salvation, the Generality of Mankind are not capable of rightly apprehending and judging of the Arguments that are brought, on the one Side, and the other, when such Doctrines are controverted.

Great Care, therefore, ought always to be taken clearly to distinguish the Things that are necessary to Salvation from those that are not so; that Men of small Capacity (who yet ought to take Care of their Salvation) may learn whatever is necessary for them; without amusing themselves with Things that are not necessary, and of which they are not, it may be, able, with the greatest Application, to form a right Judgment.

The Being of God, the Creator of all Things, with the Obligation that lies upon us, his rational Creatures, to worship and obey him; and also the Truth of the Christian Religion, in the general, may be proved, and often have been proved by fuch clear and convincing Arguments, as a Man even of a low Capacity may well apprehend: But the Difficulty that lies upon fuch a Man, is clearly to find out what is necessary for bis Salvation; in the midst of all the Disputes and Controversies about this Matter, which are maintained and kept up by the feveral contending Parties, who, all of them, call themselves by the common Name of Christians.

Nothing is or can be necessary to Salvation, but only what God, who is the Author and Giver of Salvation, has prescribed to be performed on our Part, as a Condition of it: Into which therefore every Man, who would be saved, is concerned and obliged, with all the Care he can, to enquire.

The Divine Authority of all those Books of Holy Scripture, which Protestants call Canonical, may be proved, and often has been proved by very plain Arguments;

A 3 and

and the universal Reception of them, among Christians of all Ages and Places, is an undeniable Proof that they give us a true Account of the Christian Religion.

And as for the Apocrypbal Books which the Church of Rome receives and owns as Part of the Old Testament; It is a sufficient Reason for our not allowing them to be of Divine Authority, that the Jews, unto whom were committed the Oracles of God, Rom. iii. 2. never received or owned them as fuch; To fay nothing now of the other Arguments that are brought against them. Or in case we should allow them to be of Divine Authority, yet it does not appear that they teach any thing to be necessary to Salvation, different from what is taught in the Canonical Scriptures.

If then all that God requires as necessary to Salvation, can plainly be pointed out and shewn from the Canonical Scriptures; it plainly follows, that every fincere Christian must thereby be concluded.

Or if any Man shall undertake to shew that any thing more is required as necessary to Salvation, beside what the Scripture teaches so to be; and for this Purpose shall urge the Decrees of General Councils, the Writings of the Fathers, or the ancient Liturgies of the Church as the Conveyers of Tradition to us; befide the particular Answers that may be, and often have been given to all these Allegations, it is enough to tell him, that before fuch Proof as this is to be admitted, it must be clearly shewn and made out that these Councils, Fathers, and Liturgies, are of no less than Divine Authority; fince none but God himself has Power to prescribe the Terms and Conditions of Salvation. And if the Holy Scripture plainly says, This is all that God requires as necessary to Salvation, and yet any Man shall tell me that He requires more than this; is not this to make God contradict Himfelf?

These Considerations have put me upon framing the following short, but, I hope, plain Discourse; which at first was delivered as a Sermon, and is now published, in hope that it may be of some Benefit to all such Readers as seriously look beyond this transitory World, and are more desirous to know their Duty, and put it in practice, than to fill their Heads with subtile Notions.

OR, AN

ESSAY toward Leffening the Number of Controversies among Christians.

wip're teament lies bus poiess

IT will not be amis, in the Entrance of this Discourse, to lay down some common Principles, in which all Christians unanimously agree, and which therefore I need not stand to prove: Although, if there were Occasion, they may be proved, and indeed often have been proved, by such clear and solid Arguments as are abundantly sufficient sully to convince every sober and impartial Man.

I. All Religion consists in Faith and Obedience. To believe whatever a Man is persuaded that God requires him to believe, and to do or forbear every thing according as he is persuaded that God requires him to do or forbear it, make up the Sum total of every Man's Religion.

Il. The Christian Religion, as it was delivered to the World by Jesus Christ and his A 5 Apostles, Apostles, is from God, and has God for its Author.

III. A true Account of the Christian Religion is given in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testament. The Church of Rome indeed will not allow it to be a full Account; for which Reason they add what they call Tradition to it: But whatever Account is given of Christ or his Religion in the Holy Scriptures, they allow it to be true: Which is enough for my present Purpose.

IV. However difficult it may be to find out the true Meaning and full Import of divers obscure Passages of Holy Scripture; yet very many Passages of It are so plain, as to leave no Room to doubt of the true Sense of them.

These four Things being briefly premifed; I proceed to what I have proposed.

It is justly complained of, by sober Men of all Parties, that a great many very difficult Questions are intermixed with the Doctrines of the Christian Religion: So many, as that it is impossible for any Man to remember them all; and so difficult and intricate as to be beyond the Capacity of much the greater Part of Men even to understand them.

But there is one fingle Question, to which if a Man knows how to give a clear and full Answer, he will have very little Occasion to trouble himself about any other Question or Controversy in Religion. The Question which I mean is this: What must a Man do to be sure and certain of eternal Salvation? If a Man be well and fully informed of every thing which is necessary for his Salvation, and takes sufficient Care to put it duly in Practice; What possible Occasion can be have for any more Religion, or how indeed can any thing properly be called by the Name of Religion, that is not necessary to Salvation ?

Now the various Ways that Christians of different Parties have of giving an Answer to this most important Question, being still a great Perplexity to the Minds of many wellmeaning Men, and the Occasion of many Divifions and Schisms in the Church of Christ; the best and indeed the only Way for a Man to arrive at full Satisfaction herein, will be to have Recourse to Jesus Christ himself and his Apostles, whose Authority among all Christians is unquestionable; and to learn what is the Anifwer which they have given to it. And if we plainly find that they have given a full and clear Account of all that is necessary to Salvation, What Man is there, who calls himself a Christian, that will dare to make any Alteration in, or Addition to what they have plainly declared and made known touching this Matter?

To come home then to the Point: We find this very Question put to our Blessed Saviour, in these Words, Matt. xix. 16. What good thing hall I do that I may have eternal life? To which our Saviour returns this Answer, ver.

17. If

17. If thou wilt enter life, keep the commandments. The same Question, with our Saviour's Answer to it, is recorded by St. Mark, ch. x. ver. 16, 17. And by St. Luke, chap. xviii. ver. 17, &c. Again, upon another Occasion, a certain Lawyer, to make a Trial of our Bleffed Saviour, puts the fame Question to him; Master, fays he, what shall I do to inherit etanal life? He faid unto Him, What is written in the Law? How readest thou? And he answering faid, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy beart, and with all thy foul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour as thyself. And he said unto him, Thou bast answered right: this do and thou shalt live, Luke x. 25, 6.

Thus we have our Bleffed Saviour's Answer to this great Question. Let us hear also what

Alls ii. 37. The People said unto Peter, and to the rest of the Apostles, Men and brethra, what shall we do? Their Meaning undoubtedly was to know what they were to do, in order to their Salvation. Then Peter said unto them, Repent and be haptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sin. Though this Answer is expressed in other Words; yet in reality it is the very same that our Saviour (as we have heard) had before given to the like Question; Repentance being nothing but the turning away from Sin, to keep the Commandments of God; and it being out one of the Commandments, which God had then given by Jesus Christ that Men should be baptized in bis name, Matt. xxviii. 19.

Alls xvi. 30. We again find this fame Queftion to have been put to St. Paul and his Companion Silas, by the keeper of the Prison who had them in Custody: Sirs, said he, what must I do to be faved? To which their Answer was: Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou halt be faved, and thy boufe; that is to fay, as many of thy House as shall believe. Now that this Answer also is exactly agreeable to those which I have already mentioned will easily appear if we consider, that to believe on the Lord Jesus Christ most certainly includes the receiving and owning the Doctrine which he taught; the fundamental Principle of which was, That to keep the Commandments of God is the only way to Salvation; and that one of these Commandments is, That we should believe on the name of bis Son Jesus Christ; as St. John expressly tells us, 1 John iii. 22.

Although these Answers, as I have thus nakedly set them down, may appear to be sufficiently plain to every honest Man who sincerely aims at the knowledge of his Duty; yet that they may make, if possible, a suller and clearer Impression upon our Minds, it will not be amis to add a sew other remarkable Passages of holy Scripture to them, wherein God is pleased to point out the Sum and Substance of all that he requires from Men; and conse-

Deut. x. 12. Moses thus speaks unto the People of God: And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good?

Matter: Fear God and keep bis commandments; For this is the whole duty of Man; says Solomon, Ecclef. xii. 13.

The Prophet Isaiab having expostulated with the People of Ifrael for their great Wickedness, and in a particular Manner for their Hypocrify in performing the outward ceremonial Part of Religion, when at the same time they were most corrupt and immoral in their Lives; at last comes to shew them what they must do, in order to a full Reconciliation with Almighty God, whom they had most grievously offended. Wash ye (fays God by the Mouth of that Prophet) make you clean, put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes, cease to do evil, learn to do well, seek judgment, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. After which it follows: Though your Sins be as fearlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool, Isaiah i. 16. &c. The .

The Prophet Micab put this Question of a Man who appears desirous to please God: Wherewithal shall I come before the Lord, and how myself before the bigh God? &c. to which he gives this Answer: He bath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? Micah vi. 6, &c. God is no respecter of Persons: But in every nation he that seareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him, says St. Peter, Acts x-34, 35.

The grace of God that bringeth salvation bath appeared to all Men; teaching us, that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world, Looking for that blessed bope, and the glorious appearing of the great God, and our Saviour

Jesus Christ ; fays St. Paul, Tit. ii. 11.

Many other like Paffages of Holy Scripture might be added, if, in so plain a Case, it were necessary; but the main Tenor and Drift both of the Old and New Testament, being manifestly all to this very Purpose, makes it altogether needless. And therefore from the whole I may, upon very sure Grounds, lay down this Conclusion, in answer to the Question proposed:

That To believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and to keep the Commandments of God, is the sure and

The

The Necessity of believing in the Lord Jesus Christ, in order to Salvation, is most expressly declared in the Holy Scriptures. Thus our Saviour Himself says, God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life, &c. John iii. 16, 17, 18, 19. And again, ver. 36. He that believeth on the Sm, bath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

Again: This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent, John xvii. 3. Neither is there salvation in any other: For there is now other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved, as St. Peter tells us, Asts iv. 12. To which many more Texts might be added, but that they are already sufficiently known to every one who is a little acquainted with the New Testament,

And that it is in like manner necessary that we keep the Commandments of God, is so expressly declared in the Passages which I have already quoted, with many others that might be added, and so universally acknowledged by all Christians, that I need say no more for the Pros of it.

Before I proceed farther in what I delign, there is one Difficulty, with which many seem to be puzzled, for the removing of which it will not be improper to say something. 1

If

" If (fay they) explicitly to believe in Jefus Christ, and to keep the Commandments of God, be thus absolutely necessary to eternal Salvation; what shall become of those who, all their Life long, have been, are, or shall be kept in invincible Ignorance of all, or almost all these Things? It is impossible for a Man to believe in Chrift, if he has never heard of him, or of the Grounds or Reafons upon which our Belief in him is to be founded. It is also impossible for him to keep the Commandments of God, if he does not fo much as know what these Commandments are. And yet that Millions and Millions of People, in all Ages of the World, have lived and died not only in the utter Ignorance of all these Things, but without any Way or Means of coming to the Knowledge of them, is beyond Difpute: And that Millions and Millions more are likely to continue to do the same, may well be concluded from the present State of Mankind upon the Face of the Earth. Must all these poor Souls then be eternally damned for not believing and doing what, for want of Knowledge and even the Means of it, was absolutely impossible for them to believe or do? Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right? Gen. xviii. 25.

To all which it is very sufficient to answer, the Words of Moses, That secret things belong mto the Lord our God: but those things which are revealed belong to us and to our children for ever, Deut. xxix. 29.

Both Reason and Holy Scripture give us a bundant Affurance that God is infinitely just and good; and therefore that he will neither deal unjustly nor cruelly with any Man. If a Man has fufficient Knowledge, and will not act according to it; or if he has the Means of Knowledge in his Power, and will not make use of them, he justly deserves to be punished; and whatever Punishment he undergoes for his Obstinacy or gross Neglect, he brings it of himself; and therefore has none but himself to blame for it. And yet what Allowance God will make, even in some of these Cases, for the Weakness and Frailty of Man, where the Temptations are very ftrong or fudden, it more than we know: Only in general Terms, he has told us, That like as a father pitieth bit children; so the Lord pitieth them that fear bin For be knoweth our frame, be remembreth that we are dust, Pfal. ciii. 13, 14. Which goodness of God, inftead of making us prefumptuous ought to lead us to repentance, Rom. ii. 4. But how he will deal with those who are invincibly (and therefore inculpably) ignorant, is a Secret, which he has referved to himself; for which Reason it would be a vain Presumption in the to enquire into it. There is scarce any Man, even among the Heathens, fo ignorant or ftupid, as not to carry some Light of Religion, in his own Reason and Conscience. How far this Light

Light shews the work of the law written in his beart (as the Apostle expresses it, Ram. ii. 15.) can be known only to God, who is the fearcher f hearts; nor has God, upon this Occasion, made any thing more known to us, but only hat as many as bave sinned without law, shall elso perish without law: and as many as bave finned in the law, shall be judged by the law, Rom. ii. 12. God will not judge any Man by Law which he never knew, nor had any Way to come to the Knowledge of: But such Men hall be judged by their own Consciences; nor s it to be doubted but that God will pass a ighteous Sentence on them; but what that entence will be, either in the general, with espect to them all; or in particular, with repect to any one Man, is never to be known o any but God, until the great Day of the Lord shall discover it.

When St. Peter, like other Men, was desirous to have his Curiosity gratisied; and, in order thereunto, put a Question to our Blessed Saviour, to know what should befal the Apostle st. John; our Saviour, instead of complying with such a fruitless Request, gives him a gentle Rebuke: What is that to thee? (says he) sollow thou me, John xxi. 22. In like manner, if a Man shall be inquisitive to know in what state the ancient Patriarchs and others are, who had but an impersect Knowledge of Christ, before his Coming into the World; nor what sor shall become of the Heathens, or others who never had, or are like to have any Knowledge at all of Christ, and but very little or none of God's Commandments; the like Answer may be given to him: "What is all this to "thee? Or how art thou concerned in it?

" Follow thou Christ; be thankful for the Means of Salvation which he hath afforded " thee, and make the right Use of them; but do not pretend to intermeddle with Matten

" which belong unto God alone, and wherein

" thou hast nothing to do."

Setting therefore this Question entirely aside, as altogether useless and impertinent to us there are two other Things which are here necessary to be enquired into, in order to our better understanding the way of Salvation.

First, What are the particular Things comprehended under this general Expression of believing in the Lord Jesus Christ? Or in other Words, what are the several Particulars which the Holy Scripture proposes to be believed concerning Christ, in order to our being sand through him?

Secondly, What are those Commandment of God, which for the same Purpose, we at obliged to keep?

First then, What are the several Particular which the Holy Scripture proposes to be be lieved concerning Christ, in order to our being saved through him?

And here I may well lay down this as a funlamental Rule: That whatever God has made mown concerning Jesus Christ, we are bound to relieve the same, as far as we can by our reasonble Diligence attain to the Knowledge of it. It s very possible indeed that one Man may have nuch more Knowledge of these Things than nother (for want either of Capacity or due information) is able to arrive to. But that very Man is bound to make an honest and incere Enquiry into what God has made mown concerning them, and to believe whatver he finds that God has made known, is that I am sure no Christian will deny, and herefore I need not offer any Proof for it.

In the first Place then, The chief and prinipal Thing that God has made known to us Jesus Christ, and which for that Reason we; re bound to believe, is, that He is the Son of ed. I call this the chief and principal Thing be believed of him, because I find it so to represented in the Holy Scripture. Thus hen our Saviour put this Question to his postles, Whom Say ye that I am? Simon Peter Swered and said, I bou art Christ, the son of e living God. And Jesus answered and said to bim, Bleffed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: For so and blood bath not revealed it unto thee, but Father which is in Heaven, Matth. xvi. 15, 5, 17. And the like Profession of Faith St. eter makes upon another Occasion: Thou bast e words of eternal life, and we believe and are.

John xi. 25. Our Bleffed Saviour says of himself unto Martha: I am the resurrection and the life: He that believeth in me, though he wen dead, yet shall he live: and who so ever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die. Believest that this? She saith unto him: Yea, Lord; I believe that thou art the Christ, the son of God, which should come into the world.

When the Eunuch, upon the Instruction which he had received from Philip, expressed Desire to be haptized; Philip said: If thou he lievest with all thine heart thou mayest. And he answered and said: I believe that Jesus Christ is the son of God. Upon which Profession of his Faith, Philip immediately haptized him, and thereby received him as a Member of the Church of Christ, as we read, Acts viii. 36, 37, 38.

When St. Paul had been miraculously converted to the Christian Faith; and from a Perfecutor of the Gospel, was, by Christ himself, made an Apostle and Preacher of it; this was the principal and sundamental Doctrine which he every where taught; as we are expressly told, Asts ix. 20. Straightway be preached Christ in the synagogues, that he is the Sm of

More than this needs not, I think, be faid to ny one who acknowledges the Divine Authoity of the Holy Scriptures, to make it appear o him, that the chief and principal Thing to e believed of our Lord Jesus Christ, is, that He is the Son of God: But here there arises a Difficulty, which at first was started by such Men as were for measuring all Things by their wn Understanding; but, in Process of Time, as not a little perplexed others also; and herefore ought to have a fair Answer given to ; which I shall endeavour to do, without inermeddling with fuch Cavils as minister quesons, rather than godly edifying, which is in aith; To which Sort of Things the Apostle irects us not to give beed, I Tim. i. 4.

The Way of fairly proposing a Difficulty is, irst to grant all that is plainly to be granted, and then to shew what more remains that yet ants to be cleared up. After which Manner, a Man of Candour and Ingenuity proposes to Difficulty which I have told you here

ises, he must thus proceed:

First, He must grant that Jesus Christ most ertainly is the Son of God; because He is oft, in a very remarkable Manner, declared in loly Scripture so to be, as I have already tewn you. What remains therefore here to be explained, is only what is the true Mean ing of this Expression.

Secondly, He must grant that such great and glorious Things are spoken of him, as cannot possibly agree to any meer Man, nor indeed to one but God. The Passages of Holy Scripture to this Purpose are many and very well known: I shall only mention two or three of them.

Why this Tem, Word (or Logos, as it is in the Original Grad) is made use of, we need not here enquire But that all is spoken of our Saviour 70/10 Christ, is allowed on all Hands, and most me nifestly appears from ver. 14. Where St. 760 continuing his Discourse, fays, The Word w made Flesh and dwelt among us, And we bebell bis glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

Col. ii. 3. The Apostle, speaking of Christians, that in him are hid all the treasures wisdom and knowledge: And ver. 9. he says that in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Gabbead bodily; which is such a Conjunction of the Divine and Human Nature in him, as never was in any other Man. It was a peculiar Privilege Privilege which God vouchfased unto this chosen Servant Moses, that whereas he made himself known unto other prophets in visions or dreams; with faithful Moses he spoke mouth to mouth, Number xii. 6, 7, 8. face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend, Exod. xxxiii. 11. But infinitely beyond all this, in Jesus Christ He has taken up his very Habitation; In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily (that is to say, substantially) says St. Paul.

Heb. i. 2. The Apostle tells us, that God path in these last days spoken to us by bis Son, abom be bath appointed beir of all things; by whom also be made the worlds. But anso the son he faith, by throne, O God, is for ever and ever, a step-re of righteoughess is the sceptre of thy kingdom,

Many other pregnant Passages of Holy Scripture might to the same Purpose be added; but they are so well known, that I need not now mention them: Those which I have already alledged being very sufficient to prove what I have said, it must in the Second Place be granted, and indeed is generally allowed by all Christians, that such great and glorious Things are spoken of Christ, as cannot possibly agree to any mere Man, no, nor to any Angel, or Creature, how excellent soever, but only to God.

Thirdly, It is also granted that Jesus Christs the Son of God, not barely in the same Manner as good Men, and the blessed Angels are some times also called the Sons of God; but in a Manner peculiar to himself, and altogether different from that wherein any other Person has this Appellation given to him. But the Stress of the Difficulty lies here, that we have no Conception of the Manner how God, who is an eternal, infinite, and immortal Spirit, could beget a Son; and how is it then possible for us to believe a Thing of which we neither have, nor indeed are capable of having and Conception or Notion?

Answer, by considering that there are many Things which we believe and are fully persuaded and convinced of, although we are also gether ignorant of the Manner how they are or came to be, such as we fully believe them to be.

Every Man is by his own Experience fully convinced that his Soul is united to his Body: But how and in what Manner it is thus united, so as to give Life, Sensation, and Motion unto the Body, which without the Soul would be but a dead Carcase, no Man is able to give an Account.

Every Man, who confiders, must of Necessity be convinced that there is and must be an eternal first Cause of all Things which never had nor could have a Beginning or Being. For if there had been but one single Instant, in which nothing at all did exist, it would be absolutely impossible that any thing should ever have existed, or been produced: And yet how, or after what Manner, it is possible that any thing should be, or exist without any Beginning of it's Being, is altogether beyond the Reach of our finite Understanding.

Every Man, who has any Religion, believes that God is present in all the Parts of the Universe, so as every where to know all things, and to be able to do whatever is possible to be done. But how, and in what Manner, he is thus Omnipresent, Omniscient, and Omnipotent, the greatest Philosopher is not able to conceive.

To give but one Instance more, and that a very familiar one: A Man born blind, who never had the least Glimmering of Light; by the Conversation which he has with other Men, is fully convinced that there is such a Sense as

Fight, whereby Men discover and distinguish Things one from another at a Distance. But how, and after what Manner, it is that Men fee, and thus distinguish Objects, he neither has not can have the least Apprehension of Notion.

Let us now apply these few Instances to the Matter in hand. We have the infallible Tellimony of the Holy Scripture that Jejus Christ's the Son, the begotten, the only begotten Son of God, John i. 14. 18. The only Difficulty, n believing this, arises from hence, that we are not able to conceive the Manner how God, who is an eternal, infinite, and immoral Spirit, could beget a Son. But if this be a good Reason for not believing Jesus Christ w be the Son of God; by the same Rule we mut not believe that our own Souls are united to our Bodies: We must not believe that God is Eternal, Omnipresent, Omniscient, or Omni-potent; because our weak Understanding is not able to form a Notion of the Manner how thefe Things are fo: And a blind Man, notwithstanding all that his Neighbours fay 10 him, must hever believe that there is any fed Thing as Sight, Light, or Colours, because it is impossible for him, without the proper Faculty, to conceive any Notion of them Indeed, at this Rate, we must not believe that any Caufe produces any Effect; because the wifest of Men are not able to give a clear Account of the Manner how Causes operate. that at last we must come to believe nothing at all.

God requires no Impossibility from us; and therefore does not expect that we should believe more of any thing, than what He hath given us both the Capacity and Means of informing ourselves, and coming to the Knowledge of: But to resuse to believe any thing that He has so expressly declared in his holy. Word, only because we do not understand the Manner how it is, or comes to be, is plainly to set our own weak and dim-sighted Wisdom upon a Level with his Divine Omniscience.

We know the Things of God but in parts we prophely of them but in part; we see them through a glass darkly, or in a riddle (as it is in the Original, and Margin of our Bibles) 1 Cor. xiii. 9. 12. We walk by faith, not by fight, 2 Cor. v. 7. And faith is the evidence of things not seen, Heb. xi. I. He therefore who believes all those great and glorious Things, that God has in his hely Word most plainly declared of Jesus Christ, and particularly that He is the only begotten Son of God; and in Confequence of this Belief, bonoureth the Son, as he bonoureth the Father, as our Saviour expressly tells us we are to do, John v. 23. his Faith in this Point, is very sufficient, because he believes all of it that God has thought fit to make known to us; and as for the Manner how these Things are or come so to be, which B 3 God

God has not thought fit to reveal; he must be content to be ignorant of it, until he comes to see God face to face, I Cor. xiii. 12.

And thus I have given such an Account, as the Holy Scripture gives of the chief and principal Thing which God has made known to be believed by us of Jesus Christ; which is, that He is the Son of God in a Manner peculiar to himself, although to us unknown.

Other Things there are which God has made known unto us of Jesus Christ, which therefore we ought to enquire into and believe, it being our Duty to grow in the Knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, 2 Pet. iii. 18. and not only to add to our faith virtue, but also to our virtue knowledge, chap. i. 5.

The Things which I here point at, are so very plainly set forth in Scripture, that be who runs may read them (as the Prophet speaks, Hab. ii. 2.) and therefore I need only to mention them; because they are generally known and believed by all Christians.

Thus then we are most plainly taught in Holy Scripture; and it is accordingly acknowledged and believed by those who receive and profess the Gospel of Christ; That is to say;

That the Son of God became Man, and took our Nature upon him;

Holy Ghost, He was conceived in the Womb of a pure Virgin, and born of her;

That he was of the Lineage of holy Abra

That

th

That he led a most pure and holy Life, without the least Spot or Stain of Sin;

That He was the Christ, or Messah, whom God had long before promised to send into the World for great and glorious Purposes;
That all the Doctrine which he taught, was from God, and therefore undoubtedly

That all the Commands and Precepts, which he gave out, were also from God, and therefore to be obeyed;

That for the Confirmation of the Truth of his Doctrine, and the Authority of his Precepts, he wrought many Miracles, which could not have been performed but by the extraordinary Power of God;

That he was unjustly crucified and put to Death, his Soul being separated from his Body;

Thefe are the particular Things comprehended under this general Expression of believing in the Lord Jesus Christ, in order to our Salvation; and they are all of them fo plainly taught in the Holy Scriptures, and fo unanimously believed in all Christian Churches, that it is hard to conceive how any Man can be ignorant of them, or any of them, except it be for want of Enquiry or Attention: Or if any Man, through the Want of Capacity or Infruction, is not fufficiently informed about them; he must be left to answer for himself at the great Judgment-Day. But if any Man shall refuse to believe them or any of them, because he is not able to find out the particular Manner how they are or can be; the fame Answer must be given to him as I have already given to those who, for the same Reason, entertain some Doubt about Jesus Christ's being the begotten Son of God. Surely God's Knewledge is infinitely greater than ours; and if He has plainly declared a Thing so to be, what a Presumption is it in us, poor Mortals, to refuse to believe B 5

it, because we are not able to understand the

There are many other particular Circumstances relating to the Birth, Life, Death, Refurrection, and Ascension of our blessed Saviour, and many other Things faid and taught by Him and his Apostles, which are very plainly fet forth in Holy Scripture, and very profitable to be known, as far as a Man is capable of coming to the Knowledge of them; of which yet if a Man happens to be ignorant, his Salvation will not be thereby affected, except his Ignorance proceeds from his own gross Neglect or Carelessness: But in the feveral Things which I have now recounted, the Glory of God, and the Salvation of us all are nearly concerned; for which Reason they ought to be known, and believed by every Christian, and diligently taught and inculcated by all fuch as have the Care of Souls committed to them.

And thus I have shewn what are the several Particulars which we are bound to believe concerning Christ, in order to our being saved through Him; which was the first Question proposed.

The other Question, which remains to be answered, is this: What are the several Commandments of God, which, for the same Purpsh we are obliged to keep? To which, in a Thing so very well known, a short Answer, provided it be plain, will, I think, be sufficient.

All the Commandments, which God has given unto Men, have been, and must of Necessity always be, either, First, Moral; or Secondly, Positive Commandments; as we usually distinguish them.

All

By Moral Commandments we mean all fuch as require Things that are good in themselves, and in their Nature; the Goodness of which eyery fober Man's Reason is sufficient to convince him of. Thus the Commandments which God has given both in the Old and New Teftament, that we should love, fear, serve, and worship him, and not give religious Worship to any other; that we should love our Neighbours as ourselves, and do unto all Men as we would they should do unto us; and that we should be sober, chafte, and temperate, and carefully abstain from every Action and Delire that is any way contrary to whatever God has thus enjoined: all this Sort of Commandments, I fay, we call Moral Commandments; because the Goodness of them is most manifest to every one who will but foberly think of them. that all these Moral Commandments are of perpetual Obligation to all Christians; and indeed to all Men that were, are, or ever shall be, is so manifestly declared throughout the Holy Scriptures, and so universally acknowledged. by all Parties, that I need not here offer any thing for the Proof of it.

Beside such Things as these, which are naturally and eternally good, and to every Man's Jober Reason appear so to be, God was formerly pleased to command other Things also, which had no other Goodness in them, but only that God had commanded them; and fuch Commandments as these we call Positive Commandments or Institutions. Thus he commanded our first Parents, that they should not eat of the Fruit of one Particular Tree in the the Garden of Eden. Thus when he had given full Liberty to Mankind to eat the Flesh of every other living Creature, for their Suffenance; yet he commanded them not to eat the Blood of any fuch Creature, Gen. ix. 4. Which Command we find several Times repeated in the Law of Moses: thus he commanded Abraham that every Male or Man-child of his Family and all his Posterity should be circum. cifed, Gen. xvii. 10. Thus he gave feveral Commands unto the People of Ifral, concerning Sacrifices, Oblations, Purifications, and the Observation of certain Days or Times: And (to omit all other particular Instances) although it is a Moral Duty, that some proper Time should be set apart for the Publick Worthip and Service of God; yet that this thould be the seventh Day of the Week, rather than the first, or second, or any other Day of it, was only a positive Commandment.

Part of that Law was to be retained but what s purely moral, is so very plain, both from he whole Design of the New Testament, and nany well known particular Passages in it, and o universally believed by all Christians, that I need not stand now to give any more particular Proof of it.

But although all the old positive Commands, which God formerly gave to his chosen People, re abolished and done away by Jesus Christ, set there were four positive Commands, which he thought sit to leave with his Apostles, for ever to be observed in his Church to the end of the World.

First, That all Persons, who are received not his Church, should be baptized in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Shoft, Matt. xxviii. 19.

Secondly, That all, who profess the Christian Faith, should often eat of that Bread, and brink of that Cup, which he appointed to be aten and drunk in remembrance of him, and to hew forth his Death until he come. Matt. axi. 26. &c. 1 Cor. xi. 23, &c.

Thirdly, That the First Day in every Week being the Day on which he arose from the Dead) should in a particular Manner be set a part for the Service of God, and the holy Assemblies for his Worthip: Which has all along been done in the Christian Church from the very Time of his Resurrection, John xx. 26.

Fourthly, That (to avoid Confusion, 1 Cor. xiv. 23.) every Man should not be at Liberty to take upon himself the Performance of Holy Offices in the Church; but that there should every where be settled Pastors and Teachers, whose proper Business it should be to instruct the People, and so to regulate all the Circumstances of religious Performances among them, as that all things be done to edifying, I Cor. xiv. 26. and decently and in order, y. 40. For this Purpose our Saviour sent his Apostles, John xx. 21, as Labourers in God's Harvest, Matth. ix. 38. And they, by virtue of the Authority which they had received from him, wherever they planted the Gospel, not only regulated all these Things themselves, as we find St. Paul expressly to have done, I Cor. xiv. but also appointed others to do the same; and for this Purpose ordained Elders in every Church, Acts xiv. 23. Tit. i. 5. giving Commandment to the People to obey them who had the Rule over them, and watched for their fouls, Heb. xiii. 17. and requiring that fuch Teachers should always be continued in the Church. The things that thou hast heard from me, among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also, says St. Paul to Timothy, 2 Tim. ii. 2. Although none

none of these Teachers or Rulers were to be lords over God's beritage, 1 Pet. v. 3. or to bave dominion over the faith of Christians, 2 Cor. i. 24. but only to feed the stock of God, and take the overfight thereof, I Pet. v. 2.

And thus I have given a plain and full, though brief, Account of the Answer, which our bleffed Saviour and his Apostles have made to this important, and only necessary Question in Religion, What must we do to be faved? which is, that to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and to keep the commandments of God, is the fure and only way to eternal salvation. I have also shewn you what the particular Things are which we are to believe concerning Christ, and what the Commandments of God are which we are to keep. All the moral Commandments of God are of perperual Obligation: The positive Commandments, which he thought fit to give to his People before the Coming of Christ, are all abolished: and there are four, and but four, positive Commandments given by him to the Christian Church.

If any Man shall here ask, what we are then to think of that Multitude of Doctrines, both speculative and practical, which, by many, have been mixed and blended with Religion; and about which learned Men have so long and earnestly disputed, and writ so many Volumes, that they are not to be numbered, and much less to be read; I shall give him a very short, but plain, Answer.

First, If any Doctrine appears to be falle, and manifestly contrary to plain Reason, or Holy Scripture, or both, it is, without any more ado, to be rejected.

Secondly, If any Doctrine be intricate and perplexed, and ministers questions, rather than godly edifying which is in faith, St. Paul has directed us not to give beed to such Things,

I Tim. i. 4.

Thirdly, If any Doctrine be useful and profitable, although not strictly necessary to Salvation, there is no Doubt to be made, but that it may be soberly debated by those who are of Capacity for it: Provided always that it be done with Modesty, Humility, and Charity; and without assuming any dominion over the faith of Christians, 2 Cor. 1. 24.

Fourthly, No Doctrine is to be imposed either to be believed or put in Practice, as necessary to Salvation, besides what has been taught as such by Jesus Christ, or his Apostles. This is a Point of great Importance; and therefore

I shall a little enlarge upon it.

When God had given his Law unto the People of Ifrael, he laid a strict Injunction upon them that they should not add to the Word which he commanded them, neither should they diminish ought from it, Deut. iv. 2. and xii. 32. Solomon also gives them such another Charge, Prov. xxx. 6. Add thou not, (says he) unto his Words, lest he reprove thee, and thou he found a Liar. It was not hereby forbidden to those in Authority Authority, to make human Laws for the prudent Regulation and Conduct of Affairs, both in Church and State; but only that they should not take upon them to make any Alteration in God's Law, either by adding any thing toit, or diminishing any thing from it; but that whatever should be established by any Human Law, should no farther be required than as by Human Authority; and not imposed upon the People, as if God himself had immediately commanded it. And if no fuch Addition to, or Alteration in, the Law of God given by Moses, was allowed to be made by any Man, or Men, whatfoever; I think that, by Parity of Reason, the same Care ought strictly to be taken with regard to the Gospel of Jesus Christ. But there is fomething farther yet to be faid touching this Matter.

The Apostles of Christ, who were sent and commissioned by him to preach the Gospel; the Apostles (I say) were faithful Stewards of the Mysteries of God, I Cor. iv. 1, 2. Good Stewards of the manifold Grace of God, I Pet. iv. 10. They kept back nothing that was profitable, Acts xx. 20. But wherever they planted a Church, they declared unto them all the Counsel of God, ver. 27. That is to say, they fully taught them every thing that was necessary, or even profitable to their Salvati-their own deviling, in the Gospel. Parties. larly, there were some that taught, that except Men were circumcifed after the Manner of Moles. and kept the Law, they could not be faved, Acts xv. 1. 24. This Doctrine had made a great Progress in the Church of Galatia. The Preachers of it had no Delign of atterly abolishing, or wholly setting aside the Gospel of Christ: But they endeavoured to add something to it, as necessary to Salvation, which Christ, or his Apostles, had never taught so to be. And yet the Apostle St. Paul calls this another Gospel. I marvel (says he) that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the Grace of Christ, unto another Gospel: Which is not (indeed properly speaking) another; but there be some that trouble you, and would pervert the Gospel of Christ. By another Gospel then, it is plain, he means no more but the adding any thing to the Gospel, as necessary to Salvation, which had not been taught so to be either by Christ, or his Apostles; and to put a Stop to this and all the like Practices and Attempts, he adds these most remarkable Words: But though we, or an Angel from Heaven, preach any other Gospel unto you, than that which we bave preached unto you, let them be accursed. And that his Words may make the deeper Impression, he repeats the same Thing again, de we said before, so say I now again, If any Man, preach another Gospel unto you, than that ye bave of hazar noon c received,

Though then, for the present, we should suppose that the Authority of Tradition and all the general Councils, and others, that ever were in the World, and of all the Fathers and ancient Lituries that ever were in the Church, and of all the learned men that are, or ever were, upon the Face of the Earth, and the Authority even of an Angel from Heaven, could be brought to prove any one thing to be necessary to Salvation, which neither Christ nor his Apostles, ever taught so to be; we ought to have no Manner of Regard to it all.

As St. Paul did, fo do I repeat the fame

Thing again; Though for the present, &c.

The Terms and Conditions of our Salvation are fixed by God, and have faithfully and fully been made known by Christ and his Apostles; nor have all the Men that are, or ever were, no nor all the Angels in Heaven, any Authority given to them, or any of them, to make any Alteration in, or Addition to, them: And whoever attempts so to do, let him well consider how he shall escape that dreadful Curse, which St. Paul, in these Words of his, that I have but now quoted, denounces against him.

Let us hear the Conclusion of the whole Matter: Fear God and keep his Commandments; for this is the whole Duty of Man. For God hall bring every Work into Judgment, with every secret thing, whether it he good, or whether it be evil. Eccles. xii. 13, 14.

PREFACE.

TOO many there are of those that profess Christianity, who understand but very little of the true Design and Purport of it; and while they are so little acquainted with that which ought to be the Rule of their Faith and Actions, it is not to be wondered that their Opinions are absurd and soolish, and their Lives wicked.

Many good Sermons are preached, and Books published, for the Instruction of the People; but as a Lecture (however learned and rational) in any Art or Science, is not to be understood by any Man who is not first made acquainted with the general System of it; so Sermons, and other excellent Discourses, are but lost to Abundance of Man, for want of their being beforehand carefully grounded in the Knowledge of those Things which, generally, all Christians do agree in.

I grant, indeed, that such Things as these Men ought to have learned by attending on the Work of Catechising in their Younger Days: But where they have neglected this so necessary a Thing in their Youth, we ought, in Charity to their Souls, to use the best and easiest Method we can, to bring them to it in their riper Years.

It has been the Judgment of some wise and learned Men, that the most effectual Way, under God, to bring all Christian People to a true and prositable Understanding of, and Steadiness in, their Religion, would be to have a Set of plain and short Discourses composed, equal in Number to the Sundays in one Year, and plainly and fully confaining the whole Body of Christianity; and to have one of these Discourses read every Lord's Day in every Christian Congregation, and so to continue from one Year to another: And if Men could be content with wholesome Instruction, and were not so strangely fond of Novelty of Fancy, and Variety of Expression, I think indeed that a better Way than this could not be contrived.

And this very Thing brought into my Mind, that if any reasonable Draught of the whole Christian Religion could be made in very plain Language, and brought within the Compass of one Hour's reading: Such a little Sort of a Book being put into the Hands of those who have not Money to buy, or Leisure to read, those that are larger, and being often read in private by fingle Persons, in Families, and in English Schools, and being given in Parcels to Boys at the Latin School to translate as their Sunday's Exercise, might be of extraordinary good Use, in order to the implanting and for ever keeping fresh in their Minds and Memories, such orthodox and necessary Notions of the Christian Doctrine, es may always bave a most prositable Influence both upon upon their Faith and Practice. In Pursuance of which Design I have composed this small Work; and should be very much pleased if some judicious Person, who is a sufficient Master both for Clearness of Thought and Plainness, as well as Conciseness of Expression, would take the same Thing in Hand; who I easily grant, might persorm it much better than I have done.

The Reader is to expect no more bere, than a general Account of the netessary Doctrines and Precepts of Christianity: My Proposals being only to give Men of a mean Capacity a true Notion of these Things, by Way of Foundation for farther Knowledge. And for the more particular Handling of such Matters and Quotations of Scripture upon which they rely, I refer them to those many Sermons, and other excellent Discourses, which they have such frequent Opportunities both of hearing and reading. I shall only add, that it may be of good Use for a Man, as often as he intends to receive the Holy Communion, to read over this, or some such other like Book, which may briefly put him in mind of all the Particulars of his Duty; and so be a Help to him both in the recollecting of his Sins, and recewing of his holy Resolutions.

BEING-

A Short and Plain Account of the DOCTRINES and RULES of CHRISTIANITY.

ALL that God requires from any Man, in order to everlasting Happiness, is, First, to believe those Things which he has made known; which is called Faith: Secondly, to live according to the Rules or Laws which he has given to us; which is called Obedience: And, A 4 Thirdly, Thirdly, when a Man finds that he has any Way broken the Law of God, to be forrowful for it, to confess it to God, to beg his Pardon for it, and diligently to amend it for the Time to come; which is called Repentance. These three Things then, namely, Faith, Obedience, and Repentance, do contain the whole Substance of the Duty of every Christian.

I begin with the first of these three: And in order to enlighten the Mind, and strengthen the Faith of a Christian, I shall endeavour, First, to shew what are the chiefest of those Things which God has made known to Mankind, in order to our Belief: And, Secondly, What Grounds and Assurance we have, upon which to believe them.

As to the former of these, the Things made known by God, to be believed by us, are chiefly these:

First, That there is a God, who made the Heavens, the Earth, and all Things therein contained; and has disposed all Things in that most useful and beautiful Order in which they still continue. That God is not a Body, like unto us, nor subject unto any such Frailties or Impersections as we are: But that he is a Spirit, Eternal, without Beginning or Ending, most holy, just and true, most gracious and merciful: That he knows all Things, can do all Things, and is present every where, without being confined to any Place. And although there neither is, nor can be, more than one God, yet in the the Unity of the Godhead, or Divine Nature, there are three diffinct Persons, of whom frequent Mention is made in the Holy Scriptures; and to each of whom both the Name and Attributes of God are often afcribed: The first of these Persons is called the Father; the fecond the Son, and fometimes the Word; and the third the Holy Ghost, or Spirit. And this, in short, is the Meaning of what we call the Doctrine of the holy, bleffed, and undivided Trinity: Which is to be received and believed, because God has made it known to us; but ought not to be curiously pried into, because it is above our Understanding to comprehend. As long as we are here in the Body, we fee such Things as these but as through a Glass darkly; but when we shall be advanced to the perfect State of the Bleffed in Heaven, then we shall see Face to Face, and know even also as weare known, I Cor. xiii. 12.

To the first of these Persons, namely, to the Father, the Holy Scriptures do more immediately ascribe the Work of creating the World by his Almighty Power, and of governing and ordering it, and all Things in it, by his good Providence.

As to the fecond of these Persons, who is called the Son, or the Word, we are taught to believe that he came down from Heaven, and took the Nature of Man upon him, and became Man for our Sake, like unto us in all Things, Sin only excepted: That he was conceived by the

Now that we may understand how we are concerned in this Matter, we must here take Notice, that the first Man and Woman, Adam and Eve, whom God created at the Beginning of the World, and from whom all Mankind are descended: This first Man and Woman, I fay, foon after they were created, did commit a very great Sin, and highly offended Almighty God, in eating of the Fruit of that Tree, which God had positively and strictly forbidden them to eat, under the Threatening of a very great Punishment. By this Sin of theirs, their Nature became weakened and corrupted, and very much inclined to Sin and Wickedness. And because the Nature of the Children must needs be like to that of their Parents, the Corruption of the Nature of these two Persons, who were the common Parents of Mankind, did communicate an universal Corruption of Nature to all their Posterity; by which all Mankind has ever since been naturally inclined to do those Things which God has forbid, and to leave undone those Things which he has commanded; which Corruption of our Nature is what we commonly call by the Name of Original Sin.

And besides this 'Griginal Sin, there is no Man (except Jesus Christ) who has lived to such an Age, as to be capable of governing and managing his own Actions, but what has committed many actual Sins and Transgressions; upon both which Accounts we are all, by Nature, rendered unsit for, and incapable of, that Eternal Happiness which God has provided for us; and also are become exposed to the Wrath of God, and to that eternal Punishment, which his Justice has prepared for Sinners.

This is the fad and wretched Condition which all Mankind by Nature are in, ever fince the Sin of our first Parents. But notwithstanding that Man has thus brought himself into this evil State, yet God, in his infinite Mercy, would not presently forsake, or wholly east him off; but was pleased again to admit us all into a Capacity of being restored to his Favour, and to that eternal Happiness in the Life to come, of which our original and actual Sins had deprived us. And in order to this, he condescended to send his Son into the World to Redeemer: His Sufferings and Death being accepted of by God, as a Sacrifice and Propitiation for the Sins of the whole World: For the Sake of which, and of his most holy and unspotted Life, God has been pleased to promise Pardon and Acceptance to all those, who either before or since Christ's coming into the World, have, or shall, embrace the true Faith, heartily repent of their former Sins, and carefully lead their Lives according to the Laws and Commandments of God. And this which Josu Christ has thus done and obtained for us, is commonly called by the Name of the Work of our Redemption.

Furthermore, we are taught to believe that Jesus Christ, after his Death, did descend into Hell. But since God has not thought it necessary in his Word to give a clear and distinct Account, either what Place is meant by Hell, or for what Reason Christ did descend thither, there is no Reason why we should trouble ourselves with any curious Enquiry into this Matter.

And after it had sufficiently appeared, that Jesus Christ was truly dead; upon the third Day after his Death he rose again to Life, appeared to his Apostles, and very many of his Disciples, was seen and handled by them, and eat, drank, and conversed with them for the Space of no less than forty Days (that in that Time they might have sufficient Assurances of the Reality of his his Refurrection) after which, in the Sight of a Multitude of them, he was openly taken up, and afcended into Heaven, where he remains in the highest Glory; which is called fitting at the Right Hand of God; where he continues for ever to make Intercession with God for us.

Concerning the third Person in the Holy Trinity, who is called the Holy Ghoft, or Holy Spirit, because he works Holiness in ms, we are taught to believe that, foon after Christ's Ascension into Heaven, the Holy Ghoft being fent by the Father and the Son, and coming forth from them, did in a wonderful Manner descend upon the Apostles and Disciples of Christ; enlightening their Minds, and opening their Understandings, that they might underfland the Holy Scriptures, and know the Will of God: giving them Gifts and Abilities to teach and preach the Gospel with Truth and Power, and enabling them to speak all Sorts of Languages, that they might instruct all the feveral Nations and People in the World; and giving them Power to work Miracles for the better confirming those Things which they taught and preached. And although the Ministers and Preachers of the Gospel do not appear in these Days to be endowed with the same miraculous Gifts and Abilities as the Apofiles were, (there-being other fufficient Means for the Instruction of the People, and Confirmation of the true Faith and Religion,) yet are we affured, that where any Man, in an honest and and lawful Way, endeavours, with Sincerity and Diligence, to improve his Understanding, and increase his knowledge in the Things that relate to God and Religion, for the Good both of himself and others; the Holy Spirit of God will not be wanting to such a Man, but will assist his pious and honest endeavours, and will more and more enlighten his Mind, that he may grow and increase in the Knowledge of those Things which are necessary both to his own and others' Salvation. And thus the Holy Ghost is the immediate Author and Worker of those Gifts and Graces within us, which are necessary for the Edification, that is to say, the Instruction, of all Christian People.

And whereas, by Nature, we are all of us inclined to Evil, and unable of ourselves to think or do any Thing as we should; the Holy Spirit of God, besides the enlightening of our Minds with the Knowledge of those Things which are necessary to Salvation, does also move and work upon our Conscience, our Will, and Affections, in order to incline and bring us to, and assist us in; the diligent and constant Practice of those Things which God requires from us. And thus the Holy Ghost is also the Author of Holiness in us (I mean, if we comply with his Motions, and do not resist them.) which is called the work of Sanstification.

The whole Congregation of People, who, by the outward Preaching of the Gospel, and the inward Motions of the Holy Spirit, have been called ity called and brought to receive and embrace the true Faith, and baptifed in the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; all these Perfons, I fay, together with their Children, are called by the Name of the Church of Christ. And as a King is the Head of his Kingdom, fo is Christ the King and Head of his Church; and the very End and Design of Christ's calling and gathering his Church, being the promoting true Godliness here, in order to Salvation hereafter; for this Reason the Church is said to be boly, although many Persons, who are ungodly, may outwardly appear and profess to be Christians, and live in the visible Communion of the Church; as one that is a Rebel in his. Heart, may yet pretend to be a Subject, and live in outward Society with those who are faithful to the Government.

Furthermore, as a Kingdom or Common-wealth, by its Laws and Constitutions, is but one Society, although evil Men may raise Factions, make Parties, and cause Divisions within it; so our Saviour Christ Jesus appointed and called but one Church; in the Communion or Fellowship of which, all Saints, that is, all good Christians, are for ever to be joined and united, and to partake in common the Advantages and Privileges which God has promised to that Society; although by the Perverseness of some, and the Mistakes of others, this same Church, which ought to be entirely one both in Faith and Charity, is divided into contrary Parties, which which refuse and renounce Communion with one another.

And whereas, before the Coming of Chrift, the Church of God, that is to fay, the People whom God hath outwardly called, and made Himself and his Will known unto them by his revealed Word; whereas this Church, I fay, was then confined to one particular Place and Nation, that is to fay, to the Temple of Jerufalem, and the Children of Ifrael; Jesus Christ has called all Nations and People indifferently into his Church, offering the Advantages and Privileges thereof, in as ample a Manner to the Gentiles as to the Jews; and accepting of true Faith, Repentance, Obedienee, and Worship, alike in all Parts and Places of the whole World: upon which Account the Church is called Catholic, that is to fay, Universal.

As there is a Covenant, that is to fay, a mutual Agreement or Promise, made between a Husband and his Wise, a Master and his Servant, a King and his People: So, in like Manner, is there a Covenant made between God, in and through Jesus Christ on the one Part, and the Church on the other. Every Member of the Church, for his Part, promises and engages to perform those Things which God requires in order to Salvation, which, at the Beginning, I told you, were Faith, Obedience, and Repentance: And God, for his Part, has promised, for the Sake of Jesus Christ, that he will give the Grace and Assistance of his Holy Spirit.

Spirit to all those who make a good Use thereof; that he will pardon the Sins of those who truly repent; that although, when we die, our Bodies do return to the Earth, out of which they were taken, as our Souls do to God that gave them, yet a Day shall come, when this World shall have an End, and Jesus Christ shall come to judge all Mankind; at which Time, the Bodies of all Men shall be raised again, and re-united to their Souls; and whereas they who have lived wickedly, and died impenitently, hall be condemned to eternal Torments, with the Devil, and his evil Spirits, who were cast out of Heaven for their Rebellion against God; they who faithfully and fincerely perform those Things which God requires, shall be rewarded with everlasting Happiness and Joy in Heaven, n the Presence of God for evermore.

And thus we have heard what are the chief of those Things which God has made known to Mankind, in order to our Belief: The next Thing to be considered is, what Grounds and Assurance we have upon which we may and ought to believe him.

And here, in the first Place, some of these Things are to be believed, because we are assured of them by our own Reason and Underlanding. Thus, for Example, our own Reason informs us, that the World was made and tamed by Almighty God, because we see so such Order, Beauty, and Usefulness, in the Whole, and every Part of it: That God is eter-

These, I say, and some such Things as these, are abundantly taught us, even by our Reason alone, and therefore ought to be received and believed, even though God had not made them farther known unto us by any Revelation.

But, we have a farther Ground to believe not only these and such like Things as were last mentioned, but also all the rest of those Things of which I have been giving an Account: and that is, because they are plainly contained in that Book which we commonly call the Holy Scripture, to which Book we ought to give Credit, because the Doctrine which is contained in that Part of it which is called the New Tellement, was confirmed, not only by the Miracles and wonderful Works, but also by the Death and Sufferings of Jesus Christ, and his Apostles, and many of his Disciples: And for the other Part of it, which is called the Old Testament, we ought to give the like Credit to that also, because Jesus Christ and his Apostles do so often in the New Testament give Testimony of the Truth of it, and affure us, that it, as well as the New,

And although the feveral Parts of this Holy Book were originally written in fuch Languages is are not now generally understood by the common People, yet fince God in his Provilence, has all along stirred up the Spirits of so many and Holy Learned Men, to bestow so much Care and Pains both in the keeping and preferving, and also in the translating and explaining of this Book, and every Part of it, we may be very well affured, that if those who are inlearned do give themselves diligently to the earing and reading of it, in fuch Languages as hey do understand, and also are careful to rereive and follow fuch Instructions as godly Men, oth by Preaching and Writings, do give them out of it, God, who is good and merciful, will indoubtedly accept of them, because that, in his Case, they do all that is within their Power o do, and more cannot, with any Reason, be equired from them.

But if any Man should here tell me, that ome of those Things which the Holy Scripture proposes to be believed are far above our knowledge and Capacity, and therefore that seems impossible for us to give our Assent to hem, because we are not able to understand hem; I answer, that if any Man would perhade me to believe a Thing which were plainly contrary to Sense and Reason, and should presend that it were revealed by God, I should Sud Things as thefe, I fay, I am fure God will never impose upon us to believe, because he has fo framed the Mind of Man, as to reject a fuch Absurdities and Contradictions as these, a foon as ever he hears them named. But as for Things which do not appear to be abfurd, but only are dark and obscure, and not contrary to our Understanding, although it may be very far above it, if God has thought fit to declare fome fuch Things as these unto us, there can be no Reason why we should not give Credit to them upon his Authority. A Man who is born blind believes that there is fuch a Thing as Light, (although he knows not what it is,) because his Neighbours tell him fo: And if the Holy Scripture tells me that there are three Persons in the Unity of the Divine Nature, and that the Divine and Human Nature are joined together in the fingle Person of Christ, why ought I not to give my affent to these Things, although I do not understand the Manner of them?

And thus have I given some Account of the first Things which God requires from us; namely, to believe what he has made known, which is called Faith. I proceed therefore to the second Thing which he requires from us: Which is, to live according to those Rules or Laws which he has given us; which is called Obedience.

The Way whereby we come to know what the Laws of God are, is partly by our own Reason, and more fully by the Holy Scripture: Most of the Things which God commands are in themselves so very reasonable and plain, that they who have not the Light of his Word, may yet very eafily know them, even by the Guidance of their own Understanding; as will preently appear, when we come to take a View of the Particulars: And for the further directng and affifting our Reason, as also for the teaching us fome Part of his Will, which otherwise of ourselves we could never come to know, he has given us a full Account of all his Laws in his revealed Word: And this is a suffitient Reason to oblige us to keep them, because he, who is our Creator and Redeemer, our Supreme Lord, our Master, and our Judge, requires it from us.

The chief and most fundamental of the Laws of God (and under which all the rest may be comprehended) are those which are commonly known by the Name of the Ten Commandments: But for the more easy taking a full View both of these, and all the rest of God's Law together, they are generally divided into three Sorts; the first thereof contains all those Law which teach us our Duty to God; the second contains those Laws which teach every Man his Duty towards himself; and the third contains those Laws which teach us our Duty towards other Men: Under which Division, I shall endeavour to give as short, yet plain and comprehensive, an Account as I can of them.

First, then, as for the Duty which we owe unto God, the chief Parts or Branches of it at thefe, namely, to acknowledge and believe al those Things which he has made known (d which I have already spoken): To own that whatever he commands or threatens is very just and fit: To hope for, and expect the Performance of all his Promifes to us upon thok very Terms and Conditions that he has ket down; neither prefuming upon God's Mercy, as if he would bless us although we continue in our Sins; nor despairing of his Goodnet and Favour towards us, if we repent of them and ferve him faithfully: To love God above all Things, because he is so excellent and perfect in himself, and so good and gracious to us; and to manifest this our Love towards him, by our earnest Endeavours to do all Things which may please him; and by striving to enjoy and be with him, as much as we can here in this Life, by Prayer and Meditation; and also in the Life to come, by preparing ourfelves aws ond

Thefe, I fay, are the main Branches and fundamental Parts of our Duty to God: And as we must be ever careful and diligent to perform all these Things towards him, so must we not upon this Account, render this, or any Part of the same Duty, to any Thing or Person but to God alone. We must neither love, nor fear, nor hope, nor trust in, nor honour, nor worship, nor praise, nor pray to, any Saint, or Angel, or Image, or any Thing whatfoever, whether in Heaven or upon Earth, in the same or the like Manner as we perform these Things towards Almighty God; for God is a jealous God, and will not endure any Rival, or Competitor in that Love, Honour, and Duty, which we owe unto him.

I come now in the fecond Place, to those Laws of God, which concern the Duty of every Man towards himself: The chief Branches of which are these that follow; that is to say, to

And this shall suffice for a brief Account of that Duty which every Man, by God's Law, is obliged to perform towards himfelf.

And now, in the Third Place, for that Duty which we owe to all other Men. By the Laws of God we are obliged to love all Men whatfoever, (whether they are Poor of Rich, Low of High, Friends, Strangers, or Enemies) although not altogether as well, yet as truly and fincerely, without any Fraud or Diffimulation, as we love ourselves: and this our Love must never fail to be shewn, by our hearty Prayers for the Welfare of every Man, and our sincere Endeavours to prevent his Hurt, and promotehis Good, as far as we have Ability and Opportunity for it; always remembering and taking Care, that in our doing Good unto one diligently and tenderly watching over them, to keep them from all Harm, countenancing and encouraging them in every Thing that is good; and reproving, and fometimes correcting them, but without Bitterness or Passion, when they find them given to any Thing that is evil. Masters and Mistresses must be just and merciful to their Servants, and Servants must behave themselves not only with Faithfulness and Diligence, but also with Obedience and Respect towards their Masters and Mistresses. The Paftors and Ministers of God's Church must be exemplary in their Lives, diligent and industrious in their Teaching and Preaching of wholesome and useful Doctrine, and administering and dispensing of all the Ordinances of God, that they may, as much as in them lies, promote the Salvation of the Souls that are committed to their Charge: And the People, on the other Hand, must pay a Respect to their Pastors and Ministers, for their Work and Function's Sake, giving as constant and reverent Attendance as they can upon all Holy Offices, and carefully hearkening to, and putting in Practice, all fuch wholesome Directions and Instructions as they do or shall receive from them. And lastly, all Magistrates and Rulers, in their several Stations, must govern the People that are under them, according to the Laws and Constitutions of the Land, administering Justice with Diligence and Difpatch, and without Fear, Favour, or Affection, of

of or to any Man, only always tempering (as much as in them lies) the Rigour and Sevel rity of human Laws, with that Equity, Moderation and Mercy, that the Law of God requires, and is confiftent with the Public Good. And the People, on the other Hand, must behave themselves towards the Rulers with Honour and Reverence to their Persons. and Submiffion and Obedience to their lawful Authority, making Conscience of performing whatever the Law of the Land requires, except it should so fall out, that something is thereby commanded, which is evidently contrary to God's Law: There being nothing else that can excuse a Subject from giving Obedience to the Laws and Constitutions of that Government under which he lives, except he can make it appear, that God himself requires the contrary from him.

And thus I have done with the second Thing which God requires from us, which is Obedience to those Laws or Rules that he has given us. I come now to the third and last Thing that God requires from us, and that is Repentance; which, although it may be reckoned as a Part of our Obedience, because it is a Thing commanded by God, yet since it has an equal Relation to every one of the Divine Laws, of which I have but now been giving an Account, I thought it might not be improper to reserve it here to be spoken of in the last

Now, when a Man has transgressed any of the Laws of God, and thereby made himfelf hable to his Wrath, and eternal Damination; the first Step that he must take, in order to Repent ance and Reconciliation with him, is to be truly forrowful for his Sins, whereby he has provoked to Good and Gracious, fo Just and Powerful a God, and run himself into fo great Danger. But the Truth of this Sorrow is not to be judged of by the Violence or Passionateness of it; but that Man who has fuch a due Senfe of his Sins, as to be effectually moved thereby to forfake and amend them; he, and he only, can be faid to be truly and acceptably forrowfel for them. Now this Sorrow for Sin mult, in the next Place, move him to make an humble Acknowledgment and Confession of them to God: And that he may the better perform this, it is necessary that he often examine his own Confeience, and endeavour to bring his Sins to his Remembrance. And at the fame Time when he confesses his Sins, he must also humbly beg God's Pardon for them, for the Sake of Jefus Chrift, who died for us; and must put on serious and stedfast Resolutions that he will amend them, and lead a better Life for the Time to come; and that if he has done any Wrong in Word or Deed to any other Man whatfoever, he will make Reparation and Restitution to him to the best of his Power: And to conclude all, he must strictly keep and fulfil these Resolutions when he has made them; or

Prove all Things: Hold fast that which is

A T the twelfth Verse of this Chapter, the Apostle lays down certain Rules of Christian Piety, in distinct Sentences; having no Occasion to connect them one with the other. Of these Sentences my Text is one, of very great Concern to us all (as we shall presently see) and therefore carefully to be looked into.

which Expression we are not to include the Affairs and Business of this World. For altho, in Prudence, a Man ought to make some Proof even of such Things as these, before he engages himself in them; yet these are not the Things of which St. Paul is here speaking, but only of the Things of Religion; the Things upon which our eternal Salvation depends: These are Things which he directs us to try, examine, and prove.

Again: Hold fast that which is good, says the Apostle. By that which is good, he means only that which is agreeable and conformable to the Will of God, which, in Matters of Religion, is the only Rule of good to us. To the same Purpose he speaks, Rom. xii. 2. where he directs us to prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect Will of God. Also Eph. v. 8. Walk as Children of Light, proving what is acceptable to the Lord. And ver. 17. Beyond unwise, but understanding what the Will of the Lord is.

From the Text, thus explained, the two Propositions must evidently arise.

First, That it is the Duty of every Man to search, examine, and enquire into Matters of Religion, until such Time as he finds it proved to the Satisfaction of his Conscience, what the Will of God is, which he stands obliged to perform and sulfil.

secondly, That when he is convinced what the Will of God is, he ought to bold fast to it, and by no Means to depart from it. Prove all Things: Hold fast that which is good: That is to say, that which is agreeable to the Will of God.

Man to search, examine, and enquire into Matters of Religion, until such Time as he finds it proved, to the Satisfaction of his Conscience, what the Will of God is, which he stands obliged to perform and sulfil. And that this is so, there will need no other Argument to prove but this alone, That it is God's Command to every Man thus to do. Which will manifestly appear both from Reason and Holy Scripture.

First, from Reason. Man is a rational Creature, endowed with Understanding, whereby we are enabled to distinguish between Good and Evil, that we may approve and choose the one, and reject and disapprove the other. As then St. Paul puts this Question, Who maketh thee to differ from another? And what hast thou that thou didst not receive? That is to say, from the Hand of God: 1 Cor. iv. 7. So let us in like manner demand from ourselves, who made us to differ from the Beasts that perish? Who breathed into Man's Nostrils the Breath of Life, whereby Man is become a living Soul? Gen. ii. 7. Who is it that has given us Reason and Understanding whereby we are more distinguished from Brute Animals than by our bodily Shape? Is not all this owing entirely to the Good-will and Pleasure of our great Creator?

For what End and Purpose then has God made us rational Creatures? Is it only that we should employ our Reason about the short and transitory Things of this World, and that we should struggle and contend with one another about them? Has not he made us capable of looking up to him that created us? Of honouring, adoring, and worshipping him, and of enquiring into his holy Will? And is not this a plain Command, fignified to us by our own Reason, that we should accordingly fo do? In a Word, that Man must wholly lay aside his Reason, who does not think it his Duty to employ it in enquiring after the Will of God, to the Intent that he may

may perform it; wherein all Religion en-

And therefore St. Paul pronounces the Heathen World to be without Excuse; because that when they knew God, they glorified bim not as God. They had fome competent Knowledge of God even by their own natural Reason: Because (as the Apostle speaks) that which may be made known of God was manifested in them: For God bad hewed it unto them. For the invisible Things of bim, from the Creation of the World, are clearly feen, being understood by the Things that are made, even bis eternal Power and Godbead, Rom. i. 19, 20. But the Heathens did not improve this Knowledge as they ought to have done, to the Glory of God. They did not carefully enquire after the Will of God, in which fober Reason would have guided them a great Way; but became vain in their Imaginations, and their foolish Heart was darkened, as it immediately follows.

Thus we may see that Reason, of itself, teaches it to be God's Command that we should diligently enquire after his Will: And the same Thing is also enforced upon us by the Holy Scriptures. What can be more plain to this Purpose than the Words of my Text? Prove all Things; bold fast that which is good. Thus also speaks St. John, I John iv. I. Beloved, believe not every Spirit : but try the Spirits whether they are of God; because many false Prophets are yone out into the World. And accordingly the Church of Epbesus is commended for trying them which faid they were Apostles and were not, and finding them Liars, Rev. ii. 2. Search the Scriptures: For in them ye think ye have eternal Life : fays Christ, John v. 39. And the Bereans are approved of for not taking their Religion blindly upon truff, but Searching the Scriptures daily whether those Things were fo, Acts xvii. 11. Our Bleffed Saviour puts all Men upon judging for themfelves (which always presupposes proper Enquiry) Yea, and wby even of yourfelves judge ye not what is right? Luke xil. And, to add no more Proofs from Scripture in fo plain a Case, St. Peter directs all Christians to be ready always to give an Answer to every Man that afketh then a Reason of the Hope that is in them, I Pet. iii. 15: Which it is impossible for any Man to do, except he first makes a ferious Enquiry into the Will of God, and the Truth of Religion.

that

Having thus plainly, both from Reason and Scripture, laid this great and fundamental Command of God before you, that we ought, ought, every one of us, to search and enquire what his Will is; as a faithful Servant ought to do into that of his Master; let me add this one Consideration, that our Obedience to this Command is of the greatest Moment and Importance to each of us, that any Thing can possibly be.

Our Bleffed Savjourobserves, that when a Man intends to build a Tower, be fits down first and counts the Cost, whether be bave sufficient to finish it, Luke xiv. 28. Or, if a King goes to make War against another King be first consulteth whether be be able to meet bim in the Field, ver. 31. Indeed, in all Matters of great Consequence, a Man of common Prudence will not fail to confider beforehand what is most proper to be done; left, when it is too late, he should find himfelf disappointed in his Expectation, and perhaps very much damnified. Now what can possibly be of greater Consequence, Moment, or Importance to us all, than to know the Will of God? Upon the due Performance of which the Peace of our Consciences here, and our eternal Happiness hereafter entirely depend. If then, in the momentary Affairs and Buliness of this World, we think ourselves obliged to make the best Use of our Reason and Understanding, that we may not be deceived to our Damage or Prejudice; certainly much more ought we so to do, when that which of all Things, is, or ought to be, most valuable to us, is in Danger of being loft by our Neglect.

But here it is objected, that to make a full Enquiry into Religion, with the Grounds and Reasons of each Part of it, wherein the Will of God with Regard to us is contained, is a Thing of great Difficulty, and not to be undertaken by any but a Man of Learning: And fince upon this fingle Consideration the Generality of the Church of Rome are persuaded to make no Enquiry at all into Religion, but to take it on Trust from their Church, or rather, most of them upon the Credit of their Priests, I think a clear and full Answer ought to be given to this Objection.

Let us then for the present suppose it to be very difficult to make an Enquiry into Religion: Is this a sufficient Reason for our not doing it, when God has commanded it? It is difficult for us, who carry Flesh and Blood about us, to keep our Passions in Subjection to Reason and Religion, and to mortify and subdue all our evil Inclinations; and yet there is no sober Man who does not own this to be his Duty. More difficult it would be to expose ourselves to Persecution, and even to Death for the Sake of Religion and a good Conscience: And yet if God in his Providence, should call us to this, there is no fincere Christian who will not acknowledge that he ought willingly to submit to it. Difficulty then is no just Excuse for our not obeying any Command of God: as I have shewn it to be that every Man should make diligent Enquiry into his Will, or into Matters of Religion, wherein it is contained.

But, at once to take off the whole Force of this Objection, it is very plain that a full and satisfactory Enquiry into Religion, as far as we are concerned to know it, is so far from being difficult, that it is very easy to be made by every one, even of a mean Capacity, who with moderate Diligence and Attention will set himself to it. And because this is a Point of the highest Importance, I shall crave your Patience, whilst I briefly set it in a full and clear Light.

The only End and Design of God, in making Religion known to Mankind, is that we might live holily here, and be eternally happy hereaster. This is the Will of God, even your San Sissication, I Thest. iv. 3, and The Gospel of Christ is the Power of God unto Salvation, Rom. i. 16. Whatever Doctrines then are advanced by any Man, under the Pretence of Religion, if they have no Tendency towards making us holy in this Life, or happy in that which is to come, Religion (properly speaking) is not at all concerned in them; nor is any Man obliged to enquire into the Truth of them. Flee youthful Lusts; but follow after Righteousness, Faith, Charity, Peace, with them that call on the Lord out of a pure Heart, says St. Paul: All such Questions as have no Tendency hereunto, he brands with the Name of foolish and unlearned, and directs us to avoid them, knowing that they do gender Strifes, 2 Tim. ii. 22, 23.

Turn over the vast Multitude of great and small Volumes of controversial Divinity (as it is called) with which learned Men have troubled the Christian Church; and you will find them full fraught with barren Speculation, Strifes of Words, (1 Tim.vi.4.) which minister Questions rather than gody edifying which is in Faith: To which Sort of Things the Apostle directs us not to give

These are the Things which seem to perplex Religion, and to make it difficult to know what the Will of the Lord is, (Eph. v. 17.) But if we lay them all at once aside, as St. Paul directs us; we may plainly see, that all the Knowledge of Religion that is necessary necessary to make us holy, and, in Confequence thereof, eternally happy, entirely consists in these three Things. First, that we be fully perfuaded of the Being of God; which is the first Principle and Foundation of all Religion: Secondly, that we be convinced of the Truth of that Religion which was taught by Jesus Christ and his Apostles; without which we cannot be Christians: And thirdly, that we be rightly informed what it is which God requires from us, according to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, in order to our Salvation. This is Life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jefus Christ whom thou baft sent, John xvii. 3. He that is sufficiently instructed in these three Things, and leads his Life according to them, can want no Knowledge that is necessary to make him a good Christian, and bring him to eternal Salvation. And all this Knowledge may eafily be attained unto by every Man of a common Capacity, who will but a Seek and ye shall find, little feek after it. fays Chrift, Matt. vii. 7. But if a Man will not be at a little Trouble in feeking, how is it possible for him to find what he would have.

First then, it is easy for such a Man to arrive at a full Persuasion touching the Being of God. And indeed it is hard to suppose, that any Man can look about him, or make the least Observation on the Structure of the whole World, and the many Sorts of Creatures contained in it, without being fully convinced of this great Truth.

Ask the most ignorant Man, who has not quite lost his Reason, who it was that made the Clock, which points out the Hour of the Day and Night to him? And he will readily tell you it was made by some Clock-maker; and if there had not been such an Artist both to contrive and frame it, there never could have been any such a Thing as a Clock.

Let him, in like Manner ask himself, Who made the whole Universe, and every Thing therein? Who made the Sun, Moon and Stars, to mark out for us the Day for Labour, the Night for Rest, and the feveral Seasons of the Year, for Tilling of the Ground and faving the Fruits of it? Who gave the Earth Power to bring forth Grass, Herbs, and Trees for the Use both of Man and Beaft? Who placed the Earth at fuch an exact Distance from the Sun, as to be cherished by its Heat, and yet not burnt up by it? Who gives to all living Creatures Power to receive the Nourishment fitted for them, and to propagate their Kind, that that the Earth may not be laid waste and made defolate? Who gives unto Man a rational Soul, and endows him with proper Faculties, whereby to make Useof the Creatures put within his Power for his Support and Comfort? And, lastly, who is it that, for fo many thousand Years, has kept, and still does keep all these Things in that exact Order wherein they have folong continued? Many more plain Questions might be added to these: But if a Man feriously puts these alone to himfelf (which one of a mean Capacity may eafily do) his own Reason must prefently convince him, that if fo poor a Thing as a Clock, or any other Engine, could not bewithout an Artist to contrive and fashion it, much less could there be so glorious a Structure as the whole Universe (in every Part of which there is fo much Art and Contrivance) if there were not a most wife and powerful God to frame it, and put it in that Order wherein we find it. The Heavens de clare the Glory of God; and the Firmament heweth bis bandy Work : Pfalm. xix. 1. And the invisible Things of bim, from the Creation of the World, are clearly feen, being under frood by the Things that are made, even his eternal Power and Godbead, Rom. i. 20.

Secondly, It is easy for a man of a mean Capacity, with a little attentive Enquiry,

the Christian Religion.

The most illiterate Man who converses at all among his Neighbours, either does, or eafily may, upon very good Grounds, believe many Things that are recorded in the Histories of past Times. Who (for Example) has the least Doubt but that there were such Persons as King Henry the Eighth, Queen Elizabeth, King Charles the First, and others, who fat upon the Throne of England? These Thingsare notorious, and no Man is so mad as to contradict them. Now, what is or can be more notorious in all History than the Miracles of Jefus Christ and his Apostles? They healed Mulritudes of Sick People with a Word or a Touch; they gave Sight to the Blind, Hearing to the Deaf, and Strength and Agility to the Lame and Maimed. Christ Jesus walked upon the Water, and filled the Tempelt by bis Command. He fed Multitudes with a very small Quantity of Provision. He cast out Devils, restored the Dead to Life, and rose himself from the Dead the third Day, after be had been crucified, and his Vitals pierced by a Spear. He conversed familiarly with his Disciples for forty Days after his Refurrection; and then was openly taken up into Heaven in their Sight, and foon after.

after, by sending the Holy Ghost upon them, he gave them Ability to speak all Languages; without which it had not been possible for them to preach the Gospel to all Nations.

All these Things, I fay, are most notorious, and transmitted down to us in the History of the New Testoment, by a Multitude of as faithful and unexceptionable Witnesses as ever gave, or could give Testimony to the Truth of any Fact whatfoever: Witnesses who could not hope to gain any Thing by their Testimony, if it were false: and fuffered all manner of Perfecution, and even Death itself with exquisite Torments for adhering to it : Which is known to have been the Cafe of the Apostles, and very many of the first Disciples of our Bleffed Saviour: Of all which it is most easy for every Man, with a little Enquiry, fully to inform himfelf. I will alone will

Is not this then enough to convince any Man, who will but think of it, that they who were enabled to work fo very many Miracles for the Confirmation of the Doctrine which they taught, had most certainly their Power and Authority from God? And consequently that the Religion, which was taught by Jesus Christ and his Apostles, is the true Religion? Our blessed Saviour appeals peals to the miraculous Works so often done by him. Though ye believe not me (says he) believe the Works; that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him, John x. 38.

And if to this we add that the Christian Religion, in every Part of it, is most pure and holy, and agreeable to the Nature and Attributes of God (which is manifestly the Case, and will sufficiently appear from the short Draught of it which, by and by, I shall have Occasion to make) it will much strengthen the Argument, beyond any Pretence of an Answer.

Thirdly, It is easy for a Man of a common Capacity to get sufficient information touching all that God, according to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, requires from us in order to our Salvation.

Indeed, if he refolves to perplex his Mind with those Niceties and Subtilities, those foolish and unlearned Questions, which I have shewn you St. Paul directs us to avoid, and give no Heed to, he will soon bring himself into an inextricable Labyrinth. But the direct Way to Salvation is very plain to be understood; and the only Difficulty of it is to unmortised Flesh and Blood to put it in Practice. Hear what St. Paul says touching this Matter, Rom. x. 8. The World is nigh thee, even in thy Mouth and in thy Heart; that is the Word of Faith which we preach; That if thou shalt confess with thy Mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine Heart that God bathraised him from the Dead, thou shalt be saved. Always provided that the Course of thy Life be answerable to this Belies; which, by the whole Tenor both of the Law and the Gospel, is ever to be understood.

The Ceremonial and Judicial Laws of Moses were only given to the People of Ifrael (whom God hath united into one civil, as well as facred Society,) and are all of them now abolished under the Gospel. But God always did, and ever will, require, both from them and all other Nations, that' they should strictly observe the moral Law. He bath shewed thee, O Man, what is good; And what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love Mercy, and to walk bumbly with thy God? fays the Prophet Micab; Chap. vi. 8. Let us bear the Conclusion of the whole Matter : Fear God, and keep his Commandments: For this is the whole Duty of Man; fays Solomon, Eccl. xii. 13. In every Nation, be that feareth God and worketh Righteousness, is accepted with him; fays St. Peter, Acts x. 35.

St. Paul reprefents the Sum and Subffance of all that is necessary to Selvation, in these few and plain Words: The Grace of God, that bringeth Salvation, bath appeared to all Men: Teaching us that, denying Ungodlings and worldly Lufts, we should live soberly, righteoufly, and godly in this prefent World: Looking for that blessed Hope, and the glorious Appearing of the great God; and our Saviour Jefus Christ: Who gave bimfelf for us; that be might redeem us from all Iniquity, and purify unto bimself a peculiar People realous of good Works, Tit, ii. 11. Certainly God, who is infinitely Wife and Good, has given the Bleffing of Religion to us his Servants, not to puzzle or perplex us, but to guide and direct us in the Performance of our Duty; if we will but give due Attention to it.

The whole Christian Religion is manifestly comprehended under these sew Heads. "To believe in one God; the Fa"ther, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; in whose Name Christ has commanded all "who come into his Church to be bap"tized. To love God above all Things; and to shew our Love of him by keeping all his Commandments. To shew Love and Good-will to all Mankind, Friends, Strangers, and even Enemies, as far as we have Ability and Opportu" nity

" nity for it. To be just and true, fober, " patient, remperate, and weltafte in the " whole Course of our Lives. To put "our Trust in God's Mercy through the Death and Sufferings of Jesus Christ, "for the Pardon of our Sins, upon our " true Repentance. Often to commemo-" rate the Death and Passion of Christ, " who died for our Sins, by eating of " that Bread and drinking of that Cop, " which he has appointed for that Purpole. "To live peaceably, quietly, and con-" tentedly amongst our Neighbours, and " obediently and fubmissively to our Su-" periors. To fanctify the Lord's Day. "To worthip God both publickly and " privately, and constantly so pray to him " for the Grace and Affiltance of the "Holy Spirit, to enable us to perform " every Part of our Duty: And, in the " Performance of all this, to hope for a " bleffed Refurrection and evernal Salva-"tion; not for any Merits of our own, " but through the Mercy of God, and " the Mediation of Jefus Christ our Blef-" fed Saviour and Redeemer."

Too many there are, and have been, who have mixed false, or, at best, unnecessary Doctrines with their Religion: But this, which I have now recounted, is the Sum and and Substance of the whole Christian Religion: And what is there in it all, that may not eafily be known by every one who will but a little enquire into it? Indeed I may almost ask, what Man is there, who converses among Christians, that does not know all this already? Excepting such as, by shutting up the Eyes of their Understanding, have made themselves wilfully blind. Altho' perhaps one who is illiterate may not be able well to express the Sense which he has of it. Well, therefore, may I conclude, that it is easy for a Man of a common Capacity to get sufficient Information touching all that God requires from us, under the Gospel, in order to our eternal Salvation.

It is indeed the Duty of every Man, according to his Ability, to improve his Notions of Religion, and to grow in the Knowledge of Jesus Christ, as St. Peter directs; 2 Pet. iii. 18. That, if possible, he may be qualified, by sound Dostrine, both to exhort and to convince the Gainsayers, Tit. i. 9. But a little Knowledge, if a Man can get no more, and conscientiously puts in Practice what he knows, may be sufficient (through the Mercy of God) to bring him to Salvation.

Having thus sufficiently cleared up my first Proposition, and shewn it to be the Duty of every Man to make the best Enquiry he can into Religion and the Will of God; as also how easy this Task is, even to a Man of a mean Capacity, if he honestly sets himself to it: I shall have Occasion to say but little touching my second Proposition, which was,

That when a Man is convinced what the Will of God is, he ought to hold fast to it, and by no Means to depart from it.

This is a Truth universally acknowledged by all Men, who own the Being of God; and therefore needs no farther Proof. God is our Creator; our supreme Lord and Master; by His Will alone we must stand or fall to all Eternity. As, therefore, it is our Duty to enquire after it; fo it is both our Duty and Interest, when we have found it, to be obedient to it, and upon no Account to depart from it. Let us bold fast the Profestion of our Faith, without wavering. For be is faithful that promised, says St. Paul, Heb. x. 23. And we ought to obey God rather than Men; fay the Apostles, Atts v. 29. And so will every other Man say; although too many there are, who do not practife accordingly.

Let us now fee what Use we ought to make of the Doctrine which I have thus established from my Text.

First then, what shall we say of those Men, who are careful to enquire into every other Thing that concerns them, and yet never make any Enquiry at all into the Truth of their Religion.

If a Man be about to make a Bargain, or to transact any worldly Business, he commonly considers whether what he is going to do will be for his Benefit, and whether he may do it with Safety. But although he owns that his eternal Happiness entirely depends upon the Truth of his Religion; yet why he is of that Religion which he professes, rather than of another, he is able to give no good Reason.

One Sort of Men there is, who make it their avowed Profession never to search into the Grounds and Reasons of their Religion. But (say they) we believe as the Church believes, and we are safe. And if you ask them, how they know that their Church, upon which they depend, is the true Church, and that what they believe is as the Church believes? To this they have no other Answer to give, but that their Priests tell them fo.

But, in the Affairs of this World, they will not rely upon the bare Credit and Authority of their Priefts, who they well know may be mistaken; and why thep should they do it when their eternal Salvation is at Stake? Why do not they confult their own Reason, and study the Holy Scriptures, until they are fully fatisfied whether those things which they learn from their Church, or rather from their Priefts, are agreeable to the Will of God? No; they will not do this; but fuffer themselves to be charmed and laid to seep by the bare Name of the Church, altho' they know not what the Church is, and give themselves no farther Trouble about the Matter

The Holy Scriptures are by all Christians owned as the Word of God: And in them (being faithfully translated into many Languages) particularly in those of the New Testament, the Life, Miracles, Death, Resurrection, and Ascension of Jesus Christ are plainly set forth, together with that Doctrine of Salvation which he commanded his Disciples to teach; and for the doing of which, he gave them the Gist of the Holy Ghost: And St. John expressly tells us, that These things are written that we might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing we might bave Life through his Name, John xx. 31. What an Infatuation then is it for any Man, who calls himself a Christian, to faster himself to be kept a Stranger to this holy Book ? ob yil W fishing

Others there are, who, although they have full and free Liberty of fearthing the Striptures, and enquiring into the Grounds and Reasons of Religion, yet grofly neglect to do it. Be ready always to give an Answer to every Man that asketh you a Reason of the Hope that is in you; says St. Peter, I Pet. iii. 15. But many there are, of both Sorts, who seek for no other Reason why they hope to be saved in the Religion which they profess, but only that thus they have been taught from their Insancy: Which Reason may as well be urged by a Turk of a Heathen as by them.

I have shewn it to be a Duty of the greatest Importance to every Man, that he should search and enquire into Religion and the Grounds of it; and also that this may be done, with very good Success by every Man, even of a mean Capacity, who will but set himself to it with the same Care and Attention as he does to his worldly Business. 211,

Nothing can be plainer than that God . requires from us all, that we should be zealous of good Works, diligent in the Practice of Piety, Justice, Charity, Compasfion, Truth, Sobriety, Temperance, Modefty, Chastity in our Words and Actions, and every other Christian Virtue. Of all this none of us can pretend to be; ignorant; and yet how many are there, who in their Practice are the very Reverse of it? Who never set themselves to bold fast that which they know is good, and most agreeable to the Will of God? as my Text directs us all to do. Thefe Men are felf-condemned, and therefore it is in vain to dispute with them. For as our bleffed Saviour says, If they hear a not Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the Dead, (Luke xvi. 31.) So may we lay, that if a Man will not hearken to the Dictates of his own Conscience, neither B 2 will he regard what any other Man favs to him.

But fuch Men ought to remember, that Christ has expresly told us, that That Servant who knew his Lord's Will, and prepared not bimself, neither did according to his Will, shall be beaten with many Stripes, Luke xii. 47. O that they were wife, that they understood this; that they would consider their latter End! as God, by Moses, fays to the People of Ifrael, Deut. xxxii. 20.10100

Laftly, The Doctrine of my Text may be of great Use to us, when Men endeavour to perplex our Minds by attempting to persuade us that divers things age necessary to Salvation, which really are ed their Practice are the very, of ton

For Example: The Church of Rome with great Affurance tells us that we cannot be faved, except we receive all those Additions which she (without any Authority but her own) has prefumed to make to the Christian Religion. If a Man be convinced of the Truth of a Doctrine, he cannot but give his Affent to it: But if he be not fo convinced, it is impossible he should believe it, whatever he may pretend; and God requires Impossibilities from no Man. 211 10 251 My

My Text directs us that, when we have proved all things, we should hold fast that which is good. That is to fay, whatever is conformable to the Will of God, whatever he has commanded and requires from us (the Sum and Substance of all which I have but now fet before you) all this we ought to bold faft, and lead our Lives according to it, without bewildering ourselves with those things which are above our Capacity. Stunded bevisees

The Church of Rome takes very much upon herfelf, and Men of real or pretended Learning have advanced many Opinions of their own; But God alone, who is the fole Author and Giver of Salvation, has Power to prescribe the Conditions of it: And if we honeftly and fincerely perform what God has commended (all which, I have shewn you, it is easy for every Man to learn) we are fafe.

The Apostles of Christ themselves bed no Dominion over the Faith of Christians, 2 Cor. i, 24 I have not spoken of my felf (fays Jesus Christ) but the Father which sent me, he gave me a Commandment what I should say, and what I should speak z and I know that his Commandment is Life everlasting. Whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father faid unto me, fo I speak, John John xii. 49, 50. In like manner, Christ fent his Apostles to teach Men to observe all things what soever be bad commanded them, Matt. xxviii. 20. The Apostles were faithful Stewards of this Trust committed to them, 1 Cor. iv. 2. Wherever they preached the Gospel, they kept back nothing that was profitable, Acts xx. 20. but declared all the Counsel of God, ver. 27 Nor did they expect that what they raught should be received because it was the Doctrine of Paul, Apollos, Cepbas, or any other Apofle, but purely and only because it was the Doctrine of Christ, 1 Cor. 1. 12. For Who is Paul, and who is Apollos, but Ministers, by whom ye believed? Chap. iii. 5. And when once the Apostles had preached the Gospel, if they themselves, or an Angel from Heaven bould bave taught any other thing, as Gospel, than that which they had preached, let bim be accurfed; fays St. Paul, Gal. i. 8. Nor have we any authentick Account of what the Apollies taught or preached, except the Holy Soriptures. All this is most plain.

If therefore the Romanists would have us receive their Doctrines of Transubstantiation, the Sacrifice of the Mass, the giving Divine Worship to the Hoft, the Communion under one Kind alone, the ndo)

Invo-

Invocation of Saints, the worthipping of Images and Relicks, Purgatory, the Pope's Supremacy, and all the rest of their Errors: If (I fay) they would have us receive all these things as necessary to Salvation; it is incumbent on them to prove, First, that all these Doctrines were raught by the Apostles; and Secondly, That God requires the Belief of them from us. Neither of these Points is pretended to be proved from the Principles of Natural Reason: And therefore if they take upon them any other Way to prove them, it must be either from Holy Scripture (in which they most notoriously fail) or from fome new Revelation made by God; of which they ought to give a fufficient Account, if they expect that we should believe them.

Ishall conclude with a Repetition of those most divine Words of St. Paul, which I have once already mentioned, and ought to be deeply imprinted upon the Heart of every Christian, Tit. ii. 11. The Grace of God, that bringeth Salvation, bath appeared to all Men, teaching us, that denying Ungodliness and worldly Lusts, we should live Soberly, Righteously, and Godly in this present World; Looking for that blessed Hope, and the glorious appearing of the Great God,

Secon

God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ; Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all Iniquity, and purify to himself a peculiar People zealous of good Works. This we are sure is all good, and agreeable to the Will of God. In the Name of God then, let us Prove, Approve, hold it fast, and bring forth the Fruit of it in the whole Course of our Lives, to the Glory of God, and our own eternal Salvation, through the same our blessed Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

you as a thing in itself of but small account, and so indeed it is; but in Baptism it is a matter of the ut. most concern, insomuch that they who wilfully neg. lect it have no fort of title to the promifes made to mankind in the Gospel of Jesus Christ. For he has been pleased to make it the ordinary means of admitting persons into His Church; and therefore without it no one can be faid to be in covenant with God, or to have any affurance of being faved. Except a man be born of Water and of the Spirit, (fays our bleffed Saviour) he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God: and, He that believeth, and is Baptized, fall be faved. For this reason ye were baptized, when as yet ye were Infants; and, from the beginning, it has been a custom in the Church to do the same: for our forefathers thought very justly, that it could never be too early to enter into covenant with God. And provided any security could be given, that Children, when grown up, thould be taught what had been done for them, and instructed how to perform the Engagements, which were entered into in their names, it feems to them most expedient to admit fuch to Baptisin, although the Children were not then capable of fulfilling the terms of it. This gave occasion for the requiring of Sureties, or what we call Godfathers and Godmothers, in Infant Baptilm; perilons who have been baptized themselves, and are of good, and pious conversation in the Church. Their undertake to teach the Children they have answered for at the time of baptism (as soon as they are able to learn) what a folemn vow, promise, and prosession they have made by them their Sureties. They are to instruct them in the nature of baptism, and the obligations they are under thereby ; to exhort them to hear frequently the word of God; to fee that they are taught & read and understand the Greed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, in their own Mother Tongue; and, finally, they are to take care, that they be virtuously brought up to lead a Godly and a Christian Life.

THESE instructions, I trust, Ye have received from your own Godfathers and Godmothers; or at least from your Parents, whose duty it is also to give you religious instruction. Permit me to join with them in this good Work; as, by God's appointment, I also have a share with them in the care of your Souls. Simon, (faith our bleffed Saviour) levest thou me more than these? He faith unto Him, Via, Lord; thou knowest that I love Thee. He then faith unto him, Feed my Lambs. The teaching of Youth the Grounds of Christianity, and instilling into them the principles of it in their tender years, is, it feems, a necessary consequence of the love of Christ, and the principal duty of the Ministers of the Church. And belides the Benefit, which ye your felves may receive from me in this labour of love, it may not be unprofitable to those of riper years; who, when they fee the instructions here given to you, may be led to reflect upon themselves, and may from hence take occasion of ordering their lives more fuitably to their Christian Calling.

First then let me, in a few words, acquaint you with the nature and advantages of that most Holy Religion into which ye are baptized. It is a Religion built upon the surest foundation, no less than the hopes and expectations of good men in all ages; the teltimony of Prophecies, even from the beginning of the world; and the actual revelation which God was pleased to make of Himself to mankind, by sending His blessed Son to dwell amongst them: who in their sess, and with their infirmities, but without sin, did, for some space of time, wholly employ Himself in teaching them the way to everlasting Life, confirming the truth of what He said by many Mirades, which no one could have wrought except he had been sent from God. in Scripture the Word of God; who, in the beginning was with God, and was God; by whom the world is faid to have been made, and all things therein; and who was of fuch high dignity that He though it no robbery to be equal with God: this hoty Person, I fay, did constantly and openly reach all men where ever he came, that there would be most certainly a future state of Rewards and Punishments: to which all men, in all parts of the earth, from the beginning of the world to the end of it, shall be called by a general Refurrection of their Bodies from the dead, and shall stand at the feat of his Judgment, to receive their fentence from Him, according to what they have done in their lives, whether it be good or will. Firther; he taught them, that there was no way of being reconciled to God, but through Him: that God's anger against them for the transgression of their first Parents, and their own actual fins, can only be pacified by a fledfast bettef in Him and his doctrines, and by a fincere and willing obedience to his commands: that although Repentance makes no amends for faults that are paft, and therefore is of no value in the light of God; yet, If teal, and not too long delayed, it will be accepted through faith in Him, and through the merits of His fufferings and death: that hereby all fins will be forgiven to men, be they ever fo great, or ever lo often repeated: that whatfoever they shall ask of Ged, faithfully, in His name, and thall be convenient for them, that be granted: that, as he was himfelf a facrifice and atonement for the fins of men, to He would continue, to the end of the world, a Mediant for them with God, always foliciting their pardon: and that, during his absence from them, and while He was employed in this good and charitable office, He would cause the holy Spirit of God to refule amongst them; affilting and comforting them under all the trials and temptations of this mortal flate, and preparing them for an eternal flate of happiness and motion from theart and

This is the fum and fubitance of the Christian Profession. And, blessed be God's holy name, who has given You an opportunity of taking it upon your Make it your constant prayer to God, that He would be pleased to endow You with that wisdom which is from above; that he would enlighten your minds with the knowledge of your duty, and give you grace to practife it; that you may lead your lives answerably to this profession, and finally obtain the promise

Bur to be more particular: if ye would learn farther, what are the benefits ye reap from being Christians; ye will find them briefly, yet fully, fummed up in the Catechism of our Church, which ye were once taught to repeat, and do now [1 hope] defire to understand. It is there faid, that by Baptism. ye are made Members of Chrift, Children of God, and Inheritors of the Kingdom of Heaven. Thefe are privileges to great and glorious, that human nature might well be thought incapable of them. But to far has it pleased Almighty God to be mindful of Man, and fo much has his love abounded towards us in Christ Jesus, that ye are most certain of all these advantages, if ye behave in all things as becometh Christians.

In the first place, ye are members of Christ; united, not to His natural body, (for that were a thing impossible) but to His spiritual body, which is the Church; that Congregation of faithful Men, in which the pure word of God is preached, and the Sacraments are duly administered, according to Chris's ordinance. This Society of Men our bleffed Saviour is pleased to call his Body, of which He himself is the Head! The Church (fays St. Paul) Is the body of Christ, and Christ is the head of the body, the Church. And as the members of the natural body, being united to the head, do receive life, and fense, and motion from thence; fo Christians, as members of the Church, being united in Christ, recaire spiritual life and motion from Him. By him all the body by joints and bands, having nourishment mimiffered, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of God. Again, as the body (that is the natural body) is one, and bath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are yet but one body; lo alfo is Christ (that is, the church of Christ:) for by one Spirit we are all baptized into one body. And as we have many members in one body, and all the mem-Lers have not the Same office; So we, being many, are one body in Christ. Therefore ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular. Now, by being members of Christ ye are assured that ye are continually under the more especial care and direction of God's Holy Spirit: that, as the head contrives and orders every thing for the support and welfare of the members of your own bodies; so does Christ, your head, always watch over and preserve You. Nay, ye are now become particular objects of his tenderness and pity; for, as in your own bodies, when any one of the members is hurt the head fuffers with it; fo is Christ your head, concerned in all your afflictions, and will either deliver you out of them, or support you under them, and in the end turn them to your advantage. Now, if this is the case of those who are fo happy as to be members of Christ, consider the deplorable state of such persons as remain excluded from the Christian Church, notwithstanding the frequent opportunities they have had of entering into it. As they have not yet put on Chrift, most certain it is that they are still dead in their trespasses and fins. And, although they should perform good works, yet not being first reconciled to God through Jesus Christ, their goodness is nothing worth. Consider likewife the still more deplorable state of those perfons, 9 200 fons, who having entered into covenant with God by Baptism, do afterwards divide themselves from the Church of Christ, and cut themselves off from that body of which they were members. Such are they (if any such there be) who have entirely renounced their Christianity: such are they also, who have wholly abandoned and given up themselves to a wicked course of life.

In the first ages of the christian church, it was ulual to cut off fuch members from the body of Christ by excommunication; that is, they were turned out of the Church for a time, and not fuffered to communicate with other Christians, until they had repented of their faults. This power was given to his Church by Christ Himself, when he tells his Apostles, that What soever they bound on earth should be bound in beaven; and, what soever they loofed on earth should be loofed in beaven. The Church at present, is cautious and tender in the use of this authority; more so perhaps than is confiltent with its own peace, or the good of fouls. But wicked and profligate men, although they are suffered to continue in the Church, are by no means members of Christ's body; no more than a dry withered branch is a part of the vine, because it is not cut off from the vine; or a dead mortified limb is a part of the body, because it is not separated from the body. As they are grown useless, being past feeling, they are an incumbrance to the body, and may probably do great hurt to it ; but they cannot themselves receive any benefit from it; for they are not vitally united to Christ, who is the head of it, and therefore they do not partake of the influences of His grace, neither are they quickened by his Holy Spirit. Finally, confider that as ye are now become members of Christ's body, the Church, by Baptism; ye ought not only to reverence Christ, who is your head, but also to love one another. The members of your own bodies teach you this useful lesson; for, they never abuse, nor injure one A 6 another:

another: on the contrary, if any one of the members is hurt, all the rest immediately join in comforting and cherishing it. And so it should be amongst Christians, or the members of Christ's body: according to the Apostle, All the members should have the same care, one for another: and, whether one member Suffer, all the members Suffer with it; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it. For think with yourselves how unnatural it would be for a man to hurt himfelf; how strange, if the hand should strike the foot, or the foot should trample upon the hand. But so it is with Christians, when they envy or quarrel with one another: if one member is hurt, the whole body is wounded, and the head is grieved; that is, the Church of Christ is difgraced, and Christ, who is the head of it, is provoked thereby. There is now then fo close an union amongst you that, out of very felf-interest, ve ought to do good one to another; for if ye are not at peace one with another, ye are divided against yourselves. It may be faid very properly of you in your prefent fituation, that the merciful man doeth good to his own fout, but he that is cruel troubleth his own flesh. For he amongst you, who affifts another, is fo nearly related to him, that he may be faid to be a benefactor to himfelf; and he that injures another may, upon the fame account, be faid to be his own enemy,

But to proceed: Secondly, ye are not only members of Christ, but ye are likewise the Children of God, another privilege which ye receive by Baptism. Now here ye must consider, what it is to be a Child of God. As God created all mankind, they all may be said, in some sense, to be the children of God; but Ye are the children of God in a higher sense, as He has adopted you, and chosen you out of the rest of the world, taking you into His more particular sayour. Those who were never baptized, although they have had constant opportunities of being so, are children of God's wrath, obstinate and disobedient, continuing fill in fin, and under the curfe: but ye have recovered the favour of God, through the merits of Jesus Christ, being obedient to His will. And although, by nature, ye were strangers and enemies to God; yet now by Baptism ye are taken into the family of God, and are entitled (by His good pleasure) to all His mercies and Blessings, Ye are all the Children of God, Tays the Apostle, by faith in Christ fefus: for as many of you as have been baptized into Chrift have put on Chrift: and if ye be Chrift's, then are ye Abraham's feed, and heirs, according to the promise. And again; As many (says he) as are led by the Spirit of God are the fons of God. For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father: The Spirit itself beareth withefs with our spirit that we are the children of God; and, if children, then beirs, heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with Him, that we may be also glorified together. Hence our bleffed Saviour is faid to give power to as many as received Him to become the Sons of God. And he is not ashamed (according to the Apostle to the Hebrews) to call them brethren; as we find he does, in many parts of the holy Scriptures. This it is to be the children of God; and thus well are ye affured that all of You are fuch. Confider then the honour to which ye are advanced; ye have the fame Father with Christ himself, who is God bleffed for ever. Ye are not only members of Christ's body therefore, but in some respect equal to Christ himself. Behold, what manner of love the Father bath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the fons of God! Hereby ye are affured, that God will bear with the untowardness of your nature, will pity your infirmities and favourably hear your requests; that He will fupply your wants, reward your well-doings, and gently correct your miscarriages; which are all acts of fatherly affection. Your fathers here on earth bear a love and affection for you, beyond what ye yourselves ever felt or can conceive; judge then, what bowels of compassion, what pity and tenderness your heavenly Father has for you, whole creatures ye are; who is all goodness, as he has all power and is as willing to blefs you, as He is capable of fo doing. Confider also the duty that lies upon you by being made the children of God. At the same time that ye obey younearthly parents, remember that ye have a Father also in Heaven. Make it your chief bufiness to please Him; for he is your best friend. Do not oblige, or excuse yourselves to your parents here by any thing which ye know will be offenfive to your Heavenly Father: neither make mention of the name of God lightly, and in your ordinary discourse; for His name is holy, and must not come into your mouths upon any but folemn occasions, when you beg of Him to relieve your wants, or return Him thanks for his bleffings, or are faying fomething which tends to the advancement of his honour and glory. Do nothing, in short, which is finful; for thereby ye not only offend the Majesty of Almighty God, but abuse the goodness of a most loving and tender Father. Again, consider the bad state of those who are not of God's family. Do not despile or infult them, who, by being not baptized, are not restored to God's favour; but look upon them as unhappy children, who were forfaken and turned out of doors (as it were) by your heavenly Father, because of their disobedience. Endeavour to reconcile them to God, if possibly you can, by exhorting them frequently and earnestly to faith and repentance. Bring them home from that strange country, where they are now wandering, naked, and almost starved, feeding upon busks with swine; and endeavour to lay them in the bosom of your Father, always open to receive them, that they may live in the kingdom of the Gospel and be sed with the bread of life. Have compassion for all men; and let it be your prayer to your heavenly Father, that, in his good time, He would bring the whole world into his Family, the Church; that with one mouth, as dutiful Children, we may all glorify Him here, and be glorified by

AND this leads me, Thirdly, to confider another benefit ye have received by being baptized; namely, That thereby ye are made Inheritors of the Kingdom of Heaven. If children, says the Apostle, then heirs, heirs of God, and joint heirs with Chrift. This inheritance, it feems, is the necessary consequence of your being children of God. It will be well worth your while, therefore, to know what this inheritance is; what that kingdom of Heaven is of which ye are made heirs by Baptism. Now St. Paul tells you, That ye are justified by God's grace, that thereby ye may be made heirs, according to the hope of eternal life. And St. Peter fays, that by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, we are begotten to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us. The Apoltle to the Hebrews likewise tells you, that Christ is heir of all things: and, in another place, that we are joint beirs with Chrift. Whence it may be concluded, that ye have a title to the joys and glories of Heaven; for which the word of God himfelf is your fecurity, and his holy Spirit your affiltance in obtaining them. What the joys of beaven are, of which ye are heirs, is beyond the capacity of the mind of man to conceive, and therefore cannot be described. It is sufficient for you to know what the Gospel hath revealed, that in heaven there will be no more forrow, nor temptation, nor fear, nor death: that on the contrary ye will be perpetually entertained with the wonders of God's glory, and delighted with the contemplations of His goodness: that your minds will be filled with holy joy; and that you will be thoroughly fatisfied with your happy flate; and fo continue for even This is the Inheritance of a Christian. But, as we ever hope to fucceed to it, prepare yourselves for it; remembering that without boliness no man shall fee the Lord. Lot the joy which is fet before you encourage you to press forward; and make it your utmost care, that ye do not lofe that noble prize, which is proposed to you as the reward of your labours. As your treasure is in heaven, so let your hearts be there also. Be not over folicitous concerning the things of this world. Be not afraid of its troubles, nor fond of its vanities. Do not greedily feek after, or contend about honour, wealth, or any of those trifles, which the children of this world are fo fond of. For yet a little while, and all these things shall be removed out of your fight. This world, with all the pomp and splendour of it, shall vanish away; andtainew scene of affairs shall be opened, worthy your utmost attention. In the progrefs of your lives, ye will meet perhaps with many Christians, who feem to have forgot that they are heirs of the kingdom of heaven: all their thoughts feem to be employed in making provision for this life; as though that were: accounted loft time, which is spent in securing or advancing their interest in the life to come. And, though these men are, by some, called wife and prudent; be affured of this, That there can be no greater instance of human folly: for they die in the midft of these their worldly cares; are snatched from their effates here, and are in danger of lofing the inheritance, which was defigned for them hereafter. Let it be Your chief business to secure your best, and dearest interest. Seek first the kingdom of God, and his righteoufnefs; for, it matters but little what your circumstances are in this life; if so be that ye take good heed, not to be difinherited in the life to come. we continue that your thinks we

HITHERTO I have fet before you the great privileges and advantages of the Ghristian profession; into which we are baptized pland have taken occasion to add a word of advice at the conclusion of every particular. And, although the hopes of a Christian are so valuable, that, one would think, he should want nothing elfe to prompt and oblige him to a fleady performance of his duty; yet I must put you in mind, that it is not only your interest to live in obedience to the Gospel of Christ, but ye are bound by a folemn declaration and now, made at the time of your receiving Baptism, that ye will so do. Ye did then promise, by your Godfathers and Godmothers, that ye would renounce the Devil and all his works, the pomps and vanities of this wicked world, and all the funful lufts of the flesh: that ye would believe all the articles of the Christian Faith : and that ye would keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of your life. This is called the haptifmal view; which, being made for You, and in your names, it lies upon You to perform, as it is indeed your concern, and in your power alone to do it.

Now, in the first place, ye have promised to renounce the Devil and all his works. And very fitting it is, that every Christian should make this declaration at his Baptism. For St. John says, For this purpose was God manifested, that he might destroy the works of the Devil: that is, the kingdom of Christ was set up in opposition to the kingdom of that end opirit; and therefore it is necessary that Christians, or the subjects of Christ's kingdom, should enter into an engagement to be faithful to him; and to bid defiance to the Devil, and all the stratagems he makes use of to seduce men from their obedience to God. By litting yourselves under the banner of Christ, and promising to renounce the Devil and that you will in no wife countenance and hipport the growing power of fin; that ye will, by the contrary, by your own examples, and by every other method of which ye are capable, endeavour to subdue it, and hinder it from prevailing in the world. Ye have declared, that ye will always oppose it, in every shape, and under every denomination, so far as is besitting your respective stations; and that ye will maintain an utter abhorrence of every thing which ye know to be displeasing to God.

DATHAT ye may faithfully discharge this promise fuffer me to give you a few plain directions. Lerit remain deeply imprinted in your minds, as an infallible truth, that of all outs which happen to mankind Sin is the greatest. Poverty, Sickness, and Death are called evils, because they are grievous to be bome; and therefore we have a natural abhorrence of them; but they are really not fuch, being oftentimes attended with good and happy confequences. But Sir brings with it regret of mind, which makes us unealy here; and draws after it the destruction of our fouls, which will make us for ever miferable hereafter. Sin therefore is truly an evil; and the only one ye can reasonably stand in dread of. If Ye can preferve yourselves from it, or at least, fincerely ondeavour to do it, ye have nothing to apprehend from the displeasure of God, or the wicked deligns of Wien, or the malice and Inbility of the Devil. But remember, that, as great an evil as fin is, and as fatal as it may be to your fouls, yet, in your very nature, ye are most strongly inclined to it, especially fome kinds of it, which, with your utmost constancy and resolution, ye will find it a difficult matter to refilt. Never trust therefore to your own strength, but pray to God daily, That, with the power of His grace, He would be pleased to affist your endeayours, and give success to the means which ye make ufe use of, for the preservation of your innocence. More particularly, make it your humble request to Almighty God, That he would protect you from falling into those fins, which are properly fins of the Devil; as he feems more especially concerned in tempting men to them, from whence therefore he takes his name. Such are lying, flandering, pride and revenge fins, in which the foundation of the Devil's kingdom was laid, and to which the increase of it in the world is chiefly owing. These sins, by this part of your baptifmal vow, ye are chiefly engaged to guard against; and be affured, that, although the power of your ghostly enemy is very great, God will enable you to relift it, if ye earnestly beg his help and protection. If you draw nigh unto God, he will draw nigh unto you; and, when ye perceive yourfelves inwardly strengthened by God's holy Spirit, be fure to obey the motions and directions of it: fo will He continue in you, and dwell with you, and effectually deliver you from falling by temptation.

SECONDLY, By your baptismal vow, ye have engaged to renounce the pomps and vanities of this wicked world. The world is called wicked, although made by the power of God, and governed by his providence; because, through the lusts and pations of men, it administers to you many occasions of falling into fin. Hence it is that the Apostle declares, That Christ gave himself for our fins, that he might deliver us from this prefent evil world. And our Bleffed Saviour, for the fame reason, bids us not to live the world, neither the things that are in the world; for, if any man love the world, fays he, the love of the Father is not in him. The Vanities of the world are all those things, which, in the eyes of finful men, feem defirable ; although there is no real goodnets in them, nor any true fatisfaction arising from them. Such more particularly are Riches, and Honour; which every good Christian should so far renounce, as not to be too definous of the one, or too ambitious of the other. By the pomps of the world, it is probable. that the expensive shows, and barbarous and obscene sports, made use of by the Heathers in honour of their false gods, were principally meant; and accordingly, in the early times of Christianity, it was unlawful for a Christian to be present at such entertainments. But the words likewife denote all that exects of every kind, which men in high stations more particularly are betrayed into by their pride. Magnificence and grandeur, if truly fuch, are not unbecoming; and are perhaps necessary to some stations of life. But extravagance and lurery are follies of pernicious confequence; tending to draw off the thoughts of men from religious duties, and to alienate their minds from God. These vanities therefore ye have renounced in Baptism, as defirective of Christianity. Ye have vowed, That ye will for exceed the bounds of moderation, or the rules of fobriety, in the enjoyment of the things of this life; that ye will not fet your heartsupon them, nor be greedily defirous of them; that've will rather learn to despise them, especially when they come into competition with your future hopes, and, that ye will theadily purfue your only true interest, that of the Salvation of your Souls; notwithstanding the temptations, which may be laid in your way, to feduce and divert you from it. Even the innecent pleasures of life ye are fo far resolved against, that they shall not employ too much of your time; left they should take possession of your minds, and cause you to contract fuch a fondness for the world, that ye cannot part with it, without great reluctance. Ye have vowed in faort; to fet your affections on things abour; although ye do take a reasonable satisfaction, as ye ought, in the conveniences and biefings of life; and that ye are ready to refign these most willingly, when foever it shall please God to take the from from you, or you from them; being prepared and glad to exchange them for that everlatting happiness which is the prize of your high calling in Christ Jesus.

THIRDLY, In Baptism ye have renounced all the finful lufts of the fleft: By which part of your vow ye have engaged yourfelves to regulate, and govern, all these appetites and inclinations, which belong to you as men, and are implanted in your nature for good and wife purposes. The luft, or defires of the flesh, were not given to men for no other purpose than that they might be so many snares and temptations to them. Far be it from us to think fo unworthily of the goodness of Godda No: it is meceffary to the prefent state of things, that ye should be fo framed; and thefe dispositions, under a proper reftraint, are (no doubt) of fingular use to you in your present fituation. The affairs of the world could not be carried on without them; and the counsels of Providence, in creating it, would be frustrated otherwise, and made of none effecti But when these appetites and defires are suffered to exceed their proper bounds; when they govern, intead of being in subjection; then do they become finfablusts of the flesh, and fuch as ye have declared yourselves to be at enmity with. Hence proceed drunkenness, gluttony, fornication, adultery, firife, empings, murthers; and the like. These, with many others, are called by St. Paul, the works of the flesh and all fuch works ye have declared an abhorrence of . We have vowed, that by the help of God's grace, ye will not do them yourselves; nor in any wife contribute to the doing of them, by giving encouragement or countenance to others. That ye may be the better able to perform this promise, let me advise you carefully to observe what fins of this kind we are mostly inclined to. And although, with the Apoltle, 12 are affured that in your flesh dwelleth no good thing; yet let it be your especial care to goard yourselves in the weakest part, where ye apprehend most danger far as in you lies, by which ye may be enticed to commit any of these sins. In a more particular manner, shun idleness and sloth, and betake yourselves now, in the early time of age, to some honest and useful employment. They that do otherwise make provision for the sless to fulfil the last thereof; that is, they give themselves up to intemperate and loose conversation, the constant companions of an idle life, whereby the lusts of the flesh are sed and nourished, and so prove unruly and past controus.

And let this suffice for the first part of your baptismal vow, whereby ye promise to renounce the Devil, and all his works; the pomps and vanities of this wicked world; and all the sinful busts of the flesh. Ye have declared, in the second place, that ye will believe all the articles of the Christian faith.

To believe a thing is to be well perfuaded of the truth of it. And, although it is impossible for you to believe what ye please ; yet in promifing to believe all the articles of the Christian faith, ye do not undertake an impossibility. For they admit of no doubt, because they are the sum and substance of the Christian faith; as it stands clearly and plainly described in the Holy Scriptures. They are what the members of the Christian Church therefore have generally believed, from the beginning of it to this day; although there have not been wanting fuch as have diffruted concerning the meaning of fome terms, in which these articles have been expressed. Now, it is your. Duty thoroughly to inform yourselves, what these articles of the Christian faith are, and in what fenfeithey are to be understood; and whether ye yourfelves do believe them, as they ought to be believed. In the first of these particulars, I will endeavour to inform you; in the latter, ye must inform yourselves, for nobody else is capable of doing it. Whether ye do truly, and heartily, believe the articles of the Christian faith, is a matter in which your OW II own consciences are chiefly concerned. But I may add, That if we lead your lives according to such a belief, ye have good reason to think that ye do not deceive yourselves or others in this respect. For Christian chesience is the best sign of Christian said; and, if we do behave in every thing, according to the rules of the Gospel. I see no reason to doubt of your belief of the Gospel.

THESE then are the articles of the Christian faith; and this is the sense, in which they are to be believed, as appears to us from the Holy Scriptures.

First, ye are to believe that there is a God, and but one God only; an eternal Being, infinite in Perfection, and the author and giver of every thing which is good, and (in any degree) perfect in others: that he has all power in himself, by which he at first created, and does now support, and govern, all things in Heaven and Earth: that He is therefore the God, and Father, of all Men. And ye do believe that, from all eternity, He was the Father

In like manner, we are to believe, that Jesus Christ was always, from all eternity, the Son of Gade that he took the name of Jesus Christ when made Man, as he was a Person consecrated and anointed by God for the redemption and salvation of Mankind: and that He thereby became our Lord, as he hath purchased us with his blood, and as all power and authority is exercised by Him over his Church.

WITH regard to the manner in which the Son of God took our flesh upon Him, and became visible to the world, that he might suffer for it; ye believe, that He was conceived of the Holy Ghost, and born of the Virgin Mary; that is, by the power and operation of God's Holy Spirit, a Woman was made to conceive and bring forth, without the ordinary means of generation, or the concurrence of a Man; and that from hence our blessed Saviour Jesus Christ had both a real buman Body and a real buman

Beal, but without any flain of fin upon either of them, because of the extraordinary and holy manner in which He was produced.

YE believe, that the fame holy Person, after preaching Repentance and Forgiveners of Bins to the world, for flome fpace of twoey and after working many Miracles in confirmation of the trust of what He faid, did fuffer under Pontine Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; and defeended into Hell; that is, at such a precise time, foretold by the Prophets, (when the Jews were under the power of the Romans, and Pontius Pilate, a Roman, was their Governor) our Bleffed Saviour did Cuffer from the Yews many grievous things, fcourgings, mockings, buffetings and the like; that His Body, while He was yet alive, was fixed to a crofs, after the manner of a criminal; that He did really die upon the cros; that His Body, when dead, was taken down thence and laid in a grave; and that His Soul went to the place appointed for it, during its flate of feparation

YE believe farther, that the same Jesus Christ, who was trucified, dead, and buried, rose againstle third day from the dead; that is, after lying for that space of time in the grave, His soul was restored to His Body, and He did leave His sepulchre, and did appear alive to many persons, for many days, with the same Soul and Body which He had before He was put to death. And this, ye are to believe, was done by His own divine Power, by which He was enabled to lay down His life, and take it again.

and fitteth on the right hand of God, the Father Almighty; that is, when He had abode fome time upon earth, after His Refurrection, and had converfed frequently with His Differples, and batter, He did, in the prefence of many persons, go up from them, with His human Soul and Body, be coming invisible to the world from that time, and being the state of the being being advanced to a feat of the greatest honour and glory, in Heaven.

And ye do believe, that He shall there continue, governing and directing his Church, and interceding for It with God the Father, until the end of the world, when He shall come again to Judge both the Quick and the Dead; that is, all those who shall be sound then alive upon the earth, as well as those who are departed out of this life, shall appear before the Judgment Seat of Christ, at this His second coming; and shall be acquitted or condemned, rewarded or punished, according to what they have done, whether it be good or evil.

FARTHER, as ye believe in God the Father and God the Son, so do ye believe in God the Holy Ghost (or the Holy Spirit) who is the Third Person in the Bleffed Trinity, and of the same Divine Nature with the Father and the Son. He is called in Scripture the Holy Spirit, because it is by his Means (more especially) that all the elect, or chosen people of God, are fanctified, or made Holy. As ye believe the Father to have been your Creator, and the Son your Redeemer, fo ye believe the Holy Ghoft to be your Helper and Comforter, in all things wherein ye stand in need more particularly of the divine affiftance. He enlightens your understandings, disposes your wills, and enables you to go through and perform every good and religious undertaking. He affilts your prayers, strengthens you against temptations, and enables you to difcern the malicious fubtilties of the Devil, and the cheats and delutions of the World and the Flesh. He possesses you with the knowledge of your true interest, and is ever admonithing and encouraging you in the pursuit of it. Finally, by his fanctifying power, He unites you and all good Christians, to Christ your Head; fealing your fouls with fuch an inward affurance of God's favour, that ye do firmly hope, and are perfuaded fuaded in yourselves, that through the mercies of God, ye shall be everlastingly happy in a future state.

AFTER ye have professed to believe thus in each of the Three Persons of the Blessed Trinity; ye declare also that there is one Church of Christ, called the holy Catholick, or holy and universal Church. The Church, here meant, is the general affembly of all fuch, as, from the first publishing of the Gospel to this prefent time, have believed in Christ, and who hereafter shall do the fame, to the end of the world. Ye do profess therefore to believe, that all holy persons, who have died in the faith of Christ, and in the fear of God's holy name, do continue members of Christ's Church, although they are removed out of our fight into a separate state; and that they, with all good and pious Christians now remaining in the world, do make but one Church, or Society, as they are united under one and the same head, Jesus Christ; that they are sanctified by the same Bleffed Spirit, and shall one day partake of the same Happiness in the glorious kingdom of God. Yedo farther profess to believe, that That part of Christ's Church which is here on Earth shall never entirely cease; but that there shall always be a number of faithful persons continuing to believe and practile, as they are taught in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, to the end of the world.

YE do also believe, that, in this Church of Christ, there is, and always will be a Communion of Saints: that is, that all true Christians, as well those who are departed out of this life, as those who remain in it, have access to God the Father, being in covenant with Him, through Jesus Christ: that they are in communion also with God the Son, who has purchased them with his blood, and redeemed them to Himself; and, that they have the Fellowship of the Holy Ghost, who dwelleth in them, and is their Counsellor and Guide: that there is also so far an intercourse between good and holy Men on Earth and the Angels of God in Heaven, as that they have an affectionate regard for them, and delight in minifering to them, whenever they are commanded so to do. And, finally, ye believe, that the Members of Christ have, and ought to have communion with one another, not only in Prayer, and the ministry of God's holy Word and Sacraments, but in love, and charity, and all good works, whereby they can be be-

FARTHER, ye do believe, that, as members of the Christian Church, ye have the inestimable benefit of that most gracious promise of the forgiveness of Sins: that is, that, by the fending of His Son into the world, it has pleased Almighty God to issue out a free pardon to all fuch as shall embrace the terms of His holy Gospel: that, when all the wisdom of Man could not contrive an expedient whereby he might hope to be reconciled to God, and when the whole world was funk into despair, through the burthen of their Sins, for which they could make no atonement, it pleased God, in the bowels of his mercy, to cause tidings of great joy to be proclaimed to the wretched Sons of Men, no less than a fure forgiveness of all their Sins by Repentance, and Faith in Christ Jesus. And, as there is none other Name under Heaven given among Men, by which we must be faved, but only that of the Lord Jesus; ye believe that Forgiveness of Sins is not to be obtained in any ather way than that which the Gospel prescribes; not from any authority which men may falfely and prefumptuously arrogate to themselves; not by performing fuch things as the Gospel does not require you to do; but by a fleadfast faith in Christ fesus, and a fincere Obedience to His Will and Commandments.

Ye do believe also that there will be a Resurrection of the Dead: that is, that the Bodies of all Men although not dissolved into dust, from whence they were at first taken, shall be raised from the Grave, and their Souls shall be again united to them; and that the Bodies of the Faithful shall be restored to them in such a glorified state as to be capable of enjoying Everlasting Happiness, and the Bodies of the Wickel in such a state as shall make them sensible of Everlasting Misery and Torment.

For finally ye do believe that there will be a Life everlasting: that is, that, after the Resurrection from the Dead, ye will be translated into a state where ye can never die any more, and in which the Good will be happy, and the Wicked miserable to all Eternity.

This is the belief of a Christian, according to that Revelation which God has been pleafed to make of Himself by His Son Christ Jesus: the truth of which ye must be really and fully persuaded of, if ye expect to receive any benefit from being Baptized in His Name, And, as the fethings are to be BELIEVED, fo likewise there are many things to be done in order to accomplish the eternal Salvation of your Souls. For, lastly, ye do promise to keep God's holy Will and Commandments, and walk in the same all the days of your lives. By this ye engage, that your outward actions shall be agreeable to the inward persuasion of your minds; and, that your Faith shall not be dead and unprofitable, but lively, active and fruitful of good Works. The Will and Commandments of God ye have likewise revealed to you in the Gost of His bleffed Son; the Moral Law, given of old to the Jews, being there explained, improved, and adapted to the flate of mankind under the new cowenant of Grace, by Jesus Christ Himself.

In the first place, ye are not only to have the Lord for your God and none other beside Him; but from numerous passages of the New Testament, ye are taught and commanded to believe in Him, to sear Him, to love Him, with all your heart, with all your mind, with all your soul, and with all your strength; to worship Him, to give Him thanks; to put your whole trust in Him; to call upon Him, to honour his holy Name and His word; and to serve Him truly all the days of your lives. The meaning of which, in short, is, that ye are neither to fear, nor to love any thing so much as God; because, whatever ye fear most, or leve most, THAT ye make your God.

YE are commanded to avoid the fin of Idelatry; that is, either the worthipping God himself, or Angels, or dead Men or Women, under the form and shape of an Image; or falling down before any Image of either of these, or the likeness of any thing in heaven, or earth, with intent to worthip it. Ye are forbid also, even in your inmost thoughts, to put your considence in any thing but the Goodness and Power of God, and the merits of his Son Jesus Christ. And this ye are forbid to do, upon the highest penalties; not only the loss of temporal blessings, or the bringing a Curse upon You and your Children, but also the eternal perdition and destruction of your souls, and a perpetual exclusion from the kingdom and presence of God hereafter.

YE are forbid to fwear lightly, and rafbly, by God's holy Name. And ye are taught farther, that neither should ye allow yourselves in swearing by any thing that is sacred and bears a relation to God; that ye should not swear by Yourselves, or any part of your selves, inasmuch as Ye are the creatures of God, and consecrated to His service; nay, that ye should not swear at all, at any time, or upon any occasion; unless ye are called upon by proper Authority to do so, for the ending of strife, or for any other important

YE are commanded also to dedicate the Sabbath, or every seventh day of the week, to a rest from your ordinary labours; because God finished the Creation of the World in six days, ceased from work upon the seventh, and commanded a seventh day to be kept hely by all mankind. For we read (in Genesis

And therefore it will always be your Duty, on account of the reafonableness of it, and God's pleasure signified herein, to observe and keep holy one day in seven. And, as your redemption was completed by Jesus Christ's raising Himself from the dead upon the first day of the week, it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to the Apostles of our Lord, under His immediate influence, to transfer the holiness of the Sabbath from the feventh to the first day of the week, and to cause this alteration to be observed as an ordinance amongst all Christians for ever. Ye are taught moreover, and commanded, to dedicate this Christian Sabbath, called (in the Book of Revelation i. 10.) the Lord'i Day, not only to a rest of your bedies from the labours of your callings, but of your minds from all your worldly concerns. Ye are bid to spend this holy Day in the more immediate fervice and worship of God; in prayer, in breaking of bread, that is, receiving the holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper (as often as ye enjoy an opportunity) in meditation, in reading, in hearing the word of God preached and explained; and in works of mercy, charity, and piety.

These are the duties ye are to discharge towards God. With regard to your Neighbour, or one another, ye are called upon in the first place, to pay due honour and reverence to your Parents; to obey all their lawful commands; to submit to their corrections; and to comfort and succour them in their distress. Farther; ye are to be dutiful to your Civil Parents, as well as your natural ones; that is, ye are to obey the Magistrates which are set over you, not only out of a dread of punishment, but also for the satisfaction of your own consciences; as they are the Ordinance of God, and appointed by Him to govern and protect you. Ye are to be obelient funt also to Masters, Teachers, and Governors. In every station of life, in short, ye are to behave suitably to the subordination in which ye are placed; and to exercise your authority righteously, and in the sear of God, over all those (if any such there are) who are inferior to You.

AGAIN, ye are forbid to take away the Life of any man, either fecretly or openly, either by acting yourselves, or by affifting others; Ye shall do no Murder. And not only fo, but (according to the Gospel explanation of this commandment) ye shall check and moderate your anger, from whence Murder generally proceeds. For, if ye let anger transport you so far as to revile others with hard speeches, ye thall not be guiltlefs. Out of the Heart are the iffues of Life; that is, as men Think, they generally Act; and, if they do not act accordingly, they are not always restrained by the fear of God, which ought to be one of the rules of their whole conduct. Ye are to fee then that your hearts be not evil; that no malice, erroy, or revenge be suffered to harbour there; for he that wills or wishes the death of another, is (with God, the fearther of hearts) accounted no less guilty than if he accomplished it.

The same may be said in the next commandment. For, although ye are forbid to commit only the act of Adultery, yet according to our blessed Saviour's interpretation of it, every inclination or disposition of the mind towards it is criminal. And therefore ye are hereby obliged to keep your minds, as well as your bodies, in temperance, sobriety and chassity. That is, ye are to regulate even your thoughts and desires, less they finally lead you into fins of Uncleanness: or, if they do not, yet the very entertainment of them in your minds is offensive to God, and will compel His Holy Spirit to leave you; who ye may suppose) will not dwell with such company, in so soul and debauched an Habitation. FARTHER, ye are forbid to Steal; that is, to defraud your Neighbour of his goods, in any of the various ways which the wickedness of men's hearts has contrived to injure one another in their property. On the contrary, ye are to be fair and upright in'all your dealings; to be careful to provide for yourselves and your families, by your own labour and pains; and to be thoroughly contented with that hones livelihood which Providence has allotted you. So far should ye be from defrauding others, that if ye are defrauded yourselves, ye shall not be over-farward to recouer your just rights by Law. Ye shall be ready to forgive injuries of this kind, as well as others; provided ye are at liberty so to do, and the consequences of your forgiveness may not be very

AGAIN, ye are forbid to bear false witness against your neighbour: that is, ye are strictly to speak the truth concerning him, if ye are called upon as witnelles for or against him in a Court of Justice. On every fuch occasion, forget not the great guilt of Perjury; and how dreadful must be the danger of calling God to be witness to a solemn Lie; and be sure to remember the words of God himfelf, (Zechariah viii. 16.) Let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his neighbour, and LOVE NO FALSE OATH; for all these are things that I hate, Saith the Lord. In common conversation also, when there is a necessity of Speaking of your Neighbour, ye are to fay nothing of him but what ye know to be the truth, without any aggravations or infinuations which may but his good name. But, as Christians, ye are to be sharitable in every thing ye think or fay of others; ye are not unreasonably to suspect any evil; ye are to vindicate their Characters as far as ye are able,

finally, to fecure the observation of all the foregoing Commandments which relate to your Neighbour, ye are forbid to entertain any unlawful desires, with regard to his House, his Wife, his Servants, and his Goods; that is, ye are not to cover what is another's, not so to desire it as to use any unlawful means for the attainment of it.

This is the substance of the Moral Law, given of old to the Jews; and renewed, explained and improved by Christ, for the use and practice of the whole Christian World.

Bur, besides the moral Law contained in the Ten Commandments, ye are obliged as Christians to obey those positive Laws which our blessed Saviour hath been pleased to add to them; and which do therefore more peculiarly belong to Your holy These are the Commands by which He hath appointed two Sacraments to be received in His Church; namely Baptism and the Lord's Supper. The former (which hath been already explained) is the dipping in, or sprinkling with Water, at the time of your entrance into Christ's Church, when ye take the Vow of Christianity upon you. The latter is the Vow of Christianity upon you. the eating Bread and drinking Wine (as often as ye have opportunity) in communion with your Fellow Members of the Church, to preferve thereby a memorial of Christ's Death, until His coming to Judgment. And these ye are to look upon not as empty ceremonies, or as mere emblems of fomething effe fignified thereby; for our bleffed Saviour has promifed, that the receiving of his Sacraments shall be accompanied by His especial Grace, when soever it is done faithfully and with a fincere and penitent Heart; that, as your Bodies are sprinkled and cleanfed with Water, so shall your Sins be washed away, and your Souls purified by His Holy Spirit; and that, as by breaking Bread and pouring out Wine ye do firly represent His Body broken and His Bload fled upon the Cross, so shall ye thereby ensure to yourselves the benefits of His Death, which ye so thankfully commemorate; and, as your Bodies are strength. ened and refreshed by the Bread and Wine, so shall your Souls be comforted, and the Christian Graces (ye are endowed with) be quickened and revived. As ye have been already Baptized in the Name of Jesus Christ, let me exhort you not to lose the Benefit of one Sacrament by a neglect of the other. For, be affured, that they are both of them equally necessary to your salvation. If ye do habitually absent yourselves from the Lord's Supper, it will but little avail you that ye have been admitted into his Church by Baptism. It will not then be uncharitable to think of you, that ye would have neglected Baptilm, in like manner, had it been left to your own chace whether ye would be Baptized or not. For the fame faith and the same repentance, and purpoles of a good life, which are required of you to prepare for Baptism, are as necessary for the worthy receiving of the Lord's Supper. And, if ye refuse to qualify. yourselves for this, it may well be supposed that neither would ye have qualified yourfelves for that. So that, if no person had brought you to Baptilm when ye were Infants, and had undertaken that ye should fulfil the conditions of it, it is probable ye might and would have died Unbaptized. Examine yourselves thoroughly, and see that ye are perfectly fincere in this great matter. For, if ye deceive yourfelves herein, nothing can be of more fatal consequence to your Souls. Convince yourselves and the world that ye heartily embrace the terms of your Baptiful, by fulfilling the terms in a frequent receiving of the Communion of Christ's Body and Blood. And let me earnestly advise you to enter upon this necelfary Duty now, in your younger years, as foon as ye have informed yourselves of what is required from those who come to the Lord's Table. For it is found by experience, that they who absent themselves from it whilst they are young, are not brought to it without great difficulty when they are advanced in years. Some are discouraged by the increasing burthen of their fins; and others, merely by the force of an evil habit, continue in a neglect of this important and necessary duty. But, if ye begin early to appear at the Lord's Table, ye will escape both these delusions: Ye will neither be terrified by your guilt, which as yet, it is to be hoped, is not very great; neither will ye be seduced by any evil custom, which ye have taken care to prevent. What is required of those who come to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper your Prayer Books will instruct you; it being clearly and plainly expressed in the Exhortation before the Communion Office. " Repent ye truly of your fins past; Have a lively " and stedfast faith in Christ our Saviour : Amend " your lives; Be in perfect charity with all men; " And, above all, give most hearty thanks to God " the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy "Gholt, for the redemption of the world by the " death and passion of our Saviour Christ: so shall " ye be meet partakers of those holy mysteries." Ye may observe, that, in these words, there is nothing enjoined you but what every Christian, at all times, is obliged to perform. When therefore this is called a Preparation for the worthy receiving of the Lord's Supper, nothing more is meant by it than that, upon this occasion more particularly, ye Should examine yourselves whether ye do truly and fa thfully perform what it is akways your daty to do. If ye do this, rejoice, and persevere. If ye do not, repent, and refolve (by God's grace) to reform: There is no new talk laid upon you (as some people are apt to imagine) in preparing yourselves for the holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper; only ye are obliged to inquire into the state of your souls, and fee whether your Belief, and Practice, is fuch as becometh Christians. And can this be done too often? Can it be fafely put off from time to time? Will not your Sins daily increase upon you: and will they not increase the faster, because ye neglect the grace of God offered to you in this Sacrament? And will not this Neglect add to the number of your Sins? Will they not, many of them, when thus increafed, escape your memory, and therefore not be particularly repented of? May ye not be cut off in the midst of them, or disabled by Sickness from recollecting them? Surely, there is no excuse can avail you at all, if these things are duly considered. I charge you therefore, as ye hope for Eternal Salvation, thankfully to embrace every opportunity of receiving the Sacrament of Christ's Body and Blocd. Judge yourselves, that ye be not judged of the Lord. Draw near with faith; and receive these pledges of the Love of your Redcemer to your comfort. Offer to Almighty God this your Sacrifice of Praile and Thankfgiving; Yourfelves also, your Souls and Bodies, to be a reasonable, holy, and lively Sacrifice unto Hirt; humbly befeeching Him, that, as ye are Partakers of His Holy Communion, ye may be filled with His Grace and Heavenly Benediction. So shall ye be conducted by His Holy Spirit through the snares and temptations of this mortal state with fafety: so shall ye fully know, diligently bear in mind, and fincerely practife every Christian duty: to thall the peace of God, which paffeth all understanding, keep your hearts and minds in the knowledge and love of God, and of his Son Fefus Chrift; and the bleffing of God Almighty, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoft, be among ft you, and remain with you always.

ment of Everlatting Life. But, fince the nature of man is fuch, at prefent, that ye can do no good thing of yourselves: and that therefore ye have need of the Divine affiltance in every thing which relates to your faith and practice; I must farther put you in remembrance of the duty of constant prayer. Without this, ye are affured from many passages in Scripture, that all your endeavours to be good will be accounted prefumptuous, and therefore will have no effect. For your entire dependence is upon God; and ye cannot, by your own power, provide for the necessities either of your fouls or bodies. is HE who giveth you food and raiment, and all the necessaries and conveniences of life. It is He also, who puts it into our hearts both to will, and perform, what is acceptable and well pleasing to Himself. If ye can fo far prevail over the corruption of your nature, as to think humbly of your felves, and to apply: to the Throne of Grace for the supply of all your wants; ye are gone as far as of yourfelves ye are able to go. Thenceforward ye must use your utmost endeavours (the fincerity of your hearts will require it of you). but they will not be effectual without the bleffing of God, which alone can give them fuccess. You lee then the absolute necessity of Prayer. In regard to which the Church ye more particularly belong to hath provided you with a publick Form, to be used as often as ye meet together for the worship of God. It was composed by good and holy Men, as appears from that Spirit of true piety and devotion which breathes throughout the whole. Ye will do well therefore in paying a true regard to it; and it will become you to lose no opportunity of joining in it devoutly in the publick Church. The fame Prayers may be of service to you likewise in your private Devotions; there being scarcely any one circumstance of life to which there are not Petitions mando in the bank of properly properly fuited in the Common Prayer Book of the Church. Indeed there is one circumstance, which could not be provided for in the Publick Service, because it relates to your duty at home: I mean Jaying Grace before and after Meat: that is, first begging God's blessing on your Food, and afterwards returning God thanks for it. And however strangely this practice be neglected by fome, and very carelessly performed by many others; yet our own reason and Holy Scripture (with the examples of Christ and of St. Paul, together with the examples of the ancient Heathens likewise) should teach all Christians to perform this duty with decency and devotion. Asto Prayer upon other (general) occasions; because the ignorance and weakness of mankind is fuch, that they can neither help themselves, nordo well understand the manner in which they may address themfelves to God for help; it has pleased our Blessed Saviour to instruct His Church to pray, as they ought in that fhort and perfect form which is called by His Name. So that, however imperfect those prayers may be which ye make yourselves, or which good and devout Men have made for your use, yet are ye affured that ye are provided with one Prayer, in which all your wants are properly fummed up, and which, if rightly offered, will not fail of meeting with acceptance. And this (the Lord's Prayer) at least may, and must be used, morning and evening, by every person how poor and ignorant soever.

In the Lord's Prayer ye address yourselves to Almighty God, who, through the mediation of His blessed Son, vouchfaseth to be called Your Father, and the common Father of all Christians, although ye worthily deserve to be punished for your sins, and to be utterly cast out of His savour. And although he is infinite and incomprehensible, and the whole Universe is filled with His greatness, yet, because His glory is manifested chiefly in Heaven, and from

YE pray, or fignify, that it is, above all things, your fincere and hearty defire, that as His Name (or His Being and Attributes) is holy, fearful, and glorious, so it may be hallowed, that is, fanctified, reverenced and adored, by all men in every place, and throughout all generations for ever: that Your-felves more particularly may have your hearts cleanfed, and filled with His Grace: and that in all your thoughts, words and actions, ye may endeavour to promote His honour and glory.

For the better accomplishment of this your fincere desire, ye pray, that God's Kingdom may come; that the knowledge of His holy Name may be spread throughout the whole world; that the dominion of Sin and Satan may be entirely destroyed by the Light of Christ's Gospel: and that the blessed time may not be delayed, when Ye, with all those who have died in His faith and fear, shall be translated

Ye pray, that in the mean while, God's boby Will may be done on Earth, as it is in Heaven. That is, ye declare, that ye are entirely refigned to all the dispensations of his good Providence; and are ready to do and fuffer every thing which cometh of His divine appointment: that ye willingly and heartily submit to all the rules and methods which He hath commanded you to walk by. And although it may be impossible for you ever to attain to such a perfection of obedience in this prefent life, yet it is your fincere with and defire, that Yourfelves and all Men, throughout the whole world, were enabled to perform the Will of God with the same readiness and the same exactness as it is performed by the Angels in Heaven; that as the bleffed Spirits, the Mellengers of God, do speedily and cheerfully execute all His commands, so His faithful servants on earth (as far as the infirmities of their flesh will permit them) may constantly and gladly obey him in

AFTER thus professing that your chief concern is for the advancement of God's honour and glory, ye proceed in your petitions, by begging of Him to give you this day your daily bread. Hereby ye humbly acknowledge, that all things depend upon His gracious Providence, that the eyes of all creatures look up to Him, who giveth them their meat in due feafon, and provideth them with all things out of his bounteous liberality. Therefore ye befeech Him to give You also all the necessaries and conveniences of life; which, although ye are allowed to call them Your daily bread, are not Yours of right, but come from the free bounty of God, and by His bleffing upon Ye pray, that He would continue your labours. to blefs your labours; that neither Ye, nor your families, may ever be in want of what He may judge necessary or proper for your support. And, by thus confessing that your whole reliance is upon His goodness and mercy, ye oblige yourselves to return Him all possible thanks and praise, for the manifold bleffings ye daily receive at his hands.

FARTHER, ye befeech God to forgive you your trespasses, to blot out all your fins, and release you from the punishment of them, as ye forgive them that trespass against you: that is, although men's forgiveness of each other bears no proportion to the forgiveness they stand in need of from God, yet, as it has pleased God to make this a necessary condition of Your being forgiven, ye do humbly hope, that if ye are in perfect charity with all men, and do truly repent you of your sins, ye shall meet with pardon at the I brone of His Grace. At the same time, ye do hereby declare, that ye have no hopes of pardon, unless ye sulfil this condition, and do engage therefore to forgive others their trespasses, so far as is consistent with God's laws, and the prefervation of peace and

But, lest you should meet with trials in this or any other respect too strong for you to encounter, ye beg of God not to lead you into temptation, but to deliver you from evil. Ye make it your humble request, that ye may not be feduced from your obedience either by prosperity or afflictions; that, whatsoever station of life it may please God to appoint you to, and in what soever circumstances ye are placed, ye may (by the help of His Grace) steadily pursue your duty, and do nothing unbecoming your Christian profession; that ye may not be permitted to yield to the delutions of the flesh, the world, and the Devil; but that ye may be strengthened by the Holy Spirit of God against all these your enemies, and, being protected from their power, may pass the course of your lives with integrity and innocence.

FINALLY, ye declare, that ye are firmly perfuaded that ye ought to offer all your prayers and praises to God only; that ye do not, in any degree, trust in yourselves, or in any other creature, for the success of your petitions; but that God, and God alone, can and will (ye humbly hope) relieve all your wants, both spiritual and temporal; for His is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, for ever and ever. He is the absolute Governor of the whole Universe, the Almighty Disposer of all events; He can do whatsoever He will, and nothing is brought to pass in Heaven or Earth without His permission.

YE conclude all by faving Amen. Whereby ye express your earnest desire, that God would be pleased most graciously to grant whatsoever ye have asked; and, at the same time, ye signify your humble considence in Him, that, through the merits and mediation of Jesus Christ, this Prayer of His blessed Son will be heard and accepted by Him.

This.

THIS then is the Prayer which our bleffed Saviour has left for the use of His Church, and every particular Member of it. So that it is impossible ye should err when ye address yourselves to God in this form of words, or in any form agreeable hereto. Let it be your constant care so to order your thoughts and actions, that ye may be always in a capacity of using it. For otherwife ye will provoke God's anger against you by your rashness and presumption, and bring a curfe upon yourselves instead of a bliffing. Approach Him not therefore with this Prayer, unless ye are fincere in your defires and endeavours, that yourselves and all mankind may be obedient to His will, and that His name may be reverenced, and His glory exalted throughout the whole earth. See that ye do not entertain in your minds an abfoliute dependance upon any thing but the goodness of God for the relief of all your wants. Be ready to forgive injuries, and lofe no opportunity of doing good to all Men. Trust not to your own strength, in the many trials and temptations incident to this your mortal state: but be affured that it is God alone who can protect you from the fnares of this world, and the fubtilty and malice of your Ghoffly Enemy. Finally, be perfuaded that all power is in God only; that no evil can harm you without his permission, no good befal you but by His grace and favour; for He ruleth over all things for ever and ever, and as His authority has no bounds, fo will His kingdom and glory never have an end.

Thus have I, briefly and plainly, let before you the whole duty of a Christian; putting you in remembrance of what we ought to believe and do in order to be faved. It is my hearty prayer to God for you, that, by His grace, He would enable you to practife it in truth and fincerity. And I entreat your prayers for me also, that I may do the same; that if it so pleaseth God, we may mutually receive benefit from each other. Here ye have the lubstance of all that has been or will be preached to you; and I fend it to you summed up in this little Book, that ye may have it always before your eyes, and by often reading it, may imprint it deeply in your memories. I address it chiefly to You who are of the younger fort; because, at your first setting out in the world, ye have need of a Guide to direct you in the right way; because Ye are not entered, or at least not far gone (I hope) in the path that leadeth to deftruction; and more particularly, because ye live in dangerous times, when ye have few good examples, but many, very many bad ones before you; and therefore are more likely to be seduced. I am forry I have occasion to observe any thing which is to the discredit of the prefent Age, but most certain it is, that, in every station of life, the manners of Men are greatly corrupted. And not only fo, but many feem to grow flack in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, and some to have totally forfaken it. Who knows but God may put it into your hearts feriously to consider the present unhappy state of Christ's Church, and incline you to use your utmost endeavours to reform it? At least He may enable You to order your own lives as ye ought; and, by preserving You from insection. in your younger years, it may fo happen that the fucceeding generation may be better than the prefent. This feems to be the only hope which is now left us; and for Your own fakes, for the fake of Mankind, and the take of Virtue and Religion, and for Jesus Christ's sake, do not disappoint it.

Be strong and courageous, and dare to be good under all the present disadvantages of Virtue and Piety. Pursue no other pleasure but that of innocence, which alone can give you true satisfaction and peace of mind. Remember, that none but financierly good Christians have a right to be cheerful. These are the men who are commanded by St. Paul to rejoice in the Lord always; and indeed every Christian's motto should be, Serve God, and be joyful. Be therefore prudent, in regard to your best and dearest interest, your true pleasure here and hereaster. Forget not your obligations to Him in whom ye live. and move, and have your being; and let your thoughts frequently dwell on that lively hope of eternal happiness to which ye are begotten through Jefus Christ. Think with yourselves that although ye may live many years, yet it is not impossible that ye may be cut off in a few days; that be your lives ever so long, yet are they really short, and will appear to you much fhorter as they approach to an end; that ye cannot therefore begin too early to be good, neither will it be fafe for you to lose the present opportunity. Consider how many thousands there are, who, reflecting upon their past conduct, would give the whole world sif it was at their disposal) to be in your time of life. If they were fuffered to begin their days again, how watchful would they be over themselves! how cautious of offending God in any one action, or thought! Every wilful Sin they have formerly committed is now as a Viper in their Bosoms, the sting of which leaves a smart not to be endured. The infirmities of old age are tolerable enough to them, but a wounded Spirit who can bear? Yet such will be Four condition, wretched as it is, if ye are guilty of the fame folly, and tread in their steps. Learn from their examples to make a good use of the present time; and if ye are fensible, (as ye must needs be) of their unhappy case, take effectual care, that one time or other, it may not be yours also. How will ye condemn yourselves hereafter, if ye are so unwise as to lose the present opportunity which cannot be retrieved? Ye will then reflect with forrow upon your evil course of life, and stand amazed at your own folly in neglecting the good advice here kindly given.

Ir ye continue wicked, confider, when the time of your departure out of this world shall draw near. which way will ye then look for comfort, or what will ye do to be at peace with yourselves? If ye turn your eyes upon your past lives, ye will find nothing there but what will give you grief and vexation. And, if ye look forwards, how terrible will be the prospect of God's anger, whom ye have made it your bufiness to offend? For remember, it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. But, on the other hand; a well-spent life, proceeding from early habits of virtue and goodness, will leave no room to question the fincerity of your obedience, but will lay a foundation for a reasonable hope, that God will be favourable to you. Ye will have the pleasure of thinking that ye made it your first choice to do His Will, and were not compelled to it by your natural fears and apprehensions: that ye kept your innocence, when ye were courted, bribed and importuned on all fides to part with it; that ye never entered into the fervice of Sin, and therefore have no title to its wages.

But, in what language can I describe to you the joy and transport which attends the conclusion of a regular and good life? When the time approaches that ye shall be called upon to give an account to God, how will it delight you to think that it has been your sincere endeavour to obey His Will? What pleasure will it be to reflect upon the dangers ye have escaped, the evil ye have forborn, and the good ye have done? Oh! that I had led a better life? is, and ought to be the wish of every man, good as well as bad, when He comes to die. But, whill the old Sinner reproaches himself with the neglect of every duty, your consciences will bear you witness, that, from your youth up, ye have endeavoured to sulfil the Commandments of God. Hence will ye be encouraged to look forward also with an humble hope, that, through the merits of Christ Jesus, ve shall be accepted of Him. Death, it is true, is such a change as ye cannot but be oftentimes thoughtful and folicitous about: But remember, that the fling of Death is Sin; and, when Death is once disarmed, the terror of it is much abated. Good men therefore, for the most part, die with perfect resignation and satisfaction of mind. Nay, we sometimes meet with instances of such as express great joy in the exchange of this life for a better. And Ye will do the fame, if ye order your conversation according to my advice: For, what can effectually and really harm you so long as ye are at peace with God! Although your Souls are to be separated from your Bodies for a time, yet nothing can separate you from the love of God. Ye cannot be removed beyond the reach of his Mercy and Loving-Kindness: THAT will follow you through every state, and uphold and comfort you in every change ye undergo.

Bur, after Death, there will be no farther change; your condition then will be fixed to alleternity. When Christ, who is your life, Shall appear, Ye shall also appear with Him in Glory. It is Your Father's good pleasure, little Flock, to give You the Kingdom. For there is laid up for You a crown of righteoufness; which the Lord, the righteous Judge, Shall give you in that day, and not to You only, but to all them who love His appearing. And bleffed be the God, and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ; who, according to His abundant Mercy, hath begotten us again to a lively hope, by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not

O Almighty God, I give thee mast humble thanks, for that Thou hast been pleased to preserve me from the dangers of the night past. Defend me this Day, I beseech Thee, and also my Relations and Friends, from all evil Accidents, and more especially from all temptations to Sin. Let all my doings be ordered by Thy Governance; and let me ever remember, that my most secret thoughts, and actions, are before Thee, and open to Thy sight. Grant, that I may always walk in Thy sear, studying to serve and please Thee in all things; and having been protected by Thy goodness here, may be taken to Thy mercy hereaster, through the merits, and mediation, of Jesus Christ, my Redeemer. A PRAYER to be used every Night.

O Almighty God, I give Thee most humble Thanks for Thy merciful preservation of me this day. I beseech Thee to pardon me in every Thing wherein I may kave offended Thee; and to give me Thy Grace, that I may never do the like again. I thank thee for all thy mercies vouch safed unto me from the beginning of my Life to this present time; for my health, food, and raiment, and more particularly my friends and relations, whom I beseech Thee to bless and reward, for all their kindness and love. I commit myself to Thy gracious protection protection this night; humbly begging, that thy good providence may continue always to watch over me. And grant, I may so order the whole course of my life, that I may finally inherit thine everlasting kingdom, through the merits of Jesus Christ, my Redeemer. Amen.

TOURISM TOURISM

My good Friends and Neighbours,

BEING desirous, during my necesfary Absence from *, to give You some Token of my Remembrances some Proof that my heart is with You, I thought I could not do it better, than in sending You my Opinion and Advice, upon Those Things wherein Your Interest is concerned.

have any Doubt of my Inclination to promote it upon all Occasions, and hope I have not passed my Time so unfount fully amongst You, as that You should

If I could suggest to You any Method of improving Your Worldly Substance, and adding to your Wealth consistently with a good Conscience, I would by no means be silent upon that Head; but my present Address to You has Objects of another, and infinitely more valuable Kind in view.

It is very true, and I acknowledge it with Pleasure, that You have able and religious Teachers in Your several Parishes, and that You hear from them once every Week, that You have a Soul to be faved, and by what Means it is to be faved.

Yet I hope none of you are to defiffute of true Jaying Knowledge, as to think, that Religion is the Bufinels of Your Sundays only; or that the great concern of Eternity deserves no more than a Seventh Part of Your prefent Time.

As You cannot be fo great Enemies to Your own Welfare, as to think thus narrowly of Religion, You ought, and I doubt not will, esteem that Man Your Friend,

Friend, who endeavours to bring it home to You, by informing Your Understanding, or at least refreshing Your Memory concerning the real Duties of it, in order to make it a frequent Object of Your Reflexions in Your Houses, in the Field, in the Markets, as well as in the Churches.

I do not fay that You should think of nothing Else but Religion: for then (as St. Paul fays upon another Occasion) must Ye needs go out of the World. But this I fay, that You should so accustom. Your Minds to the Defire, and Defign of pleafing God in all Things, that You should, even by Habit, make That the Standard of every Thought, every Word, and every Action.

And do not imagine that my applying myself to You upon this Subject is, owing to any Apprehension that You have more Occasion for such Exhortations than Others: I can affure You mod fincerely, that it is not; for I can fay with Truth, that I have found You in, General a Sober, Peaceable and Un-corrupted People. But it is declared by an Apostle, that in many Things We offend fend all, and there is furely None to very good, but that they may receive Benefit from mutual Admonitions.

You are certainly happy in being at fuch a Distance from any of those great Sinks of Iniquity, where Ingratitude, and Disrespect to Our greatest Benefactor, is fashionable, and Neglect of our immortal Souls an Accomplishment. You may thank God that the Contagion has not yet reached You.

It is a melancholy Thing to consider, that Thousands of Those who acknowledge their Expectation of a Future State, and of those Rewards and Punishments which God hath appointed, will not yet take so much Pains, nor exercise so much Self-denial for the obtaining the One, and avoiding the other, tho believed Eternal, as they do for procuring to themselves the Enjoyment of some Momentary Pleasure, perhaps a Vicious one, or for the escaping some bodily Distemper, or other Temporary Evil.

You cannot but be sensible of the Perverseness and Absurdity of such a Conduct, and it will need no Reasoning to convince You, that the true Stand-

and Unhappiness, is the Length, or Shortness of their Duration.

Let me advise You to make this Comparison the Subject of your frequent Meditation. You are, and justly, anxious about the Fruit and Product of Your worldly Care and Labour; endeavour to raise in Your Minds the same Solicitude about the Consequences of all Your other Actions, remembering that the Profit, or Loss, is Eternal.

I do not propose to enter here into a particular Description of every Point of Christian Duty. I should pay a very ill Compliment, as well to Your worthy Ministers, as to Yourselves, in supposing you to want Instruction therein. I would rather excite You to the Practice of what You already know, than pretend to teach You any Thing that You do not.

You know as well as I, or any Man can tell You, What it is to be Honest, and Sober and Chaste, and Humble, and Meek; You know what is Good-Nature, and Truth, and Piety; You are acquainted too, Who it is that expects A 4 these

these Things from You; and what You have to hope, or to fear from Him, With this Knowledge, is it possible to be Unconcerned and Indifferent? When your Thoughts and Words, and Actions here, have fuch a Connection with Eternity, Can You take a step in this World, which will not put You in Mind of the Next?

Yet the I do not propose to enumerate, and inforce to You every Precept of God's Moral Law, there are two or three Points which I cannot help

The First is what relates to the Indulgence of what we justly call unlawful Love, as being expressly forbidden by the Gospel, tho treated by many, in this enlightened Age, and Country, as a flight Offence: and there are some, who will talk of their own Transgreffions against this Divine Law, without Remorse; and even boast of their diabolical Conquests over Innocence, and Virtue.

Against this Crime therefore, I would endeavour in an especial Manner, to arm your Minds, because there is more than ordinary Danger from Without, as well as from Within; from the Suggestions of profligate Companions backed and abetted by those of inward Paffion.

But consider, or, if You have no Occasion Yourself for such Consideration, make the young People for whom You may be concerned, as a Father, or Mafter, confider that he who corrupts 2 Woman, is guilty of a vile Dishonesty; that he robs some Husband of the Property which God has allotted him, and of the Peace and Happiness of his Life, that he brings Discredit, and Grief upon some Father, Mother, or other Relation; that he gives birth perhaps to an Infant, whose Innocence will not protect Him from the Reproaches of his. Parent's Infamy; that he strips and plunders a Fellow Creature of that Virtue, which should support her in this World, and in the next; that he is very probably the Occation of Distress, and Misery to the Partner of his Shame; and very probably too, of her being driven by that Diffress, to an abandoned Prostitution: And what else can he expect

Judge, but to be called to answer, in the last Day, for the Soul which he has destroyed, and to take his Share in the Punishment of every Sin, of which he has been the Occasion?

But perhaps, he is not the Corrupter, he only follows in the Track of Vice began by another: is he therefore innocent? Will He that receives the stolen Goods, be allowed to plead that he did not steal them? Let this Wise Distinguisher bring forth his Reasons; Let him see if he can justify, before his Maker and his Judge, the comforting, abetting and encouraging a Fellow Subject in Rebellion against Him; the paying the Price of Sin by hiring another to commit it; and the preventing, as much as in him lies, the Return of a Guilty Soul to God.

When You reflect upon these Things, You will see very plainly the Reason, why St. Paul has so positively declared, that * no Adulterer, nor Fornicator shall enter into the Kingdom of God. And

I hope Your Reflexion thereupon will be sufficient to keep you clear from those Great Offences.

But perhaps some may think, that if they keep to one Woman only, living with her in all Respects as a Husband with a Wife, the Matrimonial Ceremony may be safely omitted, as a mere human Institution. But let such ask their own Consciences, whether their secret Reason for omitting that Ceremony, be not, that They may have the Liberty of separating Themselves, at their Pleasure, from the Woman, whom they pretend to regard as a Wife; And, if that be the Case, let them not represent that Conduct as conformable to the Law of God, which is sounded upon a Reservation to themselves of a Power to break it, whenever they shall be weary of complying with it.

But these Irregularities are, I hope,

The Thing which I shall next mention to You, and defire to caution You against, is Gaming, which is of late, to the great Grief of all good Men, crept into several Towns in Your Neighbour-A 6 hood.

hood. Consider this only in the Light of Worldly Prudence, can You think it reasonable to hazard what You have earn'd with the Sweat of your Brow, by long Labour, and Care, upon the Chance of a Moment, and to hazard it perhaps against Those, whose Profession is Knavery, and who have no other Subsistence but what arries from the Plunder of your unguarded Simplicity? Or can You expect Honesty, and a faithful Management of your Concerns from your Sons, and Servants, if You suffer them to expose themselves to so great a Temptation?

Look upon this Practice in a Religious View, can there be a greater Immorality than to stake the Maintenance of your Wife, and Children, upon the Cast of a Dye, or Turn of a Card; to play for the suture Happiness of Yourself, or Neighbour; and to put Yourself voluntarily into a Situation, where You must either ruin, or be ruined; and where, if You have any Pleasure, it must arise from the Grief and Misery of your Fellow Christian Paris In 1999 If

If there be Drunkenness amongst You, if there be Swearing and Obfeene Talking, tif Pilfering amongst the poorer Sorts, especially from their Benefactors, and any Species of Disbonesty and Eraud, with Regard to Buying, Selling, Paying of Rent, Tythes, Taxes, or any other Matter, amongst the more Subflantial ; I have the Pleasure of thinking that they are hot very commonly practifed in our Country, and shall therefore content, myself with exhorting Those unhappy People, whose Consciences may accuse them of any such Transgreffions, to remember, before it is too late, that for all these Things, God shall bring them to Judgment.

If these Reflections make the Impression they ought upon You, and You are desirous to know more perfectly, What You should do to be saved, the best Advice which I can give You, is, to seek for the Law of God, in the Book of God, and to compare Your Behaviour with the Rules laid down in the Gospel.

You will see there what Sort of Obedience is required by our Lord and Saviour, to make us worthy Members of his Kingdom; that it must be a Compliance, not with This, or That, but with all his Commands; That it must proceed from a purified Heart, purified, as much as possible in this Carnal State, from all secret Approbation of Sin,—and from a sincere Desire of pleasing God.

You will see too, that the promoting this Glory of God, this Universal Obedience of his Creatures to him, was of so great Consequence, that it was the Cause, why * all Scripture was given, and one of the great Objects even of the Death of Christ.

And You will observe that, amongst all those Commandments of God, what is chiefly insisted on, as the New, the Royal, and the most important Law, is Charity, which I chuse to mention particularly to You, that You may not understand it in that Narrow and Limited Sense only, to which our Language commonly applies it; I mean the giving Alms to the Poor, (That being in Truth but one Branch of it) But may know, that when You are ordered to be Charitable.

2 Tim. iii. 17. Tit. ii. 14.

Good-Will to all Men, of all Denominations, of all Countries, of all Sects, and Parties; looking upon them without Distinction, as your Neighbours, forgiving Offences, justifying Characters, discouraging Scandal, reconciling Differences, and seeking all Opportunities to promote the Welfare, both Temporal and Eternal, of all, with whom You have any Connection.

Laftly, You will see with Joy and Gratitude, that to him who thus fincerely obeys God, delighting in the Performance of his Will, and preferring his Approbation to all other Things whatsoever, Exceeding great and precious Promifes are made, and that even Everlasting Happiness, an eternal Weight of Glory, (as it is stilled by St. Paul) is reserved for Those, who shall come off Conquerors in this Contention with the World, with Themselves, and with the great Adverfary of God, and man; Not however, as due to the Merit of our own imperfect Performances, but from the free Gift and Bounty of God, in Consideration of the Death and Sacrifice of Our bleffed bleffed Saviour, the only begotten Son of God, who died upon the Cross for our Sins, and gave his Life, as he has himself declared, * a Ransom for Many.

Now this being the Case, You will not wonder to find that Faith in this great Author of our Salvation, (viz.) A firm Reliance upon the Promises of God thro' him, should be likewise required of Us, and that as Abraham's Dependance up-on the Power and Veracity of God, first to give him a Son, and then to raise that Son from the Dead, both contrary to the common Course of Nature, was reckon'd to him for Righteousness; So We too, should be required to give Credit (if I may fo fay) to Almighty God, for the Means of our Restoration, and Reconcilement to him, tho' incomprehensible to Us; and to accept of Happiness in the Way, wherein he is pleased to offer it. For if you will + count the Blood of the Covenant an unboly Thing, how can you be sanctified by it? If You reject. the Sacrifice, What Share can You have in the Atonement?

Matt. xx. 28. Mark x. 45. + Heb. x. 29.

When You have fully consider'd and ponderid in Your Hearts this great and wonderful Instance of the Mercy, and Love of God, and have added to it all the other innumerable Bleffings, for which we are all indebted to his Gracious Providence You will hardly want the Affishance even of Scripture, to teach You, that he is to be reciprocally loved, by his Creatures, and constantly work thipped by Them, (viz.) adored and praifed with humble Thankfgiving in Publick and in Private, for his infinite Goodness, and intreated with the devoutest Prayers to continue it to Us. If You judge rightly of Yourself and of Him, You will think it your highest Privilege and Honour, and Comfort to have this Access to him thro' Christ, and will omit no Opportunity of testifying your Gratitude, acknowledging your Dependance, and proclaiming your Trust in him; and more particularly; if you find any peculiar Method inftituted by our great Redeemen of our perpetual Commemoration of what he did, and suffered for Us, (as You will find fuch a One in the Sacrament of the Us by the Gospel Covenant his Holy Spirit to aid Us in Obeying, to direct Us in the Way, and strengthen Us in the Pursuit of eternal Glory. This is that Spirit of God, that Advocate or Comforter, whom Our Saviour promised to all Believers, the Spirit which both raised him from the Dead, and who will raise Us too, if We concur with his holy Motions, first from the Death of Sin, and, in God's due Time, from the Death of Nature also.

But this is not all: The Mercy of God does not stop here neither. Christianity is not more a Law of Faith, and of Practice, than it is a Proclamation of Pardon. This is the Good News which our Saviour himself came to tell Us, and which he ordered his Disciples to carry into all Parts of the World—the Doctrine of Repentance unto Life.

And besides all this, We have a merciful constant Intercessor, in our Behalf, at the Right Hand of God, the same who created Us, who died for Us, and who will hereaster judge Us. If any Man Sin, says St. John, We have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ

the

the Righteous, and He is the Propitiation for our Sins.

If any one therefore has been fo unhappy as to spend some Part of his Life in disobedience, or if the Course of his Duty be fometimes interrupted by fudden Effects of Surprize and human Paffion, let him not therefore despair of Mercy, but endeavour fincerely to qualify himself for it, by Complying with the Terms of the Gospel, I mean, by a true and unfeigned Repentance, which confifts in the Sorrow and Shame of having Offended; in a Change of the Mind, and Disposition, from Evil to Good; in a total abandoning of all those Things wherein We have Sinned; and in turning with the whole Heart unto God; humbly imploring Pardon of what is past, for his Sake, who died to obtain that Pardon for Us; and begging the Affistance of His Holy Spirit to secure Us from future Miscarriages.

If any Man be distaissted with this Sketch of Christian Duty and Christian Faith—If he would direct You to other Mediators between God and Man, besides the Man Christ Jesus—If he would

LONDON:

Printed for F. and C. RIVINGTON, Booksellers to the SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOW-LEDGE, at the Bible and Crown, No. 62, in St. Paul's Church-Yard. 1797.

PLAIN AND SERIOUS

EXHORTATION, &c.

THE Representations lately made of the great Number of unhappy Perfons confined in the several Prisons of this Kingdom for Debt, cannot fail to strike every reflecting Man with very painful Sensations: To which, if we add the amazing Number of Criminals likewise, it shocks us almost beyond bearing.

To what Cause this surprizing Increase of late Years is to be attributed, is not easy to determine. One Thing is very evident; it shews great desect in our religious Principles, and must convince us, that whatever Appearance we may make Abroad, as a mercantile or a warlike Nation, we are certainly in ourselves a dissolute People; and that the Fear of God, and a Sense of our Duty, are in a great Measure lost amongst us; which if not retrieved may draw down some severe national Punishment. without enlarging upon this melancholy Subject, it is undoubtedly much to be wished, that some Method could be found out to make these unhappy Persons profit in this School of Advertity; whereas it is observable that, as Things are at present, most of them, if they recover their Liberty, go out from these Walls more abandoned than when they entered them, literally fulfilling what our bleffed Saviour fays of the Man possessed by a wicked Spirit, that his laft State became much worse than his first.

I have often thought, that if the worthy Clergymen, who are placed near these Houses of Confinement, especially in our great Metropolis, would kindly assist him, whose more immediate Province it is, and use their joint Endeavours in gaining over those that are under his Care, to a true Sense of Religion and their Duty, it could not fail to have an happy Influence: And moreover, if the Keepers of the several Prisons would carefully separate such as are most abandoned, from those, whose Morals are not fo far tainted, it would prevent the spreading of the Contagion of Vice, which is now fo much complained Till these, or some other Methods shall be put in practice, I cannot help thinking, that a plain and ferious Exhortation, fuited to the particular Circumstances of these unfortunate Persons, and put into their Hands before their Minds are rendered callous by long Confinement, might be attended with some happy Consequence.-I am willing at least to try, and with this View have fet myself to draw up this following earnest Address, fincerely hoping, that by the Bleffing of God it may find Admittance to the Hearts of some of them.

I shall consider these Persons under three different Classes:

- 1. As Prisoners for Debt.
- 2. As Criminals confined for small Offences.
- 3. As Malefactors convicted of capital Crimes, and condemned to die.

A 3 To

* Sir John Fielding has been endeavouring for fome time past to introduce this necessary Regulation into our Prisons, and it is greatly to be wished it may be accomplished.

To each of these I shall apply myself separately, beginning with those who are Prisoners for Debt.

SECTION I.

An Exhortation to Prisoners confined for Debt.

WOULD wish you to be affured, my unfortunate Brethren, that this Exhortation comes from One, who does not mean to reproach you for your past Conduct, but who feels for you with a true Christian Compassion, and heartily wishes to administer some Comfort. I am not insensible that some of you have been brought into thefe Difficulties through unforefeen Accidents, fuch as even a large Share of human Prudence could hardly have prevented. In this Case it behoves you to put your full Trust and Confidence in God, to continue to ferve Him faithfully, and to entertain no Doubt, but that He, in his appointed Time, will raise you up Friends, who shall be the Means of your Deliverance.

Others among you have fallen into your Misfortunes through an imprudent Management of your Affairs. You have either launched out into some Business, for which you were not sufficiently qualified, or thrown immoderate Thirst after Gain, you have adventured much too far, even beyond all Probability of Success. Under either of these Suppositions, you must confess your selves highly blameable, and seek much for your Injustice, in hazarding what was not your own, to the great Prejudice of those who were connected with you.

But the most common Case, and that to which I shall speak more largely, is, where you have brought Ruin upon yourselves by a vicious and debauched Life; and, without regard to Principle, have contracted Debts, when there was scarce the least Probability of ever discharging them, merely to answer the Purpose of some present Indulgence. It is difficult to conceive a Conduct more criminal than this.—But it is not my Design to exaggerate Faults; I would rather wish to remedy them.

they have been deprived of their Liberty -fuch a Conduct argues no less Injustice than Folly; for what have they done to merit this Treatment from you? They have only discharged the Duty that was due to their own Families, in defending their Property, when it appears, that you had a Defign of defrauding them. Without giving way therefore to fuch unjust Resentment, be persuaded to think, that this Calamity, which has now befallen you, is a Visitation from Almighty Goo, who in his Mercy makes use of this Me-thod to bring you to a due Sense of the heinous Guilt of your past Conduct.-But this is a Train of Thought, of which probably you have no Conception. Those few Principles of Religion, which you imbibed in your earlier Days, have long fince been obliterated; and from the Time you have entered into publick Life, all your Views and Schemes have been to enjoy as much of the good Things of the world, as you could find Means of engroffing, without troubling yourfelf with the Dread of what may succeed hereaster. If this has been your Case, believe me, you will find no Eafe, till you have altered vour your whole System of thinking; and this is only to be done by deep and ferious Meditation; and when can you enter upon this profitable Exercise more seasonably than now, when the World and the Concerns of it are for a Time thut out? Now the first Step I would recommend to you, for this good Purpose, is to reflect with Seriousness upon your past Life, and to fay, whether you have ever felt a real Pleasure in those Excesses, in which you have fo often indulged; whether all they have afforded has not been a short-lived tumultuary Joy, a momentary Respite from inward Uncafiness, rather than a true and folid Satisfaction. If you acknowledge this, as I am perfuaded you muft, then let me further ask you, whether there is not reason to suspect that you have mistaken your true Happiness; and whether, considering those excellent Faculties we posses, our Creator must not have designed us for much nobler Purposes. If this appears probable, will it not be natural for you to wish to be informed, what nobler Purpefes? And will not this almost necessarily induce you, to consult the Optnions of Men of Wildom and Penetration,

this interesting Subject?

But here you are ready to reply at once, that you have formerly done fo, and examined many Books of Religion, but without reaping any Benefit from them .- This I can easily believe, because it is very probable, you took them in Hand, when you was in full Pursuit of Pleasure; and perhaps with no other intent than to turn them into Ridicule; at least with a full Resolution of not altering your Habit of Life, whatever Arguments you might find to the Contrary. Now with this Disposition of Mind it is natural to imagine you would foon give over the difagreeable Purfuit, telling your Friends, that you had made a diligent Search into all that can be faid in Favour of Religion, and must confess you have received no Manner of Satis-Indeed it would be next to a faction. Miracle, if you should. Be prevailed spon then to have recourfe to thefe Books once more, the Mind being now cool, and softened with Afflictions: and be affured, they will leave a very different Impression. For it has pleased God to afford us such convincing Proofs of the Truth of our holy ReliReligion, that no Man, I am perfuaded, who sits down to the Examination with a sincere Desire of being instructed, will

But it is not my Defign to enter into this Subject at large-all I am aiming at,. is, to induce you, under your present Circumstances, to apply to some of those: excellent Treatifes, wherein these Points: are fully confidered, and to refolve to act according to the Refult of your best Enquiries. The happy Confequence of which will be, that you will experience as Satisfaction to which you have hitherto. been a Stranger: And thus, what now appears to you the greatest of all Calamities, will be converted into a real Bleffing. Henceforward the whole Plan of your. Conduct will be different; for instead of the Arts and Tricks you have hitherto, practifed, you will make its your fincere. Endeavour to give ample Satisfaction to. all those you have injured t You will confine your Expences within due Bounds :: You will feek for your Rujoyment in domestick Life with your Family at Home, . and not in riotous Excursions with your diffipated Companions Abroad: In fort, . A.6 ini in all your Actions you will have a View to what is to follow hereafter, upon a thorough Conviction that nothing can be of fo much Importance as securing the Favour of Him, upon whom our whole Happiness must depend. And thus, you will have abundant Reason to say frequently with the Psalmist—" It is good "for me, that I have been in Trouble; for before I was afflicted, I went wrong, but now have I learned to keep the "Commandments of my Goo."

I shall next apply myself to You, who are under Imprisonment for small Crimes.

SECTION II. W Debas

An Exhortation to Criminals confined for small Offences.

YOU that come under this Class, are for the most part raw and unexperienced Youth, who, not aware of the Consequences, have been drawn in by older Offenders, to commit those Crimes, for which you you are now imprisoned. It is very difficult to bring you to a true Sense of your Faults, because being void of all Principles of Religion and Morality, you act under no other Influence, than the Dread of Punishment, which, if you can escape, you are perfectly easy as to every other Consideration besides.

Now as the Offences you have committed, are not very glaring Ones, or have not been repeated, Regard will most probably be had to your Years, and you will, after proper Chastisement, be dismissed from these Walls. Happy should I esteem myfelf, could I say something, that might induce you to reform your Behaviour when you are gone from hence, and incline you to become good Men. I am well aware, the Undertaking is a very unpromising One:—I will however attempt it.

Be affured then, that besides the Punishment inslicted on you by the Judge, you have much more to sear in another World from Almighty God, who made you: For you have offended against him, as well as against the Laws of your Country; and the Moment you die, then begins a Forment, that will last for ever and ever, unless you make make your Peace with Him, before you depart hence. Now, the Way to do this, must be by sincerely repenting of what is past, and leading a new Life for the suture: In which Case God will sorgive you for the Merits of our Saviour Jesus Chair.

But before I urge these Considerations in their sull Force, I will lay before you the Consequences of your present Conduct in regard to this World, point out the Difficulties you must expect to meet with, if you shall be prevailed upon to reform, and endeavour to shew you the best Me-

What brought you at first into this unhappy Course of Life, was your Aversion to Work: For having long accustomed yourfelf to Idleness, you was almost under a Necessity of Stealing to Supply the Cravings of Hunger; and unhappily falling into the Company of very wicked and abandoned Men, you was perfuaded by them that you might fafely venture, without any Danger of being detected : and by this Means you have been induced to commit the Crime for which you are now to suffer; and great Fear is there, as I observed, that when you are released from hence, M. Ake hence, you will purfue the fame Course, till at length you are condemned to a severer Punishment.

For 18, In this very Place in which you are now confined, you will meet with many, who will use all possible Arguments to perfuade you to perfift-they will commend your Dexterity, and induce you to think, that your having been detected was a meer Accident, that may not happen again-they will tell you, they themselves have known many (which undoubtedly is absolutely false) who have long subsisted in this Way, and were never discovered; and therefore why should not you hope for the fame good Luck? But supposing these Discourses make no Impression upon you, (which is almost too favourable a Supposition) supposing you conceive such an Horror for a Prison, that when once you escape from hence, you are resolved to do nothing that may be the Means of bringing you hither again; yet there will be great Danger of your being staggered in your Resolutions merely from the Difficulty of procuring a Subfiftence; for, you being destitute of Character, good People will hardly venture to employ you:

you: And, Hunger becoming sharp, and your old Companions not failing to renew their Sollicitations, and you yourfelf having forgot the Miseries of a Prison, you may too easily be drawn in to engage once more, and so finish a short and miserable Life by an infamous Death. To avoid this, keep up the Impression, which the Horror of your Confinement has once made, as fresh as you can upon your Mind; and refolve to fubmit to any Drudgery, rather than incur the like Mifery again. And although you must be contented to undergo Hardships at first, yet take Courage, and be affured, that if it once appears you are really reformed, there are many who will take a Pleasure in befriending you: And you yourself after some Experience will find fuch a Satisfaction in your new Way of Life, compared with your former, that you will have less and less Inclination to return. You will often recollect, that whilst you was engaged in bad Courses, you had a constant Terror upon your Mind, for fear of a Discovery; and that the most you could boast of, was some Hours of Riot and Debauchery, which how-: Liov

however were always intermixed with Jealousies and Suspicions, and frequently ended in Quarrels and Bloodshed: And when these Moments of Jollity were past, great Uneasiness for the most part ensued, you not knowing sometimes where to procure the next Morsel of Bread. Young as you are you cannot but confess this has frequently been your distressed Situation.

Now these Terrors, and this Dread of starving, you will happily be delivered from: You will be under no Necessity of lurking in obsoure Corners; and shunning the Face of Man: You will lie down to your Rest undisturbed at proper Seasons, and rise refreshed and chearful: You will make to yourself real Friends, who will be ready to shew you Kindness in Cases of Distress, instead of those wicked and pretended Friends, who were formerly your Companions, and who, after the most solemn Protestations, would have felt no Remorse in taking away your Life.

There are two particular Directions I would wish you to bear in Mind, as what I am convinced will be of great Service: The one is, That as all Labour will at first be very irksome, on account of long disuse, insomuch insomuch that you will think it almost impossible to submit to it for a Continuance, and thereby be tempted perhaps to give it over; you would only be prevailed upon to persist for a Time, assuring yourself that Habit will render it easier and easier, till at length it will cease to be irksome. The other is; By no Means associate with your old Companions: Flee from them directly, if you meet them, and enter into no Parley with them: There will be very little Probability of your reclaiming them, and much Danger of their enticing you back to your old Courses.

I will now apply myself to you in a religious Consideration.

I observed that the Offences you have been guilty of, have been committed against God, as well as the Laws of your Country; and that, what you have to fear from Him, is much more terrible than what you can suffer from the Sentence of the Judge: Know then affuredly, that we do not lie down to die like the Beasts, and perish for ever; but we must rise from the Grave to give an Account of our Works; at which Time.

Time, all those who shall be found to have done good, shall go into everlasting Life, but Evil-doers into everlafting Fire. It is eafy to foretel what your Doom must have been, had you gone on in pursuing those Courfes you have lately followed. As it. is, you have a bleffed Opportunity afforded you, of making yourfelf happy in this Life, and everlastingly happy in the next; and that is, by becoming a fincere good Chriftian. What is requifite to form this excellent Character, you will eafily learn from some of those valuable Books of Piety, which are now in almost every one's Hands; and which will very fully inform you (from the Scriptures) in the true Nature of a Christian's Duty. However if you areat a Lofs, confult fome worthy Clergyman, who will take a Pleasure in instructing you. The short and plain Advice I shall give you, is as follows. In the first Place, have recourse to your Catechism, and read it thro' with great Care and Attention, confidering it as an excellent Guide to instruct you both what you are to practife, and what to believe in order to Salvation; next, procure a Morning and Evening Prayer, and refolve to use them constantly. with with the greatest Earnestness you are capable of, as knowing you are speaking before Almighty God, who feeth the Heart, and will hear or reject you according to your Sincerity.—On the Sabbath, let no Confideration whatever prevent you from attending God's public Worship; for, befides it being your indispensable Duty so to do, as it is a Day of Leifure, if you are not employed in good Works, you will be almost unavoidably drawn away by idle Companions to engage in bad Ones; for it is univerfally acknowledged, that there is no furer Inlet into all Manner of Wickedness than the Breach of the Sabbath .-In all your Undertakings in Life, make the fincere Defire of pleafing God, your constant Rule ;-venture upon no one Action that your Conscience tells you He will not approve of; Thus, you will preferve your Conscience your Friend, which will give you more Comfort than the Riches of the whole World .- If at any Time you are furprifed into Sin, have no Peace with yourfelf till you have fincerely repented, and asked Forgiveness for the Sake of JEsus CHRIST. And upon the whole, be affured, if you can be prevailed upon to proceed proceed in this bleffed Course to the End, you will experience as much Happiness as this transitory Life is capable of affording, with this additional Satisfaction, that you have a Promise from God, who cannot deceive you, of being completely happy with Him to all Eternity. A thousand and ten thousand Times will you break forth into Raptures of the sincerest Gratitude for his Goodness in giving you Grace to see your Error before it was too late; for that otherwise you might long ago have been in the Number of those, to whom it would have been good never to have been born.

I shall, in the last Place, apply myself to You, that now he under Sentence of Death.

SECTION III.

An Exhortation to Malefactors convisted of capital Crimes, and condemned to die.

BE affured, I have a most tender Feeling for the Horror you must necessarily labour under; for although the Sentence that has just now passed upon you, was no more than you had reason to expect, yet I am very fenfible, that when it comes to be pronounced in an awful Manner by the Judge, it cannot fail of striking Terror into the stoutest Heart alive. But as foon as the Alarm is in some part gone over, and your Spirits are a little recovered from the Dejection you have been thrown into, then I would earnestly wish you to attend to what I have to offer; and I have good Hope, that by the Affistance of Gon's Grace, it may bring you real Comfort.

First, be thoroughly persuaded, that, had you been cut off in the Midst of those Crimes you have committed, you would at this Instant have been undone, past Redemption. For it is an undoubted Truth, as I have just now observed to younger Offenders, that Almighty God has placed us in this World with a View to the next, and that, according to our Behaviour here we shall be happy or miserable for ever hereafter: It is likewife equally true, that this Life is our only Trial, and that, when we depart hence, our Doom is fixed to all Eternity. This being undeniably the Cafe, you, according towhat is past, can have no Expectation of Mercy; All your Hopes must depend upon your Manner of employing this short Interval of Time, that remains between the present Hour, and the Day of your Suffering: And bleffed be Goo, fhort as it is, if rightly improved, it may produce the most happy Consequences. This is the great Point I am aiming at, to prevail with you, not to lose the Opportunity of still reconciling yourself to Gop. How this important Work is to be performed, the Clergyman, who attends the Prison, will be best able to advise you, because you can make known to him your particular Case, and lay open your whole Life; whereby he will be capable ble of shewing you the Horror of your Guilt in its true Colours, and instruct you in the Nature of real Repentance. Only let me exhort you to apply to him most ferioufly, with an earnest Defire of being faved. As for the forrow you now feel for what is come upon you, do not mistake this for real Repentance: It may produce real Repentance; but, most probably, it is at prefent no more than what the most abandoned Wretch upon Earth, who has no Sense of Religion, must feel, when he knows he is to die. Godly forrow is of a quitedifferent Nature; it produces a piercing Uneafiness and Compunction of Heart for having abused the infinite Goodness of God, not unlike what one of a generous Temper will feel, for behaving ungratefully to his best Benefactor, If you perceive any Thing like this arifing in your Mind, then there is the most promising Hope that you may become a fincere Penitent. To which End, these following plain Directions will not a little contribute.

tion cast away all Dependence upon a Pardon. It is an Act of cruel Kindness in h

those who attend upon condemned Persons to endeavour to support their Spirits by intimating the Hopes of a Pardon, when at the same Time they are convinced there is not the least Room to expect it; and the poor Convicts themselves, although they know the same likewise, are too easily induced to give Credit. Whilst your Mind is agitated between Hope and Fear, it is rendered unsit for preparing for your great Change. You will certainly find more Sasety, if not more Ease, in concluding all Expectations of a Pardon groundless, and considering yourself as a Man who has no longer any Concerns with this World.

Next, be prevailed upon to refrain from all Excess whatever. It is presumed indeed that Care is now taken in all Prisons to prevent such Intemperance: But where a Supply of Money is not wanting, the utmost Care will frequently be to no Purpose. The Restraint must come from yourself, especially, as there will be always some at hand who will endeavour to persuade you that more than ordinary Recruits are now necessary, whilst others will laugh at our Abstemiousness, as a Mark of Fra and Recruits are now appropriate.

Cowardice. Have the Courage to difregard them, and be affured that any Attempt to drown your Uneafiness by drinking to Excess, would be as fruitless as it is sinful. If you drink to the highest Degree of Intoxication, the Moment your Senses return, your Uneasiness will return with a tenfold Horror. It might be wished perhaps, that you could be perfuaded to receive no more Nourishment than what is sufficient just to support Life. However, be this as it will, by all Means avoid Indulgencies; this being the most likely Method of preserving that equal Temper of Mind, that is best suited to your present Circumstances.

I will not fo much as suppose that you can entertain any bad Design of shortening those sew Days you have to live, by a voluntary Death. I beseech you think, what would this do for you? It would certainly plunge you at once into Tortures, infinitely surpassing what you at present endure, adding the Guilt of Self-Murder to the Load f your other Crimes, and depriving you call Possibility of repenting.

have any Hopes, by warmly representing what you now feel, of reclaiming them from their evil Courses: Otherwise, to say no worse of such Visits, they will take up too much of that precious Time, that ought to be better employed. Even in regard to those who are included in the same Sentence with you, unless they appear to have the same earnest Desire with yourself of reconciling themselves to God, it would be better not to join in Conversation with Nay, I will go still farther, and fay, that it were to be wished that even. your near Relations would not think it incumbent upon them to visit you, unless they are Persons of a serious turn of Mind, who will heartily join with you in Prayer: As for all Expressions of Sorrow and Concern, which they may shew upon the Occasion, it is much to be recommended to them to forbear; fuch Lamentations can ferve no good Purpose; they will only tend to torment them, and unfettle you: -In short, nothing, if possible, should be done or thought of, but how to prepare to appear in the Presence of GoD.

absent, as present, and do not think, as is the Case of too many, that if you attend to his Prayers and Admonitions, just whilst he is with you, nothing more is required until he returns again. Every Moment of your Time is precious; the whole should be employed in one constant Preparation

Take his Directions likewise in regard to making Restitution, either to those you have injured in private, or to the Public in general, by discovering your Accomplices. He, by knowing your particular Situation, will be the best Judge of what is most proper to be done. All I shall say to you upon this Head, is, do not let a Sense of salse Honour, or an ill-judged Tenderness prevent you from complying with what you are directed to do; you ought certainly to have no other Concern but to please God, and to use your utmost Endeavours to procure his Favour.

Lastly, As to forgiving those who have been the Means of detecting you, or others who may have injured you, doubtless your spiritual Monitor will be very particular in exhorting you to this Duty, before he administers the blessed Sacrament to you,

And now upon the Whole:-If you have once a thorough Conviction upon your Mind of what Importance the Salvation of your Soul is, you will deem it the greatest of Mercies, that God has been pleased to bring you to a due Sense of the Heinousness of your Transgressions, and to afford you this bleffed Opportunity of humbling yourself in his Sight, before he fummoned you to his awful Tribunal, knowing, as I observed to you, that if you had been cut off in the Midst of your Crimes, you must have been lost and undone for ever. And believe me, a Sense of this fignal Mercy in God will give a different Appearance to this whole Scene, and carry you through amazingly. Even the Difgrace of becoming a public Spectacle, and the Pain of dying, will lose their Terror, whilst you are supported with the bleffed Hope of having made your Peace with Gop. Now this Hope you cannot fail to enjoy to your utmost Wishes, when you confider that God's Mercy is declared to be without Bounds to all returning Sin-B 3 ners: ners; and that our bleffed Saviour affured the penitent Thief upon the Cross, he should that very Day be with him in Paradise: Therefore, if your Repentance has been sincere, you can entertain no Doubt of Forgiveness through the Merits of Jesus Christ.

But laftly, If after all there should be any among you, whom nothing that can be urged will move to Repentance (which God in his great Goodness forbid!) I cannot fatisfy myfelf in concluding, before I intimate, in few Words, what will probably be your wretched Cafe. You will waste these few remaining Days in a Manner almost too shocking to relate; At some Times you will vent the most dreadful Curfes upon yourfelf for your Folly ;-at other Times you will utter the most horrid Oaths and Blafphemies, and call down Imprecations upon the Heads of all these who have been instrumental in bringing you to Justice ;-at all Times, if it is poffible to be done, you will have recourse to intemperate Drinking:-And when at length the fatal Hour is come, you will either be ftruck with the foolish Vanity of appearing

I HAVE not added any Forms of Prayer for penitent Sinners, because I am desirous of prevailing with those for whose Use this Address is intended, as soon as they are brought to a due Sense of their Condition, to apply themselves to the Clergyman that attends the Prison, who will doubtless put into their Hands such as are best adapted to their particular Cases. I have however added a general Prayer for Pardon, that may be used by all Penitents.

^{*} The following religious Treatifes, very proper for the Perusal of Prisoners during their Confinement, and likewise for such of them, as after being released, shall have a sincere Desire of reforming their Lives, are among many others which are recommended by the Society sor promoting Christian Knowledge:

A PRAYER for a PENITENT.

LORD, I am not worthy to lift up my polluted Eyes unto thee. But whither should a Wretch overwhelmed with Guilt and Misery look, but unto the Fountain of Mercy? Whither but to Him, whose Property it is always to forgive; and, who defireth not the Death of a Sinner, but inviteth the greatest Offenders to repent and be faved. O LORD, it is with the utmost Shame and Confusion of Face I now prostrate myself before Thee. I have no Plea to offer in my Excuse, but build all my Hopes of Pardon upon thine infinite * Mercies in CHRIST JESUS. I know, if Thou feest me fincerely contrite, Thou wilt have Compassion, and forgive. O LORD, I do acknowledge my Vileness with the deepest Sorrow-I do condemn myfelf with the bitterest Agony. I confess, that I deferve nothing less than thy feverest Judgments. But, alas! great as the Mifery I now labour under is, I have too much Reason to fear it may soon be forgotten, unless Thou shalt be pleased to strengthen

Grant therefore, gracious LORD, that the Sense of my present Wretchedness may never depart from my Thoughts, till it has wrought in me a deep and lasting Repentance, and rendered me a fit Object for thy Mercy in Christ Jesus. And this I beg for the Sake of the same blessed Jesus, in whose Name and Words I conclude my impersect Prayer:

Our Father, which art in Heaven, Hallowed be thy Name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy Will be done in Earth, as it is in Heaven. Give us this Day our daily Bread. And forgive us our Trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into Temptation, but deliver us from Evil: For thine is the Kingdom, and the Power, and the Glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

- Then shall the Minister exhort the Prisoner or Prisoners after this Form, or other like.

Dearly beloved, know this, that Almighty God, whose never failing providence governeth all things both in heaven and earth, bath so wisely and mercifully ordered the course of this world, that his Judgments are often sent as fatherly corrections to us: and if with due submission and resignation to his holy will we receive the same, they will work together for our good.

It is your part and duty therefore to humble yourself under the mighty hand of God, to acknowledge the righteousness of his Judgments, and to endeavour that by his grace, this prefent Visitation may lead you to a fincere and hearty repentance.

The way and means thereto is, to examine your life and conversation by the rule of God's commandments, and wherein-soever you shall perceive yourself to have offended either by will, word, or deed, there to bewail your own finfulness, to confess yourfelf to Almighty God, with full purpose of amendment of life; and if you shall perceive your offences to be fuch as are not only against God, but also against your Neighbours, then to reconcile yourself to them, being ready to make restitution and satisfaction, according to the utmost of your power, for all injuries and wrongs done by you to any other; and being likewife ready to forgive others that have offended you, as you would have forgiveness of your offences at God's hand; and to this true repentance and change of. mind you must add a lively and stedfast faith, and dependence upon the merits of the death of Christ, with an entire refignation of yourself to the will of God. While you have the light, believe in the light, and walk as children of the light, that you be not cast into outer darkness; that you may not knock when the door, shall be shut, and cry too late for mency when it is the time of justice. Now you are the object of God's mercy, if by repentance and true faith you turn unto him: but if you neglect these things, you will be the object of his justice and vengeance: Now you may claim the merits of Christ; but if you die in your fins, his fufferings will tend to your greater condemnation. PERSONS UNDER SENTENCE, &c.

When a criminal is under Sentence of Death, the Minister shall proceed immediately after the Collect (O Lord, who sparest, &c.) to exhort him after this Form, or other like.

DEARLY Beloved, it hath pleased Almighty God, in his justice to bring you under the sentence and condemnation of the Law; you are shortly to suffer death in such a manner, that others warned by your example may be the more assaid to offend; and we pray God, that you may make such use of your punishments in this world, that your soul may be saved in the world to come.

Wherefore

Wherefore we come to you in the bowels of compassion; and, being desirous that you should avoid prefumption on the one hand, and despair on the other, shall plainly lay before you the wretchedness of your condition, and declare how far you ought to depend on the mercies of God, and the merits of our Saviour. Confider then feriously with yourself, in all appearance the time of your diffolution draweth near, your fins have laid fast hold upon you, you are foon to be removed from among men, by a violent death, and you shall fade away fuddenly like the grafs, which in the morning is green, and groweth up, but in the evening is cut down, dried up and withered. After you have thus finished the courfe of a finful and miserable life, you shall appear before the Judge of all flesh; who, as he pronounces blessings on the righteous, shall like-wise say, with the terrible voice of the wife fay, with the terrible voice of the most just judgment, to the wicked, Go you accurfed into the fire everlasting, prepared for the devil and his angels.

Wherefore

Your

Your fins have brought you too near this dreadful fentence; it is therefore your part and duty, my brother, humbly to confess and bewail your great and manifold offences, and to repent you truly of your fins, as you tender the eternal salvation of your soul.

Be not deceived with a vain and prefumptuous expectation of God's favour, nor fay within yourfelf, Peace, Peace, where there is no peace; for there is no peace, fays my God, to the wicked; God is not mocked; he is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity, and without holiness no man shall fee the Lord: On the other hand, despair not of God's mercy, though trouble is on every fide : for God shutteth not up his mercies for ever in displeasure; but if we confess our fins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our fins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. Do not either way abuse the goodness of God, who calleth us mercifully to amendment, and of his endless pity promifeth us forgiveness of that which is past, if with a perfect and true heart we return unto him.

Since therefore you are soon to pass into an endless and unchangeable state, and your future happiness or misery depends upon the sew moments which are lest you; I require you strictly to examine yourself and your estate, both towards God and towards man; and let no worldly consideration hinder you from making a true and sull consession of your sins, and giving all the satisfaction which is in your power to every one whom you have wronged or injured, that you may find mercy at your heavenly Father's hand for Christ's sake, and not be condemned in the dreadful day of judgment.

Lastly, Beloved, submit yourself with Christian resignation to the just judgment of God, which your own crimes have brought upon you, and be in charity with all men; being ready sincerely to forgive all such as have offended you, not excepting those who have prosecuted you even unto death; and though this may seem a hard saying, yet know assuredly, that without it your charity charity is not yet perfect. And fail not earnestly to endeavour and pray for this blessed temper and composure of mind; so may you cast yourself with an entire dependence upon the mercies of God, through the merits of your Saviour and Redeemer Jesus Christ.

¶ Here the Minister shall examine him concerning his Faith, and rehearse the Articles of the Creed, Dost thou believe in God, &c. and the Criminal shall answer,

All this I stedfastly believe.

- Then shall the Minister examine, whether he repent him truly of his sins, exhorting him to a particular Confession of the sin for which he is condemned; and upon Confession he shall instruct him what satisfaction ought to be made to those whom he has offended thereby; and if he knoweth any combination in wickedness, or any evil practices designed against others, let him be admonished to the utmost of his power to discover and prevent them.
- After this Confession, the Priest shall absolve him (if he humbly and heartily desire it) either in the Form which is appointed in the Office of Visitation of the Sick, or in that used in the Communion Service.

O HOLY Jesus, who of thine infinite goodness didft accept the conversion of a finner on the crofs, open thine eye of mercy upon this thy fervant, who defireth pardon and forgiveness, though in his latest hour he turneth unto thee. Bleffed Lord, remember thy mercies, look upon his infirmities, hear the voice of his complaint, give him, we befeech thee, patience in this his time of adverfity, and support under the terrors which encompass him; set before his eyes the things he hath done in the body, which have justly provoked thee to anger; and forafmuch as his continuance appeareth to be short amongst us, quicken him fo much the more by thy grace and Holy Spirit, that he, being converted and reconciled unto thee, before thy judgments have cut him off from the earth, may at the hour of his death depart in peace, and be received into thine everlasting kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

O SAVIOUR of the world, who by thy cross and precious blood hast redeemed us, save us, and help us, we humbly beseech thee O Lord.

Then the Minister Standing Shall Say,

In the midst of life we are in death: of whom may we seek for succour, but of thee, O Lord, who for our sins art justly displeased.

Yet, O Lord God, most holy, O Lord, most mighty, O holy and most merciful Saviour, deliver us not into the bitter pains of eternal death.

Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts; shut not thy merciful ears to our prayers; but spare us, Lord most holy, O God, most mighty, O holy and merciful Saviour, Thou most worthy Judge eternal, suffer us not, at our last hour, for any pains of death to fall from thee.

Then the Minister Shall Say, is none other name under heaven given to man, in whom and through whom thou mayest receive salvation, but only the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

And after that Shall Say,

UNTO God's gracious mercy and protection we commit thee. The Lord bless thee and keep thee. The Lord make his face to shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace both now and evermore. Amen.

At the time of Execution, besides all or such part of the foregoing Office, as the Minister shall judge proper, shall be said the Commendatory Prayer for a person at the point of departure, as it is in The Visitation of the Sick.

A PRAYER for imprisoned Debtors.

Most gracious God, look down in pity and compassion upon these thine afflicted fervants, that are fallen under the misery of a close restraint. Give them always a deep fense of their fins, and of thy fatherly love and correction; and the more their confinement preffeth hard upon them, the more let the comforts of thy grace and mercy abound towards them. Give to their creditors tenderness and compassion, and to them a meek and forgiving spirit towards all those that have confined them, and a full purpose to repair all the injuries and losses, that others have sustained by them. Raise them up friends to pity and relieve them; give them the continued comfort of thy countenance here, and so fanctify their afflictions, Prov. xxxi. 29.

A T the 10th verse of this chapter, Solomon, who is here generally thought to be meant by King Lemuel, is beginning the description of a good and godly woman, a rare and incomparable jewel; her price is far above rubies. He carries on her character through all the accomplishments of chastity, industry, charity, discretion and piety; and she that has most of these ornaments does excel the rest of her sex, surpasses all: as Solomon here seems to speak to such an accomplished woman, "Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all!"

Upon these words I intend plainly to recommend those virtues and graces, those endowments of the mind, that may help our daughters to deserve this excellent character of the text; under the qualifications here given by Solomon, modesty, meekness, industry and piety;

The EXCELLENT DAUGHTER.

I. First, modesty is the foundation of doing virtuously and becoming excellent.

To this foundation of virtue and honour, Solomon alludes, by faying, ver. 11. "The heart of her husband doth fafely trust in her." No shadow for jealousy, or the least suspicion, where modesty admits no evil thoughts. Considence and impudence sit ill upon a masculine sace, but they are a much greater blot and reproach to the other sex, whom nature designed to be more bashful and reserved.

When God would represent Judab as his ungracious daughter, he upbraids her with being annatural; that is, being bold and brazen in her countenance and carriage, Jer. iii. 3. "a whore's "forehead, refusing to be ashamed;" as if modely and chastity were indeed inseparable; while impudence and incontinence would go together.

This female modesty should appear in the looks, in the language, and in the habit of our daughters.

First, In their looks or countenance, which is the first visible seat of modesty, though it must arise from an innocent heart, and a purity of mind. And indeed, an innocent soul will have a modest look; and some guilt is betrayed in great affurance. Simplicity and integrity will shim torth in the whole air of the sace, and will give the sweetest gracefulness, or truest beauty, to itl fay, modesty will give beauty; for after all the inventions of art, there is nothing fo becoming as a modesty of nature, the want of which native beauty can never be repaired by any artificial helps. If there be a boldness to be read in any face, that disfigures the best features; like a cloud over the fun, it intercepts the glory of it.

Virtue is referved and retired; they who are most forward to shew themselves, do but most expose themselves. Wicked Jezebel, in paint and pride, was looking out of the window, while scorn and scandal came upon her; but Rebekab, the damfel, very fair to look upon, she is described, Gen. xxiv. 65. " as taking a veil, and covering;

Secondly, As modesty must appear in the countenance, so it must guide the tongue, and govern-

all the language of the virtuous daughter.

A forwardness to talk, and a multitude of words, is no advantage to the character of any person; no more than found is to an empty vessel, or the noise of waters to a shallow stream. Especially in women, whose greatest reproach in the apostle's censure of them, was to be tattlers and busy bodies. He recommended few words. guided with discretion, and to know when tohave faid enough, and when to be filent; fays he, 1 Tim. ii. 11. " Let the woman learn in silence." And again, verse 12. " Not to usurp authority, " but to be in silence."

Prudence does mightily appear in this fort of patience, not to be easily provoked, nor rashly and loudly to answer again; but by sober thoughts to command their own passion, and by soft words

In this modesty of the tengue, it ought not to be imagined, that our young women fay any thing rude or indecent. Filthy communication ought not to proceed out of any mouth, no, not of the boldest men; in them it is a rude and brutish liberty. But in the other sex, especially in the younger fort, any manner of loofe and light discourse is indecent and unsufferable. They must not express their sense of such things, but in blushes at the unwilling apprehension of them. To all women professing godliness, that is, profeffing themselves christians, there must be in the apostle's advice, a very "chaste conversation, " coupled with fear;" the fear of speaking an unfeemly word. " No foolish talking or jesting, " which are not convenient;" that is, are very indecorous, and very unbecoming.

Thirdly, There is a modesty in habit and apparel, as well as in the countenance and language

Habit and apparel are to serve not only for a necessary covering, but even for a suitable ornament to all people, and to distinguish their degree and condition in the world. And therefore the rule of decency is the suitable condition of every person: When any exceed or go beyond their

This adapting of clothes to the condition of hofe that wear them, ought more especially to be the care and caution of our younger women. How express was the apostle in commanding, 1 Tim. ii. 9. that " women adorn themselves in " modest apparel, with shamefacedness and so-" briety, not with costly array." And another apostle prescribes the same rule of decency and agreeableness, 1 Pet. iii. 3. " Whose adorning, " let it not be so much that outward adorning of " plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, and " putting on apparel, but let it be the hidden " man of the heart;" that is, cleanness and humility. That apostle goes on to intimate, that the fond gaiety of modes and fashions is but an innovation of the latter times, a corruption in good manners; whereas, neatness and plainness were a better ornament in former ages, verle 5. " For after this manner in old times, the holy " women also who trusted in God, adorned them-" felves."

And indeed, there is a greater ornament in the apparel that is suitable, than in that which is exceeding. The wise man implies, that as a jewel in a swine's snout makes but an odd and contemptible figure, so does any gaudy show upon a fair woman without discretion; upon any that are habited above their birth and condition in the world.

A natural neatness is more becoming than any borrowed lustre; for this reason, the lilies of the field, exceed all the paint and varnishes of art: and

A plain and unaffected neatness I may well call a modesty of apparel; for it is the greatest sign and token of a modest mind. Our wise man in these proverbs, chap. vii. 10. condemns excessive sinery, as the attire of an barlot: and in this chapter with the text, commends the virtuous woman for letting her apparel be chiefly the work of her own hands; ver. 22. "She maketh herself coverings of tapestry, her clothing is silk and purple."

II. The next accomplishment of the virtuous daughter, is meekness and quietness of temper.

A rough and turbulent disposition is a blemish even in men, is a sort of want of humanity: every churl is in resemblance a brute; but rigidness and surious violence is more unnatural in our daughters than in our sons. Hence though calmness and gentleness are recommended to all christians in common; yet they are more especially enjoined to women, as a peculiar ornament to their sex. In 1 Pet. iii. 4. there is something preferred before gold and jewels; something more precious and charming, that is, "the ornament of a meek and "quiet

Our oracle of the text, Solomon, maketh noisiness to be the sure sign of indiscretion; says he, Prov. ix. 13. "A foolish woman is clamorous, she is simple;" and he represents her elsewhere as unsit for society, and intolerable, Prov. xxv. 24. no dwelling with a brawling woman. But when he comes here to give the character of an excellent daughter, he maketh her crown of glory to be a meek, mild, and prudent conversation, ver. 6. "She openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in "her tongue is the law of kindness;" that is, nowath or bitterness.

By this calm and quiet disposition, we do not mean a softness or stupidity of mind, untouched and unconcerned; no, meekness is a virtue that does not want sense, and even quickness of apprehension; but it subdueth every angry thought, it suppresses the every idle word; it refraineth from wrath, and it letteth go displeasure; it is mild,

By what courteous and complying words did discreet Abigail stop and turn aside the sury of David, when incensed against her churlish husband Nabal, and coming to execute revenge upon him, I Sam. xxv. 24. when with the best addresses of humility and modesty she sell at his seet, and said, "Upon me, my Lord, upon me let this iniquity be; and let thine handmaid feak in thy audience, and hear the words of thine handmaid;" and so on, with so much softness and sweetness, that she reconciled his anger, A 5

fhedding blood.

And indeed, such a discreet slexible temper would pacify any man who is not a brute; whereas harshness and stiffness do but harden the heart, and alienate the affections of men.

We would do well to confider the danger of many of our daughters proving unhappy in their marriage on this account. If they were taught to know how to comply with the judgment, and even with the infirmities of a hufband; this would make peace, and foften a hard heart; as wax meltoth, and even flint runneth, by the fire. But if they are always disputing and contending, this does but exasperate and provoke, does but tear open old wounds and inflict new, does but make a divided house and a miserable life; all for want of that meekness and quietness that ought to be the good accomplishment of every virtuous daughter.

III. To those other good properties must be added industry, and a love of proper business.

By the courtefy of our land, women are exempted from many of the fatigues and worldly toils, to which they are subject by more tyrannous use and custom in other countries. But this exemption from the coarser works, is not to indulge them in slothfulness and idle living: They have easier and more suitable tasks allotted to them, of making, mending, preserving, improving, turning or to ferve a family.

The daughters must be accustomed to these duties, these pleasures of work, and suitable employ: I say pleasures, for nothing is more grateful to an ingenuous mind than to be well employed: no penance, one would think, greater,

If there be any that cannot think it their pleafure, they ought however to esteem it their duty. For it is not only strictly enjoined to all christians, to study to be quiet, and to do their own business; but it is more especially charged uponyounger women, that they guide the bouse, or helpto govern the family, "giving no occasion, says "the apostle, to the adversary, to speak reproach-"fully;" that is, the heathens would have reproached christianity, if the christian women had been suffered to live in idleness and pride-

Hence the widows were not to be reckoned as widows indeed, were to have no respect or relief, unless, as 1 Tim. v. 10. they were well reported of for good works, had brought up children, had lodged strangers, had washed the saints feet, had relieved the afflicted, and had diligently followed every good work." He would have those widows to be rejected, who had been idle; giving a reason, that idleness would have a great many other saults going along with it; when they learn to be idle, they are, says he, "nor only idle, but tattlers also, and busy bodies, speak" ing things which they ought not."

There

There is a worse consequence of idleness in young women: they seek ill company, and run upon temptations, and expose themselves to danger, and to the opportunities of folly, and sin, and dear repentance. How came Dinab to lose her virtue and honour, but by wandering abroad? or as Gen. xxxiv. 1. "going out to see the daughters" of the land." Her keeping at home to proper business had saved her from pollution and infamy, and many families from blood and ruin.

But such is the way of the harlot, Prov. vii. 11.

"Her feet abide not in her house; now is she with"out, now in the streets, and lieth in wait in every corner." Idleness and honesty can hardly dwell together; some spare time, or some ill place, shall

For this reason Solomon, in this character of a virtuous daughter, enlarges more upon her industry than upon any other quality. He represents her and her whole family to be well employed, though a woman of wealth and honour, for ver. 21. " Her houshold were clothed with scarlet, and " her own clothing was filk and purple, and her " husband fat among the elders or nobles of the " land;" yet she made working not to be her necessity, but her choice; ver. 13. " She seeketh " wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her " hands. She rifeth also while it is night, and " giveth to her houshold, and a portion to her She looketh well to the ways of her " houshold, and eateth not the bread of idlenes;" and fo with many other tokens of frugality and industry. The conclusion of all is again with these virtues:

virtues: "Give her of the fruit of her hands, and "let her own works praise her in the gates."

So fine a description of a good woman, that I earnestly recommend this last chapter of the Proverbs, from the 10th verse to the end; I recommend it to all Mothers and Mistresses, to teach it to be read, and learned by heart by their Daughters, and all little Maidens committed to their charge.

IV. The last endowment of the virtuous Daughter, and that which crowns all the rest, is piety and devotion.

A religious frame of spirit, and a conscientious practice of godliness; this must adorn and complete all other virtues and graces, and make the daughter more excelling. For without this, no other talent of body or mind can be a true accomplishment.

Those endowments we before mentioned must be fanctified by religion, or else they may be useless, or perhaps pernicious, common or unclean.

First, Modesty, without a principle of conscience, may be bashfulness, ill-breeding, or great natural infirmity, that time and temptations may wear away, unless there be the fear of God before the modest eyes; and then indeed, like the chastity of Joseph, it can resist importunity, and give a firm denial in his unanswerable words, "How can I commit this great wickedness, and sin against God?"

Secondly,

14 The EXCELLENT DAUGHTER.

Secondly, Meekness and quiteness of mind, without religion, may be no better than a softness or heaviness of temper; or at best will soon degenerate into a mere passive humour, heedless and careless of all concerns. It is conscience, and the fear of God, that maketh meekness to be not barely a humour, but a chosen virtue, and a Christian grace.

So Thirdly, Industry and diligence, if they are never so great in profane and irreligious women, what are they but art and crast, and the sordid humour of a worldly mind, addicted to filthy lucre, and so condemned to drudgery and toil. But diligence is then the virtue, when it springs from a sense of duty, and is chiefly consecrated to the service of God; then the devout woman will not, like Martha, be altogether tumbered about much serving, but will, with Mary, "mind the one thing necessary;" and will, with her, "wisely chuse the better part."

In short, impiety and profaneness in any daughter will but expose the natural endowments, and will taint and corrupt all the moral virtues in her. Without grace there can be very little goodness, and therefore for reputation, and for conscience sake, all virgins should be early dedicated to God, and from children be bred up in "the nurture and admonition of the Lord, that they may grow up into women professing god-"liness, honourable women." Let them be well instructed in the principles of religion, well acquainted with the scriptures, well read in other pious pious practical books, exercised in a constant course of private and public prayer, attentive to the word of God, melodious in psalms and hymns, and at last srequent receivers of the blessed sacrament.

There may be hypocrify and deceit, but a daughter truly conscientious cannot but be good in every relation, must needs be an obedient child, a. discreet young woman, an affectionate wife, a tender mother, a kind mistress, a useful neigh-While profanenels bour, and a faithful friend. will turn and taint her in all respects, will be apt to make her disobedient to parents, disagreeable in a state of matrimony, uneasy to her family, and perhaps unnatural to her own children. It is fo, that in the breeding of daughters, " the fear of " God is the beginning of wisdom," and irreligion is the root of all other evil and folly. And therefore it is, that in Solomon's character of an excellent Daughter, religion comes in to grace all the other virtues, and to adorn beauty, and fanctify love: in the verse following the text, " favour is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but " a woman that feareth the Lord, the shall be " praised."

"Her price is far above rubies: strength and honour shall be her cloathing; and she fhall rejoice in time to come." And in the words immediately before our text, "her children shall arise up and call her Blessed; her husband

" also, and he shall praise her."

First Lesson. Of MODESTY.

I Must begin with modesty, because nature has laid this soundation of all virtue and goodness in our sex. Nothing is more unnatural in a virgin than boldness of look, rudeness in talk, and looseness in behaviour. It will be shameful and scandalous for me to be thought a consident young creature; it may hinder my fortune, and stain my reputation; it will give an offence to God and distaste to all the good and wise part of mankind. I will endeavour therefore to keep up the sense and signs of modesty in my countenance, in my conversation, and in my babit.

First, in my countenance: To be a little reserved and decently composed, betraying no evil thoughts in my own heart, and giving no occasion of offence to others, but shewing a displeasure at every indeeent word, and every confident look; the most natural beauty is in blushes and a bashful air. Nothing would disfigure me more than to be bold and brazen-faced. The strange woman (that is the naughty woman) is by Solomon described with an impudent face, Prov. vii. 13. But by the Apostle's advice, I Tim. ii. 9. " all christian women should be adorned with shamefacedness and sobriety." Rebekab, at the sight of strangers, "took a vail, and covered herself," Gen. xxiv. 65. In the primitive church "the aged women were to teach the young women to be sober, discreet, chaste, and good," Tit. ii. 3.

Secondly, I must be modest in my conversation, not forward to talk, but rather answering than asking questions; speaking with respect and due regard to the company, and knowing when to be filent. St. Paul does represent it as a great reproach in women, to be " tattlers and bufy-" bodies, and speaking things which they ought " not," I Tim. v. 13. He advises them rather " to " learn in filence with all subjection," or modest fubmission, I Tim. ii. II. "Their chaste conver-. " fation was to be coupled with fear," the fear of offending, I Pet. iii. 2. It is my duty and my credit to obtain the good character of the virtuous Daughter, " who opened her mouth with " wisdom, and in her tongue was the law of kind-" ness;" that is, of civility, and inoffensive difcourse, Prov. xxxi. 26.

Thirdly, I must be modest in my babit and apparel, which ought to be suitable to the condition of my parents, and my own age and birth, and present state of life, chusing rather to go beneath those circumstances than exceed them. ness and neatness are much more becoming than finery and affected shew. " The lily of the field, " in its simple native dress, exceeded Solomon in all " his glory." By the rule of christianity women were to adorn themselves in modest apparel, " not " with broidered hair, or gold, or pearl, or costly " array," I Tim. ii. o. To go with pride and vanity is very suspicious, it is called the attire of an barlot, Prov. vii. 10. The women of conscience and honour had their adorning, which did not confift in "that outward adorning, but in the " hidden man of the heart," I Pet. i. 3, 4. Nothing will fet better upon me than the work of my own hands: the excellent daughter is by Solomon described as making herself covering and clothing, Prov. xxxi. 22.

SECOND LESSON.

Of MEEKNESS.

I Must learn to be of a meek and quiet spirit, not uneasy and impatient, not fretful and peevish, but of an even steady mind; and so to command myself, as not to be put into a passion or disorder 1

· f disorder by any little accident, or by any provocation whatsoever. Nothing is so unseemly and so disobliging as anger and furious wrath: it dissigures the countenance, and discomposes the whole frame of soul and body. It is a sure sign of weakness and folly to be forward and hasty, to speak unadvisedly, and to be transported with heat and passion. Solomon well observes, that "a soolists" woman is clamorous, she is simple," Prov. ix. 13. and the woman of ill same has the character of being loud and stubborn, Prov. vii. 11. Such a one is not sit for society; she is a burden and a disturbance to all company; the contentions of such a one are as a continual dropping, Prov. xix. 24.

A prudent woman governeth her passions with a gentle air, and guideth her words with discretion. She knoweth how to contain her own resentments, and by a soft answer to turn away the wrath of others. Such a calm and mild temper would be the greatest grace and ornament to me. The apostle recommends this inward adorning as beyond "gold and costly apparel, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is, in "the sight of God, of great price," I Pet. iii. 4. This was the richest jewel of our sex in former generations; "for after this manner, in the old "times, the holy women also, who trusted in "God adorned thereselves."

" God, adorned themselves."

The meek Abigail dispensed with the churlishness of Nabal, and pacified the wrath of David, and brought a blessing on her family. Holy Mary, the mother of Jesus, sets me an example of humility and meekness in that sweet anthem:

· My

" My foul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit " hath rejoiced in God my Saviour; for he hath

" regarded the low estate of his hand-maiden .-

" He hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts, he hath put down the mighty

" from their feats, and exalted them of low

" degree."

THIRD LESSON.

Of INDUSTRY.

Must remember that we are all born to do good in our generation, to be useful and serviceable in the world. Our fex was especially created for a belp-meet for others; not for a trouble only, and a burden to them. The very infects are good examples of a natural love of industry and forecast; the laborious ant, and the diligent bee; nothing more contemptible than the idle drone, that would live upon the fweet of others labour.

It may be God's providence that I should work for my living: but however, if working be not my necessity, it may be my choice and my pleafure. It will be a pleasure and a delight to me to be fuitably employed, for myself, or for my friends. It would be a burden to have time lying on my hands, it would be a grievous penance to have nothing to do. Every hour can afford me some proper business, to pray, to read, to make, to mend, to learn, to teach, to order, to help, to turn my eye and hand to every thing that is fit and useful to be done. A dreaming, unactive life, is to sleep while we are waking, is to die while we are alive; for so the apostle expressly saith, "She that liveth in pleasure, is dead while she liveth," I Tim. v. 6.

The same good apostle would have younger women so bred, that they may be able to guide the bouse; that is, to govern a family, and help to maintain it and support it. He would have no widow regarded, but " one well reported of for " good works, for bringing up children, for " doing many other good offices, and even for " having diligently followed every good work." He speaks with great indignation of those women who learn to be idle, because he knew that idleness would bring a great many other saults and mischiefs along with it: such as " wandering about " from house to house; and not only idle, but " tattlers also, speaking things which they ought " not," I Tim. v. 13.

I fear idleness has been the ruin of many young women, by turning their heads to vanity and pride, and by exposing them to many temptations of folly and sin. It was so with Dinab, rambling abroad till she brought home shame and sorrow, Gen. xxxiv. 1. Such is the harlot's way, Prov. vii. 11. "Her feet abide not in her house, now " she is without, now in the streets, and lieth in qualities: Prov. xxxi. 12. She is "doing good "all the days of her life; she seeketh wool and shar, and worketh willingly with her hands. "She is like merchant ships, she bringeth her food from afar. She layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff. She maketh herself coverings of tapestry, and clothing of silk and purple. She maketh sine linen and girdles. She looketh well to the ways of her houshould, and eateth not the bread of idleness. She has the fruit of her hands, and her own works praise her in the gates."

A virtuous woman can always find somewhat to do. When Solomon describes the Excellent Daughter, he made industry to be one of her best qualities:

Such a good name would be precious to me, would gain me the love and esteem of all perfons. What an honour was it to Tabitha, to be reported a woman full of good works," All ix. 26. and after death to have "the widows flanding by her body weeping, and shewing the coats and garments which she made while se she was with them?"

Of CHARITY.

C Harity must be the crown of the other virtues; I must be ready and willing to pity others in want and distress, and to relieve them as far as opportunity and my ability will serve. This is true goodness of nature, to be tender and kindly affectioned towards others; to have eyes of pity, and bowels of compassion; to incline our heart, and to stretch forth our hand, where-ever we meet an object of charity.

Nothing more unnatural in human creatures, than to have a hard heart, and a narrow foul; especially in us christians, nothing more profane and irreligious, than to be so worldly-minded, as to have felf-love only, without the love of God, and our neighbour.

It may not be always in my power to give money or other relief to all that ask me, for I must give nothing but what is properly my own to give; and I must consider that many common beggars do not much want it, and do very little deserve it. My charity should be always out of that which is at my own disposal; and I would chuse to give it to those whom I know to be real and worthy objects of it: And I should be glad to allot somewhat to charitable uses out of my own handy-works; that I might fo follow the apostle's direction, of labouring and working with my hands the thing which is good, " that I " may have to give to them that need," Eph. iv. 28.

I would exclude no true object of charity, as occasion serves, but I would prefer one before most others; I mean the Charity Schools, wherein the children of the poor are so decently clothed, and so well bred up in learning, virtue, and religion.

Nothing so acceptable to God Almighty as a charitable disposition, ready to distribute, willing

This virtue is the more expected in our fex, as our nature is more is linable to pity and com-passion. The holy women of old became devout and bonourable, by their liberality and bounty to the church and poor. Tabitha had the precious memorial of "being a woman full of good works, " and alms-deeds, which she did," Acts ix. 36. The apostles ould have no one esteemed a true christian widow, unless she had been " well re-" Brited of for good works; if she had lodged trangers; if the had washed the faints feet; if the had relieved the afflicted; if the had dili-" gently followed every good work," I Tim. v. 10. I remember that the virtuous daughter in the Proverbs, whose Price was above rubies, had this spirit of charity and goodness, that " she " stretched out her hand to the poor, yea, she " reached forth her hands to the needy," Prov. XXXI. 20.

FIFTH LESSON.

Of OBEDIENCE to PARENTS.

BY nature I find myself disposed to love my parents, and to express that love by respect, and reverence, and submission, and obedience to them. I must blot out the law of nature written in my heart, before I can be without this natural natural affection: and the law of God is more express, the very first commandment with promife, Honour thy father and mother; a law which my bleffed Saviour did repeat and reinforce, reproving the Pharifees, that by their tradition they had made " this commandment of God of no " effect," Matt. xv. 4. This duty is enjoined as most acceptable to our heavenly Father: " Chil-" dren, obey your parents in all things, for this " is well-pleasing unto the Lord," Col. ifi. 20. Disobedience to parents was so high a crime among the Jews, that it was punished by death itself; "the stubborn and rebellious fon, which " would not obey the voice of his father, or the " voice of his mother; and who when they had " chastened him would not hearken to them, he " was to be laid hold on, and brought out, and " the men of the city were to stone him with " stones till he died," Deut. xxi. 18. Or, if this punishment was not inflicted by the magistrate, yet the providence of God did execute some vengeance on unnatural children; a curfe, and not a bleffing on them; fome judgment or other on their heads, poverty, shame or ruin: Prov. xxx. 17. " The eye that mocketh at his father, " and despiseth to obey his mother, the ravens of " the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles " shall eat it." But on the other side, happiness and prosperity shall be the reward of dutiful children. The apostle argues from this motive of the bleffing of God; Epb. vi. 1. "Children, " obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right: " Honour thy father and mother, which is the " firft

I remember the good example of Solomon upon his throne, "rising up to meet his mother, and bowing himself unto her, and giving her the right hand, and granting her request," I Kings ii. 19. And of a greater than Solomon, Christ Jesus himself; who being in the stellar, did pay all the duties of a child to Joseph and his mother, and "went down with them," and was subject unto them," Luke ii. 51.

SIXTH LESSON.

Of PIETY and RELIGION.

ALL the virtues and graces in our fex are indeed founded in nature, and approved by reason; but they must be all accomplished by religion, by a principle of conscience, and in the fear of God; for without fuch a fense of religion, all the duties before-mentioned would be cold and formal: It is this must fanctify every other ornament, as " every facrifice was to be " feafoned with falt." For without a religious frame of spirit, modesty might grow into a bashful infirmity; meekness might fink into weakness and lowness of spirit; industry and diligence would be no better than fordid drudgery; charity would be vain-glory; and even obedience to parents would be nothing but felf-interest and defign: All the advantages in the world are nothing nothing to a profane and wicked woman; beauty, or wit, or foreune, will but help the fooner to betray her, if the has not the fear of God before her eyes. In the Proverbs of Solomon, wisdom and discretion stand for piety and religion. Hence, Prov. xi. 22. "As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman which is without discretion;" that is, without piety, which gives the only true prudence. And therefore in the character of the virtuous woman, the excellent daughter, Prov. xxxi. Religion is brought in to crown and complete all her other accomplishments: "Favour" is deceitful, and beauty is vain, but a woman "that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised."

Let me therefore accustom myself to all the exercises of goddiness; to my private devotions night and morning; to the public prayers of the church, as often as opportunity will ferve; to reading and hearing the holy fcriptures, and other devotional and practical books; to attending on fermons and lectures, and hearkening unto all holy and good conversation: by delighting in pfalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs; by enquiring into the covenants and conditions of my baptism, and resolving by God's grace to perform them; by defiring to be confirmed by the Bishop; and intending, at my first years of discretion, to prepare for the holy facrament of our Lord's supper, and to receive it frequently with true repentance, and unfeigned faith, and fervent charity.

Let me get the bleffed habit and practice of religion, now in my tender years, before I am too much engaged in the cares of the world, and the troubles of any other state of life. The Apostle seems so far to pity the married woman, that she "must care for the things of the world," how she may please her husband; but as for the virgin, he taketh it for granted, that "she "careth for the things of the Lord, that she "may be holy both in body and spirit," I Cor.

If I pay a conscientious duty unto God, I shall the better discharge my duty in every other relation. Let me be a religious good christian, and then I must needs be an obedient and affectionate child, a loving and tender sister, a kind and saithful friend. I may grow up into a discreet young woman, and in God's good time I may be the sitter to be a chaste and agreeable wise, a prudent mistress of samily, and the joyful mother of children.

My good and gracious heavenly Father, look down upon me thy child, and blefs me, even me, O my Father! Order my steps. and direct my conversation aright this following day: Preserve me from all dangers, and defend me from all temptations: Let me not run into any fin, nor fall into any mischief. Be thou, O God, my guide and my deliverer: Give me thy grace to improve daily in knowledge, and wisdom, and virtue, and religion. Grant that I may flee all youthful lufts, all vanity, folly, and fin; and that I may grow up in the fear of thee, my God, and live always in obedience to thy commandments. Send thy bleffing upon my parents, relations, and friends. Be gracious unto the King, and to all in authority under him; and to my particular governors and Bless this whole house and family wherein I dwell. I recommend myself and all that is dear to me, to thy protection. Lord, care for me, and love me, for the fake of Jesus Christ, who taught his disciples thus to pray:

Our Father, &c. ...

Evening Prayer for the same Daughter.

I Praise thy name, O merciful Father, for preferving me this day past: O forgive me all the frailties and offences of my youth: Pardon all that I have done amis in thought, word, or deed. Give me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right a right spirit within me: Make me every day to grow wifer and better; more fentible of my duty, and more diligent to perform it; that fo I may continue in thy grace, and improve in all manner of goodness, a true child of God, and a fure inheritor of the kingdom of heaven. O1 preserve me this night from all perils and fears! Into thy hands I commend myself, my soul and body: Keep me as the apple of thine eye; hide me under the shadow of thy wings. Let sleep so refresh me, as to make me the more able and more willing to ferve thee, and to do good the day following, and all the days of my life. Defend and prosper the King, and Church, and State. Bless and keep my parents, relations, and all my good friends. Hear me, for Jefus Christ's fake, my great Redeemer, who taught us all to pray in thefe precious Words; walk particular and and

Our Father, &cc.

A Prayer for one drawing toward her years of discretion, who has not been yet Baptised.

My good God, I am made sensible, that being born of christian parents, I had a right to infant baptism; the omission of it was not owing to my fault, and I beseech thee lay it not to my charge, and forgive it in those who through ignorance or error did neglect it in my childhood. It is thy great mercy not to suffer me to die unbaptised, and so to have lost the ordinary means of salvation. Let me no longer run run that great danger to my foul! O dispose me, and prepare me for the holy facrament of baptism, that I may be so admitted a member of Christ's church, and in covenant with thee, O Make me sensible of the terms and conditions of this holy covenant. Let me seriously promise, and faithfully perform them; that so I may become a christian, not in name only, and outward profession, but in deed and in truth, leading a godly, righteous, and fober life: May my whole conversation be such as becometh the gospel of Christ; that so I may partake of the benefits of thy holy catholic church, and the communion of faints, the forgiveness of fins, and in thy time, everlasting life. Amen.
